TYDINGS SAYS DRYS PUT WINE IN VOLSTEAD ACT

Gift to Keep Rural Support, He Claims.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—If you're a home wine maker you have the federal courts, the prohibition bureau, and the Wickersham commission back of you, and the federal farm board subsidizes the grower who sells you grapes.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT.

You're within the law and a respectable citizen.

But if you're a home brewer, you're breaking the Volstead law and liable to be put behind the bars.

That is the situation now existing, Senator Millard Tydings [Dem., Md.], ardent anti-prohibitionist, told his colleagues today and it well illustrates, he declared, the state of hypocrisy into which prohibition has thrust the government and the people.

A Letter from Dr. Wilson.

Senator Tydings began by calling attention to a letter which he had received from Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church. In this letter, which the senator read, Dr. Wilson commented on the manufacture and sale of "Vine-Glo," a grape concentrate, and similar commodities. Dr. Wilson approved the views expressed by Senator Tydings in a speech made Wednesday.

"If any one in the senate of the United States or elsewhere," said Dr. Wilson, "believes that the effort to build up a nation-wide trade in home wine materials has the tacit consent of the so-called dry organizations, he undoubtedly is in error. Certainly this organization would stultify itself by refusing to challenge an undertaking which, in its opinion, strikes directly at the sincerity of the 18th amendment."

Dr. Wilson declared that if traffic in such commodities as are intended to produce wine is legal under section 29 of the Volstead act, the law should be amended.

"It is a question of honesty and sincerity and no less a question of protecting many homes from the invasion of want and cruelty," said Dr. Wilson.

"Today in the United States," Senator Tydings explained, "it is perfectly legal to manufacture wine containing 20 per cent of alcohol in the home, but it is illegal to manufacture 4 per cent beer or any alcoholic beverage except wine.

He Demands Equality.

"Either we should permit all beverages to be made in the home, as we now permit wine to be made, or else we ought to stop wine making in the home entirely, in the interest of equality. There should be no discrimination."

For two hours and more he held forth, backing up his contention that home wine making was recognized as legal with court decisions, executive bureau rulings, with excerpts from testimony by government officials, and paragraphs from the Wickersham commission's report.

He held forth until he stirred Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], author of the eighteenth amendment, into a state of indignant denial and the wet senator and the dry tossed the debate back and forth between them.

This provision permitting home wine making—contained in section 29 of the Volstead act—was no joker slipped into the bill by some tricky wet, Senator Tydings declared, but had deliberately been put in by the late Wayne B. Wheeler, "real author of the Volstead act."

"A Beneficent Gift."

"This beneficent legislative gift which Mr. Wheeler bestowed on what was to be an otherwise arid country," Senator Tydings observed, "has enabled the California grape growers, to quote from the literary classic recently written for them by Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, 'to rescue for human society the native values of rural life.'"

The "native values," said Senator Tydings, were to be measured in gallons; for figures prepared by none other than Prohibition Director Amos W. Woodcock showed that a produc-

W. F. JUERGENS, JEWELER, ENDS LIFE WITH GUN

Kills Himself After Long Illness.

William F. Juergens Sr., wholesale jeweler and connoisseur of pearls, whose family has been identified with the trade in precious stones for 150 years, committed suicide with a pistol yesterday. He was 60 years old.

Until a reorganization of the concern five weeks ago, Mr. Juergens had been president of Juergens & Andersen, one of the oldest and largest wholesale jewelry houses in the middle west, with assets exceeding $2,000,000. He was a director of the Cosmopolitan State bank and the National Republic Bancorporation, an affiliate of the National Bank of the Republic.

Writes Note to Wife.

For ten years Mr. Juergens had suffered from diabetes and his physicians had for the last three months regarded his condition as critical. About 1:15 p. m. yesterday he sat down at his bedroom desk in the family's ten room apartment at the Belden-Stratford hotel and wrote a farewell note to his wife, Louisa.

Unobserved by Mrs. Juergens and their son, William Jr., who were in the apartment, the jeweler took a small mirror and his pistol from the bureau drawer, stepped outside and walked a few paces down the corridor to an alcove leading to the fire escape. There he braced himself against the wall, holding the mirror before his face and the pistol at his right temple.

No one heard the shot. He had been dead perhaps five minutes when a colored chamber maid, Frankie Wandush, chanced to glance into the alcove and saw his body, slumped against the wall. She summoned the assistant manager of the hotel, D. W. Falconer, who notified Sheffield avenue police. The body was taken to an undertaking room at 1253 North Clark street, where an inquest is to be held this morning.

Mr. Juergens' last message, scribbled in a shaky hand on hotel stationery, was found by one of the family and handed to the police. The note, evidently addressed to Mrs. Juergens, read as follows:

"My Dearest—You and Vera and William and Louise and Paul have all been wonderful. I fear I will have a breakdown and that I may lose my mind. I won't want to be a burden. Good-by."

The references in the note were to Mr. Juergens' sons, H. Paul and William F. Juergens Jr., who had been officers and directors of the company until the reorganization; to his daughter, Louise, and to Mrs. Vera Andersen Stenson, a cousin of Mr. Juergens and one of the principal stockholders in the company.

Specialized in Pearls.

The firm of Juergens & Andersen, founded by two German silversmiths in 1854 in a one room shop in Tremont alley, now occupies the entire ninth floor of the Pittsfield building, 55 East Washington street. The company has catered to three generations of Chicago's wealthy families, specializing in pearls. Necklaces valued as high as $250,000 have been sold across its counters.

William F. Juergens joined the company as a boy of 17 years. For four years he was an apprentice, working at a jeweler's bench. Later he became a salesman, and in 1893 was elected treasurer. At his father's death 20 years ago he was vice president and, after Sebastian Andersen's death, was elected president in 1920.

The founders, Paul Juergens and Sebastian Andersen, were brothers-in-law. In a little museum on the sales floor the firm still preserves specimens of the craftsmanship of Paul Juergens and his ancestors, antique spoons, watches and medallions. Among the exhibits is a blackened ledger showing the firm's transactions on the day before the Chicago fire swept the city and their store, destroying all but a few hundred dollars of lumped gold and silver.

Interest in Oriental Pearls.

From the outset of his career William F. Juergens' greatest interest was in oriental pearls. In the study of these gems he made a trip to Egypt and the far east. Other jewelers credit him with conceiving the "Add a Pearl" slogan, now generally employed by the trade in selling genuine pearls a few at a time to that sec-

BROKER'S WIFE FOUND DEAD IN NO. SIDE HOTEL

Mrs. William A. Churchill, 48 years old, owner of an apartment hotel at 1255 North State street and the wife of a broker who is a partner in the brokerage house of Charles Sincere & Co. at 231 South La Salle street, was found dead in the hotel last night. Dr. Maurice Rubel, 1209 Astor street, notified the coroner's office and the body was removed to a mortuary chapel at 200 East Pearson street.

Friends and members of the family said Mrs. Churchill was subject to heart attacks and was in the habit of taking sleep inducing tablets. A bottle of them was found near the body, Dr. Rubel told the police. It is believed death was due to a combination of a weak heart and an overdose of the drug.

Dr. Frank Dwyer of the coroner's office was instructed to perform an autopsy.

Auto Sales Station Is Bombed; Cars Damaged

A small dynamite bomb set off against the rear entrance of the service station of the Reo Staat Motor Sales, Inc., 7609-11 South Halsted street, last night blew the door in and damaged several automobiles which had been repaired. The Gresham police estimated the loss at $500.

Bread Buyers "Strike" for 6 Cent Loaf

Becoming alarmed over the progress of a women's boycott, which, it is said, is designed to force the price of bread down from 10 cents to 6 cents for a pound loaf, the owners of nine bakeries in the Humboldt park district have appealed to the courts for aid. The boycott began on Jan. 23 and has developed to such proportions that temporary injunctions have been issued to restrain the picketing of the bakeries.

The ban against the bakeries is not a labor movement, the owners say, since only union help is employed in the plants. The conflict was brought to the attention of Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan several days ago and he issued a temporary injunction to restrain the picketing of the Northwestern Baking company, 2445 West Division street. Yesterday he issued similar injunctions on behalf of eight other bakeries in the same community.

Mothers' League Accused.

The suits charged that an organization known as the Mothers' league had conspired to injure the bakeries by picketing their plants, as well as many stores which are supplied with the goods of the bakeries. Three women, Sarah Melnikow, Dora Fifer, and Fannie Brusiloff, are named as defendants.

Attorney John A. Cohon, representing the bakeries, said the names of others connected with the league will be given to the court. The first injunction issued by Judge Sullivan has not been obeyed, the attorney said, and contempt proceedings are to be started.

Several instances of violence are set forth in the suits. On one occasion, the suits say, a woman customer about to enter a grocery at 2652 Division street was halted by Fannie Brusiloff and advised not to buy bread in the store because the price was too high.

Charge Attack on Shopper.

The shopper ignored the request, the suits say, and when she left the store, carrying a loaf of bread, she was kicked and slapped. Other disturbances have occurred in front of other stores, it is alleged.

The suits say that the pickets usually work in pairs and carry posters urging housewives to "refuse to buy bread until the price goes down to 6 cents a pound." One of the posters, a photostatic copy of which was filed in court, advertised daily massmeetings at the "bread strike" headquarters at 2736 West Division street, and other meetings at the hall at 2733 Hirsch boulevard. The bakers say that as many as 600 persons have been present at several of the meetings.

The other bakeries that have been granted injunctions are: Harmony baking company, 1059 North Rockwell street; Supreme bakery, 1302 North Leavitt street; New York Baking company, 2449 Division street; Diamond bakery, 2759 Division street; Humboldt Park Baking company, 2729 Division street; Simon Holtzman, 2321 Potomac avenue; Jacob Levinson, 2759 Division street, and Jacob Kunis, 2520 Potomac avenue.

A NIGHT LETTER from Ring Lardner

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—This will be my last broadcast from Miami Beach because I just found out they are giving Steven Hannigan an elegant salary to press agent the place and all I have out of it is inside tips on horses that finished eighth in a field of seven. Besides, I am anxious to be back in New York, now that they have decided to make the town wide open by allowing the night clubs to run till 3 o'clock in the a. m. under police supervision, whereas they used to only run till noon and would not allow a policeman inside —after 5 a. m. unless he showed his badge and had a uniform on. I was surprised this morning at the news that Einstein had stole his theory of relativity from a Mr. Edwards. Next thing you know somebody will be claiming authorship of the income tax blank.

Sheridan Road Throng Sees Thrilling Chase

Three Negro bandits held up the Granada theater at 6247 Sheridan road last night and fled before the revolver fire of J. J. Katz, the manager, who gave chase after he had been notified of the robbery by a girl cashier. One of the holdup men was believed to have been wounded.

The chase and shooting were witnessed by hundreds of motorists and pedestrians, as it occurred about 10 o'clock, a few minutes after the beginning of the second show, and while the crowds of patrons from the first performance were still leaving the theater.

Descriptions furnished to the Rogers Park police convinced them that the bandits were those who held up the Riviera theater on Wednesday night. One of the robbers acted as a lookout, sauntering along the sidewalk, while his companions held up the cashiers.

Hold Up Two Cashiers.

Concealing their weapons under the coats, because of the many passersby, the bandits walked up to the twin cages of the Granada box office, and thrust their guns under the wickets at the two cashiers, Eleanor Shannon and Dorothy Bartholomew.

"Give us all you got or we'll kill you," one said.

The girls hastily shoved two rolls of bills at them. The bandits pocketed them and walked toward the curb. Miss Shannon, as soon as they turned away, notified the office of the theater through the house telephone.

Mr. Katz seized his revolver and came on the run. Two of the bandits were in the middle of Sheridan road, crossing over to the west side, when he sighted them. Without calling on them to halt, he opened fire. They dodged in and out of automobile traffic with Mr. Katz in pursuit.

Separate and Escape.

They reached the far side of the street about thirty feet ahead of him. There the two separated, one running south, behind a gas station toward Devon avenue, and the other darting behind a billboard. Mr. Katz elected to follow the latter.

However, when he arrived behind it, the bandit had disappeared. He let out a yell of pain as he vanished, and it was that that led Mr. Katz to believe he hit him.

Capt. Patrick J. Harding of the Rogers Park district announced that he would immediately act to prevent further holdups by having guards in plain clothes stationed near theaters when the cash was being counted.

GREEK "BANKER" IS NEAR DEATH AFTER SHOOTING

A mystery shooting was presented to the Hudson avenue police last night when Tom Constance, 49 years old, 1047 Argyle street, known as "the banker" of the Chicago Greek colony, was found lying in an alley near Halsted street and Belden avenue with a bullet in the head. At the Augustana hospital, where he was taken, physicians said he would die.

Fred Meyersick, manager of the Argyle street hotel, where Constance had lived for five years, told Chief of Detectives John Norton he thought Constance had been shot by some angry client. He recalled that he had delivered a special delivery letter to Constance last evening and Constance left the hotel immediately.

His business, Mr. Meyersick said, was the financing of Greeks in confectioneries, fruit and vegetable stores, and restaurants. He was just planning to lease land for a Greek market at 22d street and Michigan avenue. Constance for too weak to talk last night.

ASKS MARRIAGE ANNULMENT FOR BROTHER, AGED 91

Herbert I. Wells, 87 years old, of Kingston, R. I., appeared before Circuit Judge Trude yesterday to plead for an annulment of the marriage of his brother, Theodore B. Wells, 91 years old, of La Grange, to Miss Anna B. Naylor, 46 years old. The annulment petition alleges that Miss Naylor married Wells for his money.

Theodore Wells inherited $60,000 from his first wife, his brother argued, and shortly afterwards, in May, he married Miss Naylor, who had been his nurse for 10 years. The brother also alleges that Mrs. Wells had spent $7,500 of her husband's inheritance.

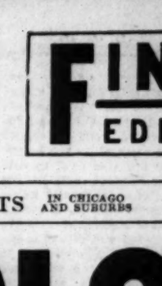
After attorneys for Mrs. Wells insisted that she is not "the type to squander money, then leave him," Judge Trude continued the hearing to consider the arguments.

ADD 20 MILLION TO LOANS FUND BY COMPROMISE

Bonus Controversy Also Settled.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—President Hoover today won his fight against governmental charity.



SENATOR JAMES E. WATSON. [Fotograms.]

Senate Democrats, who a few days ago declared their intention to force a special session of congress unless their demands for a $25,000,000 direct relief appropriation and a $15,000,000 loan fund for drought sufferers were approved, late today accepted terms of a compromise dictated by the administration.

Under the compromise there will be a broadening of the credit machinery set up for the drought area. The sum of $20,000,000 will be added to the $45,000,000 already appropriated. The money will not be available for charity, but will be loaned to individuals or to agricultural credit corporations and secured by liens on crops or other security.

"Dole" Aspect Removed.

The loans may be used for "agricultural rehabilitation" in addition to seed, feed and fertilizer, to which the money provided by the original act was limited. Under the guise of "agricultural rehabilitation" some of the money may be used by farmers for food and clothing, but it will not be intended as charity or as a dole.

The compromise, which was accepted by Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader, as well as by the Republican leaders in the two houses of congress and by President Hoover, was regarded as meaning that a special session can be avoided. The only possibility of a special session now lies in filibusters which may be conducted against appropriation bills by radical Republicans interested in other legislation than relief measures. The Democrats, with few exceptions, have been against a special session from the start of the controversy.

Bonus Compromise Made.

A compromise on soldiers' bonus legislation which will be acceptable to the administration, also was involved in the discussions leading up to the agreement on the $20,000,000 loan for "agricultural rehabilitation."

SENATOR CHARLES L. McNARY. [Fotograms.]

The house ways and means committee, which is controlled by administration Republicans, plans to report a bill increasing borrowing privileges for world war veterans holding bonus certificates from 22 per cent, as at present, up to 50 per cent of their face value. It is estimated that the cost to the government will be upwards of 500 million dollars. This conforms to the suggestion of Owen D. Young and, it is thought, will be accepted by President Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Bonds Deemed Unlikely.

The administration believes that the testimony of prominent financiers and industrial leaders has definitely killed all chance of favorable action on the original proposal for immediate retirement of bonus certificates at their full face value, entailing the floating of a huge bond issue of 3 billion 400 million dollars.

The final touches on the compromise agreement on relief legislation were given at conferences this afternoon, participated in by Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader of the senate; Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], assistant majority leader; Speaker Longworth, and Representative John Q. Tilson [Rep., Conn.]. Senators Watson and McNary brought to the house leaders the agreement as worked out in meetings with Senator Robinson and other Democrats. The Republicans were in communication with the White House by telephone.

The compromise is incorporated in an amendment to be substituted for the senate amendment to the interior department appropriation bill appropriating $25,000,000 for the purchase of food and medical supplies and for other forms of relief. The $25,000,000 amendment was rejected by the house, after which the bill was sent to conference. The procedure will be for the conferees of the senate and house to offer the compromise as a substitute for the senate amendment. Technically the conferees will report a disagreement. Representative L. C. Cramton [Rep., Mich.] then will move in the house that the substitute amendment be accepted.

This will be followed by its acceptance by the senate. Every indication is that it will be approved in both branches, although objections may be offered in the senate because it fails to go far enough to satisfy some of those who have advocated direct relief.

The text of the compromise amendment was made public by Senator Watson. While it will be added to the interior department appropriation bill as a rider, it, in effect, amends the drought loan act.

Text of Compromise.

The essential language to be added to the drought loan act follows:

"In addition to the sums herein authorized and appropriations made thereunder, there is hereby appropriated to be immediately available, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $20,000,000, to be used by the secretary of agriculture for the following purposes: [1] to make advances or loans to individuals in the drought and [or] storm or hail stricken areas of the United States for the purpose of assisting in forming local agricultural credit corporations, live stock loan companies, or like organizations, or of increasing the capital stock of such corporations, companies, or organizations qualified to do business with federal intermediate credit banks, or to which such privileges may be extended, and [or] of making loans to individuals upon the security of the capital stock of such corporations, companies or organizations, and [2] to make advances or loans to farmers for crop productions for the crop of 1931 and for further agricultural rehabilitation in the drought and [or] storm stricken or hail stricken areas of the United States. The advances and loans made pursuant to this act and amendment thereto shall be secured by liens on crops or by other security, under such rules and regulations as the secretary of agriculture may prescribe."

Loan Act Liberalized.

The amendment also liberalizes the drought loan act by providing that "any money appropriated pursuant to the authorization contained in this section may be used in the purchase of feed for other live stock upon the same terms and conditions as such money may be used for the purchase of feed for work stock."

While the present law permitted loans for feed for "work stock," it has been construed as meaning that loans could not be granted for feed for cows and hogs.

With the relief bill in its amended form, administration officials believe that an impetus will be given to the drive for a $10,000,000 fund by the Red Cross, which has been slowed up by the possibility of direct government appropriations for relief.

$13,125 DISCOUNT IN CITY SALE OF $3,000,000 NOTES

The sale of $3,000,000 worth of water certificates at a discount of $13,125 was announced yesterday by City Controller Peterson. The purchasers were the A. C. Allyn company, which took $1,500,000 worth at a price of 99.625, and the First Union Trust and Savings bank, which took the other $1,500,000 worth at a price of 99.5.

Bids were taken by the city on the full amount and also on two lots of $1,500,000 each. The First Union bank was high on the $1,500,000 with the earlier maturity date and the Allyn company was high on the $1,500,000 maturing later. By splitting the purchase the city obtained a higher price than was bid on the full amount by any company. In December the city sold $7,000,000 worth at a price of 95.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey Is Put on Jury Commission

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, Democratic national committeewoman from Illinois, was elected yesterday by the judges of the county as a member of the Cook county jury commission. She fills the vacancy caused by the resignation of State Representative Thomas P. Keane. Mrs. Conkey has been an officer of the Illinois Woman's Democratic club for several years. She resides at 7420 Yates avenue.

Two Men, 2 Women Killed as Train Crashes Into Auto

Hamilton, O., Feb. 7 (Saturday).—(AP)—Four persons, two men and two women, were killed here tonight when their automobile was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio freight train. None of the bodies was identified, but the automobile bore an Ohio license number.

INNUENDO ATTACK ON LYLE COMES TO A SUDDEN END

Judge Declares Gangs Cannot Frighten Him.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Speaking at his third loop meeting at noon yesterday, Mayor Thompson announced that he had dropped the innuendo form of attack he had made against Judge Lyle in his two former theater meetings.

It was reported that close friends warned him that unless he could produce evidence in support of his hinted charges the final reaction against him because of his methods would be tremendous. They said signs of it were already noticeable. For that reason Thompson consented to change his tactics, although he still insisted they were responsible for his drawing crowds.

"We won't discuss his shortcomings any further," he said when he reached Judge Lyle's name in his speech at the Adelphi theater. "That is a closed book."

Lyle Counter Attacks.

Despite this announcement, Judge Lyle counter-attacked at two meetings last night, one in the 41st ward at 4762 Milwaukee avenue, the second in the Ecast Side theater, 106th street and Ewing avenue.

"When I became a candidate for mayor of Chicago," said the judge, "with an important part of my program calling for driving out of Chicago the murderers, thieves and panderers whose reign of lawlessness blackens our city's reputation and makes the lives and property of our citizens unsafe, I knew perfectly well that the Capones, Morans and Druggans and their political allies would fight back viciously and without conscience.

"I was warned of physical violence, but they were afraid to silence me with the automatic, the machine gun, or the sawed-off shotgun. So the course they have resorted to is an attempt to break the force of my attack by character assassination.

He Can't Be Frightened.

"I can neither be bullied nor frightened in stopping my exposure of organized crime and its political connections and I have no more fear of foul stories than I have of a gangster's bullets.

"I have lived in Chicago since I was 17 years old; my record for public service and private character is an open book. Beside rehabilitating our city government on a sound financial basis, the one object of my campaign is to crush organized crime and drive criminals into the penitentiary or out of Chicago.

"From that purpose I do not propose to be diverted by any malicious attacks through which these criminals or their friends seek to distract public attention."

Backs Lyle; Hits Cermak.

Robert M. Adams, an independent Republican, indorsed Judge Lyle in a statement, holding that Lyle is the only Republican candidate who can beat A. J. Cermak, who is slated to carry off the Democratic nomination. Adams also charged that the Democrats are in a conspiracy to help nominate Thompson.

"In 1919 and in 1927," he said, "Thompson was both nominated and elected with the help of vicious Democratic machinery. He is now a candidate again and is daily receiving the most sympathetic coöperation of Cermak and the Democratic organization.

"Neither Thompson nor Albert can defeat Cermak or Cermakism. I do believe Judge Lyle can defeat Cermak and that, further, he offers the people of Chicago their only hope for a constructive administration in the mayor's chair."

Schmidt Talks of City Hall.

In promising that if he is elected mayor he will appoint the "best cabinet that ever sat in the city hall," George K. Schmidt discussed some of his experiences as a member—until recently—of Thompson's official family.

"I served as city controller for two years and four months," he said. "In all that time I never saw the members of the mayor's cabinet together. Never did we have a formal conference to discuss the affairs of the city, in spite of the obvious fact that teamwork, coöperation, is essential to the proper administration of the city's affairs.

"Wait a minute—I'll take back part of that statement. The cabinet did get together annually—to throw $100 apiece into a jackpot to buy Thompson a present."

More Crime Victims Back Lyle.

A dozen new members of the Lyle Anti-Crime association, to which only crime victims are eligible, walked into the Hotel La Salle headquarters during the day. The first was a woman, Mrs. L. McTiver, 5451 Cornell avenue, one of several victims of holdup men in her neighborhood. John H. Callow, 1221 West 60th street, a 75 year old grocer, was another.

"I've been robbed four times," Callow said, "and now I'm forced to close my store at 8 o'clock in the evening because it's unsafe to keep it open."

Ralph Polichio, 717 North Trumbull avenue, said he had been held up twice. J. B. Cook, real estate man at 5870 Broadway, said that his home was robbed in daylight and stripped of all its furnishings of value. The police did not arrive until three hours after they were called, he said.

Deneen to Return Today.

United States Senator Deneen is expected to start another week-end visit from Washington today and give his aid to the campaign of Ald. Arthur F. Albert. He probably will not arrive in time for a women's luncheon at the Hotel Morrison but is expected to attend an organization meeting at 4 o'clock.

Cermak pledge cards were distributed throughout the Democratic organization during the day. Ross C. Woodhull, sanitary trustee, is billed as the speaker at the regular Monday luncheon of the Democrats which next week will be held at the Steuben club.

WOMAN DEAD; HUNT MIDWIFE.

Marquette police were seeking a midwife, whose name was withheld, yesterday, following the death of Mrs. Sofia Cerniuk, 35 years old, 2021 West 17th street. Her husband said an illegal operation had been performed.

Two Mothers in Council Race; 'City Needs Feminine Touch'

Two dark haired mothers, one an executive in a public school and the other a housekeeper, are candidates for two city council seats. Should they win, they would be Chicago's first women aldermen.

The women are Mrs. Mary McGinnity O'Connell, 508 South Sacramento avenue, and Mrs. Paula Milgrom, 3648 Leland avenue. Both say the city council needs some housekeepers.

"The city should be run as well as a house where an efficient housewife knows how to use a mop and a broom," says Mrs. Milgrom, candidate in the Fortieth ward, now represented by Joseph C. Ross.

Can Handle Problems.

"A woman can handle child welfare and education more satisfactorily than men," says Mrs. O'Connell, candidate in the Twenty-ninth ward, whose alderman now is A. J. Horan.

Mrs. O'Connell was found yesterday in the house built in 1857 by her father, an employé of the Chicago surface lines for nearly 50 years. She had just returned from the Manley Junior High school, where she is an educational secretary.

"Aldermen should do something for the people in their wards," said Mrs. O'Connell. "Of course, we need cleaner streets and alleys, but I am especially interested in the physical welfare of people living in the ward. I believe the city of Chicago should have a woman in the council who, from her experience, is capable of handling these things.

"I am opposed to one thing; that is excessive taxation and waste in handling the taxpayers' money. And in this ward taxes are excessive for the class of property here."

Owe Much to Children.

Mrs. Milgrom was interviewed in her spick and span apartment. She is particularly interested in consideration for school and pre-school children.

"We owe children healthy bodies as well as an education," declared Mrs. Milgrom. "I think we ought to have free lunches for school children all over the city. The penny lunches are all right, but they are served only in the most congested districts. There are other parts of the city where children are just as hungry. Nor should free lunches be looked upon as charity any more than the free school books now provided.

"And we should have free dental and medical care of children. And pre-kindergarten schools where working mothers would be sure their children would be well cared for. As far as taxes are concerned, it is cheaper in the long run, providing these things for children. It is better to pay 50 cents a day keeping a child in the public school than $2.50 a day keeping him in the parental school, and a charge in later life."

Mrs. O'Connell and her husband, Bill, who is acting in the capacity of her campaign manager, are raising adopted twins, a boy and a girl, 11 years old. Mrs. Milgrom is the mother of two sons, one in high school and the other a student at Northwestern university.

CARAWAY SORRY ABOUT THINGS HE SAID OF HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Senator Caraway said tonight he was sorry if he had made any unkind remarks about President Hoover.

The Arkansas Democrat, who has been striving for relief for the people of his home state, made this statement in a radio address on the drought situation.

"I had been thoroughly convinced the people of my state and other states were hungry and cold and threatened with disease and starvation," he said.

"Feeling this way, I fought with every weapon at my disposal for relief for these people. But now that an agreement has been reached I am laying down my arms, and if I have said anything unkind I am sorry and want to apologize.

"I realized that Mr. Hoover was President and had his responsibilities. But I felt relief should be provided and I fought for it. If I said anything unkind about him I am sorry."

Senator Caraway said the relief agreement reached today by senate and house leaders was "satisfactory" to him.

DAUGHTER AIDS LYLE IN RACE; LEARNS POLITICS

Jane Lyle, 17 year old daughter of Judge John H. Lyle, candidate for the nomination for mayor on the Republican ticket, thumbed over the calendar which contains her father's speaking dates.

"Well, what's this Sunday speaking date marked down here?" she demanded of the roomful of secretaries, ward committeemen and others waiting for the judge in the Palmer house headquarters of the candidate.

"O, that's a meeting he's going to speak at," replied some one.

"No, he's not," she said. "He's got a date with me. We're going to a theater. He can't break dates with me like that. And he can't speak all the time or there won't be anything left of him when he gets to be mayor."

Goes to Father's Meetings.

Jane is well known among her father's political friends, "most of whom are always telling me that I haven't changed a bit since I was 4 years old, which is most discouraging," she says. Jane thinks politics an exciting game. She goes to more than half of the meeting at which Judge Lyle speaks, often sitting by him on the platform.

"It seems perfectly natural," Jane said, "and I'm not a bit scared."

She Likes Good Books.

"I don't mind admitting I like to read, and I like good books—not much modern stuff, except biography, though," said Jane. "I like to dance, but I can't stand sitting around playing cards and taking it awfully seriously.

"I want to study law, and father wants me to. Not that I want to have a career exclusively. Of course, I'll get married some day. But after I'm married I don't want to live the life a lot of young wives do—sleeping all morning and playing bridge all afternoon. I want to do something, and housekeeping isn't hard enough to take all a woman's time now."

Meanwhile she's going to the University High school.

"We've always lived right in this neighborhood," said Jane—they live at 6517 Stewart avenue—"and women are always stopping me and saying they knew my mother and father before I was born. I've given out a lot of pledge cards, but not to the neighbors, because all of them already had filled them out."

Mother Dead Many Years.

Her mother died when Jane was 5 years old. She's the only child.

"Every since I remember, my dad has taken me every place with him," she said. "I don't miss having a mother, because he and I are such good friends. I'd rather be with father than any one I know."

Judge Lyle's daughter is a good deal like him. She has the same honest blue eyes, except that hers may be bluer. She has the same sense of humor. Judge Lyle has demonstrated his tendency to think for himself, no matter how imposing a gangster may be or how swell an array of legal talent he has lined up when he appears in court. Jane declared that her father had brought her up to think for herself.

"I hate snobbery," she said with fervor. "So does father. But then, we have the same ideas about everything," she said, with her father's quick smile.

And one more thing that father and daughter have in common—they both dote on ice cream and eat several dishes of it for dessert whenever they can.

GIRL WHO ELOPED WITH EVERETT SAPP WINS HER FREEDOM

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Helen Shaner, the waitress who eloped with Everett Sapp of Rockford, helping him deposit evidence which led to the belief the couple was slain, won release from court charges today after pleading guilty to adultery.

Judge George Liddell said she had been "punished enough" and had "earned the contempt of the people of Rockford."

Miss Shaner promised to leave Rockford within a hour after her release, saying that her mother at Monticello, Ia., had sent her money for transportation.

Sapp, a married man, meanwhile faced a 60 day sentence and a fine of $500. He and Miss Shaner had concocted, they confessed, a "plant" in the shape of Sapp's blood stained automobile and clothes, to make it appear they both had been slain.

BACKED HOOVER IN '28 THINKING HIM DEMOCRAT

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Representative Charles Fleming "took up $900 worth of the Arkansas legislature's time" today in apologizing for voting in 1928 for President Hoover.

Charged with being a "Hooverite," Mr. Fleming said he voted for Mr. Hoover thinking he was a Democrat.

The house was in an uproar during his 50 minutes on the floor, and Mr. Fleming became incensed at cries of "Go on, Hoover."

"I resent any such remark," he said, "and you can't slur at me. I dare any of you to try it personally."

"When President Hoover was here in 1927 during the flood," Mr. Fleming said, "I promised him I would vote for him. I thought he was a Democrat, inasmuch as President Wilson elevated him into political prominence. But I'm sorry now that I voted for him, and I want you gentlemen to forget it. We all make mistakes."

Mr. Fleming said every minute he stayed on the floor cost the state $18, or $900 for the 50 minutes.

REVIEW RESULTS OF JUDGE LYLE'S VAGRANCY DRIVE

Prosecutors Find Gangs Cowed and Depleted.

An inventory of the accomplishments of the various law enforcing officials—since Judge John H. Lyle's vagrancy campaign stimulated action against the gunmen, racketeers and hoodlums, was given out yesterday by Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and James Brown.

The prosecutors, who have had charge of the state's attorney's end of the campaign to outlaw crime, took stock of the results attained so far as they prepared to renew the offensive against gang leaders who have been caught on the vagrancy warrants.

The Greatest Achievement.

Ditchburne and Brown said the most notable achievement which has come from the drive is the incarceration of three of the most notorious hoodlums and racketeers. Two of them—George [Red] Barker and James [Fur] Sammons—are in prison on felony charges, and a third, William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White, is facing possible electrocution for murder.

In the federal sector of the campaign the records show that five of the men listed by Judge Lyle in his vagrancy warrants are under sentence or about to be sentenced for violation of the income tax laws.

Another member of gangland's "big shots" is facing deportation to his native country. This man is Tony [Mops] Volpe, one time associate of the slain Diamond Joe Esposito.

Tells Lyle's Accomplishments.

"Judge Lyle's drive has accomplished two things which are of inestimable value to the prosecuting authorities and the police," said Prosecutor Ditchburne.

"The first is that he stripped the leading criminals of the community of their false glamour and showed them up for what they are—just ordinary thieves, robbers, and graduated keepers of houses of prostitution. The second is that he has created a public sentiment which has taken away from the criminals the deference shown to them in the past when they were arrested and taken into the courts.

Maker of Public Opinion.

"As a molder of public sentiment Judge Lyle is outstanding. Lincoln said: 'Public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment, nothing can fail. Without it nothing can succeed. Consequently he who molds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions. He makes statutes or decisions possible or impossible of enactment.'"

Mr. Ditchburne made it plain that he was not in any way attempting to detract from the credit due to his own superior, State's Attorney Swanson, and to District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, Chief Justice John P. McGeorty of the Criminal court, Acting Police Commissioner Alcock and others who have assisted in the war against the gangsters.

But he said that had not Judge Lyle cut through the maze of legal red tape and started out practically single handed after the gangsters, the present results might not have been accomplished.

After Cutting of Red Tape.

These results were summarized as follows:

Fur Sammons, rapist and murderer, known among gangsters as the man whose fingers became itchy for action as soon as he was in possession of a machine gun, was sent back to Joliet penitentiary to serve out thirty years of a murder sentence. He was considered an important cog in the Capone machine, both in the booze and labor rackets.

When Sammons appeared before Judge Lyle in the Felony court his whole record was revealed and the glamour was removed from his criminal career. He was convicted of rape when 16 years old and a short time later participated in the murder of a saloon keeper during a robbery. He was once under sentence of death.

RALPH CAPONE.

W. J. WHITE.

Barker Also Back in Prison.

Red Barker was returned to the penitentiary to serve out an unexpired robbery term. Until he was taken into the Felony court on a vagrancy warrant, Barker was considered one of the outstanding labor leaders. He had muscled his way into prominence in the labor field through various teamsters' unions.

In the Felony court Barker was revealed as a confirmed robber, who had been imprisoned in the Michigan and Illinois penitentiaries. He was once tried for murder, but was acquitted when witnesses recanted their testimony. It was after this crime that he started into the labor field.

White Faces Murder Trial.

Three Fingered Jack White, associate of Barker in labor racketeering, is a prisoner in the county jail awaiting trial for the murder of Policeman Edward Pflaume of Forest Park. In the Felony court White was exposed as a man with a long series of robbery charges piled up against his past, among them the sensational International Harvester company $80,000 pay roll robbery of 1926. He was also suspected of many bank robberies.

He is charged with having killed Policeman Pflaume while being sought for one of these crimes. He was convicted of the murder, but due to a Supreme court reversal, the case was dropped and was not revived until the searchlight was played on his past criminal exploits through the issuance of the vagrancy warrants.

Danny Stanton, a labor racketeer and a south side gangster who specialized in the beer traffic, is in the county jail facing extradition to Wisconsin for trial for the murder of Jack Zuta, vice chief. He is held without bonds pending the Illinois Supreme court decision on his appeal from the extradition decision given by Judge Philip Finnegan.

The Federal Prosecutions.

The results of the income tax prosecutions carried on against gangsters by District Attorney Johnson's office were listed by Prosecutor Ditchburne.

Ralph Capone, brother of Al Capone, has been sentenced to three years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $10,000. His case is now up on appeal in the reviewing court.

Frank Nitti, Capone financial agent, is already in the federal penitentiary under a sentence of 18 months. He also was fined $10,000.

Jack Guzik, Capone business manager, has been sentenced to five years and one day in prison and fined $17,500.

Terry Druggan and Frank Lake, two of the first violators of the Volstead act through manufacture and distribution of illegal beer, have pleaded guilty and are facing sentences of at least two years each on misdemeanor charges and fines of $10,000 each.

Druggan and Lake.

Druggan and Lake entered conditional pleas of guilty to the felony charges in the tax evasion indictments but cannot escape punishment under the misdemeanor charge regardless of what decision the federal Circuit Court of Appeals makes on the cases which are now pending before it.

In addition Druggan is under a sentence of one year in the county jail on a contempt of court charge. This sentence was imposed by Judge Lyle because Druggan had dodged appearance before him on the pretext of illness.

TONY VOLPE.

DANNY STANTON.

Druggan was exposed in court as a petty thief from the west side territory known as the "Valley," who rose to affluence and association with certain politicians through the money gained by his violations of the law. Lake was once a city fireman.

Eleven "Enemies" Accounted For

"All of the men now in trouble in the federal courts are found listed in Judge Lyle's original batch of 26 vagrancy warrants," said Prosecutor Ditchburne.

"Court records show that of the twenty-six men named in the original vagrancy warrants, nine are in jail or about to go to penitentiaries. A tenth man is facing deportation proceedings and an eleventh has lost his citizenship. The credit for the interest shown by the immigration department in the case of the tenth man, Volpe, belongs directly to Judge Lyle because he asked that federal inspectors be sent to his court to question Volpe when he was arraigned for vagrancy."

The deportation proceedings against Volpe are based on his conviction some years ago for counterfeiting war savings stamps. He served a 30 day sentence in jail and afterward went to Cuba, which the government charges is leaving the country. It is a deportable offense for one who has committed a crime involving moral turpitude to reënter the country.

Belcastro Loses Citizenship.

The man who lost his citizenship is James Belcastro, who was exposed by Judge Lyle as a west side gangster, charged often with being a bomber but never convicted, who has made his money through the labor racket. His naturalization certificate was abrogated in federal court after it had been shown that he gave false information when he took the oath of citizenship.

TERRY DRUGGAN.

JACK GUZIK.

Belcastro was shot by assassins after Judge Lyle's drive started and his trial for vagrancy has been delayed until he recovers from his wounds.

Six Flee from Chicago.

Of the remaining fifteen public enemies named in the original Lyle vagrancy warrants, Prosecutor Ditchburne said that apparently six had fled from the community. These are Al Capone, who is reported hiding in his mansion at Miami Beach; Frank Diamond, Frank McErlane and his brother, Vincent; Myles O'Donnell, and Leo Mongoven. Mongoven several times has been reported slain.

Capone is expected to be forced back into the jurisdiction of the state court by action against him in the federal court for contempt.

"Nothing would please me more than to try Al Capone for vagrancy," commented Prosecutor Ditchburne. "I feel sure that I can convict him. I do not believe that he can show that he ever had any legitimate employment from the time years ago when he operated the assignation house known as the Four Deuces."

Others Face "Vag" Trials.

Other public enemies have been corralled by the police and all have been arraigned in various branches of the Municipal court. Their cases will be tried as soon as they are reached on the dockets, Mr. Ditchburne said.

Among these are Dago Lawrence Mangano, west side gambling house keeper; Frank Rio, reputed Capone bodyguard; Edkard (Spike) O'Donnell, Joseph (Pepy) Fanelli, and Jack McGurn, Capone machine gunner.

George (Bugs) Moran, once leader of the north side gang, has already gone through one expensive vagrancy trial at Waukegan, Prosecutor Ditchburne pointed out. Although acquitted in Lake county, Moran probably will be retried in the Chicago courts later, it was said.

Joe Aiello, another leader of the north side gang, was slain by machine gunners while he was being sought on a vagrancy warrant.

Warrants Start the Fight.

"The issuance of the vagrancy warrants started the ball rolling and as a result we have had a different kind of coöperation in the courts, the police department, and from law enforcing officials throughout the state," said Mr. Ditchburne. "This is evidenced by the fact that Col. A. V. Smith, the state's attorney at Waukegan, tried to convict Moran when he was caught in Lake county.

"One of the unusual spectacles of the drive has been the conduct of these so-called big shots of gangland when taken into Judge Lyle's court. They actually cringed and begged for mercy. The minute they were taken before him they started to whimper for jury trials or changes of venue, anything to get out of his court. He certainly went a long way with his limited jurisdiction.

FRANK NITTI.

FRANKIE LAKE.

Criminal Leaders Cowed.

"This campaign, in addition to exposing the true character of the criminal leaders, has struck panic into their ranks and has demonstrated to them forcibly that after all they are social outcasts entitled only to the treatment accorded their type.

"It had become a custom with many public officials to curry favor with the hoodlum chiefs—some even to truckle to them—and the consequence was that many favors were given them which the smaller fry in crime did not enjoy. The leaders are now in the same class with any ordinary criminal due to the change in attitude since the vagrancy drive started.

"The criminals who once swaggered into the courts and were the recipients of deference by court attachés and even some judges have been made to feel that they are very small, despicable, and without influence. They have been put through the police bureau of identification—their photographs and their Bertillon measurements taken. If nothing else had been accomplished by this drive, this change in the attitude of officials toward the gangsters is worth the energy spent by those engaged in the campaign.

"All departments and agencies of our government are now awake to the serious problem of organized crime and the public mind has certainly been aroused as never before."

Two Other Effects of Drive.

Two other important effects of the vagrancy drive were listed by the prosecutor. First he pointed out that as a result of the high bonds set by Judge Lyle for the vagrants other judges are now following the same policy.

The state Supreme court practically upheld the high bond policy when it set $5,000 as the bail for Sammons on a vagrancy charge. Before that the usual bond was $400. In its decision on this case the Supreme court said that each judge must use discretion in fixing bond and must take into consideration the past of the defendant.

The grand jury recently fell into step with this policy by fixing a $50,000 bond for Claude Maddox, who was indicted on a charge of attempting to kill Police Sergt. James McBride of Bellwood, one of the state's witnesses in the pending trial of White for the Pflaume murder. McBride was shot on a street car in Maywood.

Gang Treasuries Depleted.

The other result of the vagrancy drive mentioned by Mr. Ditchburne, also has to do with Judge Lyle's high bond policy. The necessity for producing such large amounts for bail has handicapped the criminals financially so that instead of being defended by the best attorneys, they have had to go to court with less capable lawyers, the prosecutor said.

This was made possible by the demand in many cases for $10,000 cash bonds. The gangsters put up the cash, it was pointed out, and depleted their war chests in doing so. This, in addition to the general pushing around they have received which has seriously interfered with their rackets, has headed many of them toward the poorhouse, Mr. Ditchburne said.

"The racketeering in the labor field," he went on, "was practically stopped by grand jury action and the incarceration of three of the chief racketeers, White, Barker and Sammons. The laboring men contributed thousands to the gang war chests, but our raids and grand jury investigations stopped that source of revenue."

Sammons Called Killer.

The action against Sammons has probably saved more than one life, Prosecutor Ditchburne asserted, as he pointed to a report he has lately received from one of the undercover agents who have been engaged in gathering evidence against the gangsters.

"Sammons was known as one of the most dangerous of the machine gunners," he said. "It has been reliably reported that when some tough job was at hand Sammons was picked out because human life to him was of no value.

"We have been informed that when a job was at hand Sammons would be given the proper amount of liquor and a machine gun. He would fondle the gun much as a mother fondles her baby. Several guards would have to be sent along with Sammons to be sure that he did not take pot shots at innocent pedestrians for the sake of amusement. He is perhaps one of the most dangerous of the gangsters imprisoned by the drive."

TRAFFIC ARTERY BLOCKED THREE MONTHS

FAILURE OF CITY TO OPEN DIVERSEY AVE. AROUSES RESIDENTS

Failure of the city administration to take any action toward the opening of Diversey avenue, which is blockaded between Neenah and Natoma avenues, was reported yesterday to have aroused indignation among the residents and business men of the neighborhood.

The avenue, which is an important east and west traffic artery from River Grove to the lake has been closed for more than three months. The obstruction is a branch line of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, crossing the avenue on a dirt embankment one and a half feet high.

Wooden fences and large detour signs stop the motorist traveling either way on Diversey. Although the avenue is paved on either side, the motorist is compelled to go around several blocks out of his way. Should he detour south, passing around the Carey Brick company property, he would travel a mile before he could proceed again on Diversey.

Repeatedly efforts have been made at the city hall to remedy the situation, but nothing has been accomplished. The Illinois commerce commission recently ordered the city to rebuild the roadway to carry it over the tracks.

WIFE OF ATTORNEY HURT AS AN 'L' TRAIN CRUSHES AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. Anna Carmody, 1035 Wenonah avenue, Oak Park, wife of Michael L. Carmody, a Chicago attorney, was injured last night when the automobile her husband was driving was struck by a Garfield Park train of the Rapid Transit lines at the Wisconsin avenue crossing in Oak Park. The crossing is guarded by gates which had been raised to permit Carmody to cross the tracks.

Carmody was driving north in Wisconsin avenue when he stopped his car at the lowered gates. The gates were then raised and just as he drove on the tracks his car was struck by a westbound train.

Assistant State's Attorney Thomas A. Walpole of Oak Park ordered the arrest of Anton Bezouska, 50 years old, 2459 South Washtenaw avenue, the crossing gateman.

Three deaths in Cook county yesterday raised the motor toll for the year to 130. The victims:

B. E. Leims, 68 years old, 5330 Byron street. Died at the Belmont hospital of injuries received Feb. 3 when he was struck by an automobile at Irving Park boulevard and Lockwood avenue.

Anton DeGans, 40 years old, 2239 South Oakley avenue. Died at the county hospital of injuries received a few days ago when his motorcycle crashed into a street car at 22d street and Western avenue.

Lucinda Johnson, 40 years old, Negro, 4857 South State street. Died of injuries received Feb. 4 when she was struck by the automobile of Chester Konieczka, 4848 South Armitage avenue.

Unidentified man, about 35 years old. Died in the Southwest General hospital of injuries received last night when he was struck at 50th street and Ashland avenue by an automobile driven by Anthony Zemanski, 25 years old, of 4629 South Marshfield avenue. Zemanski is held pending the inquest today.

Ralph Riley, 42 years old, of Aurora, was fatally injured when he fell from an automobile being driven by George Dovey, also of Aurora. Riley fell from the car at a point near Gary, Ind.

George E. Wenger, 23 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Wenger, 2242 Pratt boulevard, a sophomore at Purdue university, was probably fatally injured last night in Lafayette, Ind., when the automobile he was driving was sideswiped by another car and hurled into a light post.

Hurley Favors Bill Giving Harbor to Lincoln Park

Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, yesterday gave his indorsement to the Britten bill, just introduced into the house of representatives, which would grant to the Lincoln park commissioners jurisdiction over the Lincoln park harbor and the right to create a strip of land extending out from the existing short line for 350 feet between Oak street extended and Ohio street. He explained to the house commerce committee that his department was in favor of the enactment of the bill.

RAIN BREAKS DRY SPELL, BRINGING RELIEF TO FARMS

Snow Falls in Chicago; More Is Promised.

A break in the weather, with rain and snow over wide areas, brought relief yesterday to the farming lands of the central states, which have suffered from the prolonged drought and mild temperatures. Snow fell in Chicago and elsewhere in northern Illinois last night and rain with somewhat warmer weather was forecast for this vicinity today. There is a probability of rain or snow here tomorrow, according to C. A. Donnel, the government meteorologist.

General precipitation is indicated for today in the central states, snow or rain in the northern portions, and rain farther south. Snow and rain are expected in many sections tomorrow.

"It is too early to predict how valuable the rain and snow will be," said Mr. Donnel last night. "Up to 7 o'clock the greatest amount of precipitation recorded was at Kansas City, where there was about a third of an inch of rain. We need, of course, several inches. The rain and snow probably will continue tomorrow and into Sunday in the northern and eastern sections of the middle west."

Storms Over Wide Area.

Reports from the southwest indicated that a low pressure area was moving northward from Texas, giving promise of more rain for the grain states, and storms were reported in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, and Iowa, as well as Illinois. Snow and sleet fell in portions of Iowa and Wisconsin. The snow was heavy in Milwaukee.

At Davenport, Ia., an airplane was forced down and the pilot, Aldrich Pavlovic, was killed.

A pelting rain struck Springfield last night, cheering the farmers in the drought afflicted areas to the south. At midnight the rain gave no indications of stopping soon. Moline reported sleet.

In Marion, Ill., a downpour last night gave promise of breaking the drought which has existed in Williamson county for nearly a year, broken only by small showers during that period. Pana, Ill., experienced its first general rain in six months.

Act to Conserve Water.

Meanwhile, in southern Illinois, where some 20 communities were afraid their water supplies would not hold out much longer, plans were made to care for the emergency and to restrict the local consumption of water. In Jacksonville, where Mayor Reeve reported the shortage would soon become acute unless rains brought relief, plans were being made to transport some 700 boys and girls in the state schools for the blind and deaf to their homes by train unless heavy rainfall is forthcoming.

In Johnston City, which has a large water supply, engineers were making a survey of the water in city reservoirs to determine how much could be supplied the nearby towns. Mine operators in the drought region are asking for water to keep their mines in operation.

Railroads, public utilities, and bottled water concerns conferred with officials of the Illinois commerce commission yesterday on plans to move relief supplies into the affected areas.

RIOT IN JAPANESE DIET; 12 INJURED IN DAGGER FIGHT

Naval Treaty Cause of Disorder.

TOKIO, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Bitterness over the London naval treaty caused a free-for-all fight today in an anteroom of the diet, during which a dozen persons, two diet members, were injured.

The fight started when a member of the Seiyukai [opposition] party wielded a dagger during hot criticism of Foreign Minister Shidehara's explanation in the diet that Emperor Hirohito by approving the treaty had proved it did not endanger the security of Japan. The explanation was regarded by government opponents as an effort to blame the emperor for any defect in the treaty.

Shidehara Is Guarded.

Fifty men milled about the anteroom, wielding clubs and hurling ash trays and anything they could lay their hands on.

Baron Shidehara, acting head of the government since Premier Hamaguchi was shot and severely wounded in November by a fanatical patriot, was in another room during the fighting. Heavily guarded, he left the building immediately.

The fracas followed two days of discussions of the budget, which several times nearly caused riots. The opposition blocked action on the budget and accused Baron Shidehara of "indiscreet" utterances when he was pointedly questioned as to the empire's security as a result of the London treaty.

"Slip of the Tongue."

A storm of protest arose when the foreign minister mentioned the emperor as having approved the treaty. Although Baron Shidehara quickly explained that his reference to the sovereign, regarded by the Japanese as descended from the sun goddess, was a slip of the tongue and that the government was wholly responsible, the storm continued to rage.

Before and since the emperor signed the treaty in October the Hamaguchi government withstood charges that its action in accepting somewhat less than 70 per cent of naval strength, as compared with the United States and Great Britain, had seriously weakened the defensive power of Japan.

To Show Spirit

Chicago found its spirit in the World's Fair of 1893 and the Century of Progress exposition of 1933 will give a new opportunity for the city to arouse the pride of its people and bring out the ideal of beauty in civic life.

This statement was made by Rufus C. Dawes, president of the exposition, at a luncheon of the Greater Central District association in the Stevens hotel yesterday. He declared that interest abroad and in other parts of the United States exceeded all expectations and that almost definite assurances had been received that the federal government would contribute $1,750,000 and the state of Illinois $500,000 toward the new fair.

Ald. Edward J. Kaindl, chairman of the council committee on railway terminals, asserted that prospects for getting the passenger stations on the south side down to one or two modern structures were the best in twenty years.

ASK APOLOGY FROM MENCKEN, "THAT JACKASS"

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 6.—(AP)—A new attack on Henry L. Mencken, editor of the American Mercury, broke out this afternoon in the Arkansas house of representatives, one member wanting to demand an apology from "that jackass" and another suggesting that "we have a few minutes of prayer" for him.

It all started earlier in the day when the house adopted a joint resolution condemning Mencken for a recent article criticising Arkansas in the Baltimore Evening Sun.

Mencken's comment on the resolution that "I didn't make Arkansas the butt of ridicule—God did it," added fuel to the flame.

HELD FOR BUS DRIVER'S DEATH.

Galesburg, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Walter Nelson, 24, is in jail today in connection with the death today of John C. Durre, 55, bus driver. Nelson's car, which witnesses said was proceeding at a fast rate, struck and killed Durre.

ASSASSIN FACES DEATH IN PLOT TO KILL MUSSOLINI

Admits He Came to Italy to Murder Premier.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 6.—Michele Schirru, a naturalized American citizen, today admitted he had come to Rome to assassinate Premier Benito Mussolini with a bomb, according to an official communique issued tonight by the government. Schirru is in a prison hospital recovering from wounds following his arrest, when he shot himself through the mouth after killing one of his captors and wounding two others.

The communique adds that Schirru told the police magistrates that he had been in contact with the enemies of the Fascist Italian government in Belgium and France and that he himself had manufactured the two high explosive bombs found in his hotel room, which overlooks the street Premier Mussolini passes in going to and from his office.

A mysterious note in the police revelations concerning the young anarchist is the fact that the place from which he came to Italy cannot be ascertained. At first the impression was given that he came here from the United States. Later this was changed to South America. Schirru is said to have "South American passports," of which there are eleven kinds.

Then tonight it was announced that Schirru came to Italy last March from the United States and that he was a reporter or a correspondent of an anarchist paper, Il Martello, published in New York.

From another source it was learned that Schirru's return to Europe was reported to the police of both France and Italy by Argentine authorities.

In the meanwhile the police are scouring Rome, Naples, Genoa, and Milan in search of Shirru's confederates. Police today arrested another man as he was alighting from a train from Milan. A search of his suitcase revealed anti-Fascist literature, and authorities claim he was connected with Schirru's plot. Several other persons are reported to have been arrested.

Anna Wokonski, the Hungarian adventuress, who lured the assassin into the hands of the police, is being held under nominal arrest. She maintains that Schirru told her nothing of his designs.

The prisoner will be tried before a special military tribunal for the defense of the state which was set up by Premier Mussolini after an attempt on his life at Bologna in 1926. Under this law he may be executed by shooting in the back.

10 Insane Criminals Escape as Fire Sweeps Hospital

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Ten criminally insane male patients and fourteen others were at large tonight as fire swept the west wing of the Central State Hospital for the Insane, Dr. W. S. Farmer, superintendent, said. Dr. Farmer said 600 of the patients were released as soon as the alarm was turned in and all except 24 had been accounted for.

OAK PARK MAN DIES IN FLORIDA BOAT ACCIDENT

Ocala, Fla., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Thirteen persons were rescued and one died today after an explosion set fire to a glassbottom boat on Silver springs, the largest known springs in the world.

Clarence A. Perkins, Oak Park, Ill., lost his life when he jumped from a boat to aid his wife who was struggling in the water. Physicians who tried to resuscitate Perkins said he died of a heart attack. Mrs. Perkins is in a hospital suffering from shock.

WINTERING IN ORLANDO.

Clarence A. Perkins, 65 years old, retired real estate broker of 328 North Scoville avenue, Oak Park, had been wintering at Orlando, Fla., with his wife, Julia, since shortly after Christmas of 1930. He and his wife intended returning to their Oak Park home this spring. Mr. Perkins had no children. He is survived by his widow and a brother, Fred H. Perkins, 742 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, and a sister, Mrs. W. F. Cousens of Ogunquit, Me.

Bartlett First to File in Evanston Mayoralty Race

Charles H. Bartlett, incumbent, was the sole candidate yesterday to file his petition in the Evanston mayoralty race. It was the first day for filing. John F. Hahn, his chief opponent, is expected to file next week. Edward W. Bell is unopposed for city clerk. John W. Moore and Fred Shaw filed for the office of city treasurer. There were fourteen petitions filed for aldermanic candidates and five for justices of the peace. March 3 is the final day for filing.

LAW CAN'T MAKE WIFE BE MOTHER, COURT DECIDES

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A wife cannot be forced by law to become a mother in New York state, the Appellate division of the Supreme court decided today, even though she may have promised before marriage to bear children.

This ruling, upholding the action of Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Byrne in dismissing without comment an annulment to Alfred A. Kahn of Brooklyn on that ground, is the first in the history of the high courts of New York.

Mrs. Marion Kahn, 23 year old stenographer, is the wife who carried her fight against acceptance of motherhood to the courts and won.

Attorney Joseph S. Robinson for Mrs. Kahn contended that since the legislature had enacted no law authorizing annulment for sterility or refusal to bear children, the courts could not do so.

ALCOCK REMOVES PALCZYNSKI AT REQUEST OF JURY

Capt. Joseph Palczynski of the Racine avenue station was suspended from the police department yesterday by Acting Commissioner Alcock in accordance with the recommendation made earlier in the week by the special grand jury which is investigating the police.

The suspension order is the result of charges that the Racine avenue police permitted three men accused of rape to be released after a hearing on charges of disorderly conduct. The young woman in the case is Miss Pearl Haller of Wausau, Wis.

Jurors Recommend Suspension.

The grand jurors after investigation placed the blame on Capt. Palczynski and recommended that he be suspended when he was unable to give the jury an explanation that was considered satisfactory. Acting Commissioner Alcock questioned the captain on Thursday and yesterday announced the suspension.

Capt. Michael Tobin, who last week was sent to the miscellaneous division, was brought out of retirement by Alcock to take the place of the suspended captain.

Bundesen Before Jury.

The special jury under the guidance of Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller spent the day questioning newspaper editors, Coroner Bundesen, and several representatives of reform organizations.

Coroner Bundesen was asked if he had come across any evidence of police corruption in his investigations of the Valentine day massacre or other gangster killings. The coroner, it was reported, had no concrete evidence to give.

Arthur Burrage Farwell, president of the Chicago Law and Order league, secretary of the Hyde Park Protective association, appeared at the jury room as a volunteer witness and asked to be given a chance to testify. The jury agreed.

Farwell Gives Testimony.

It was reported that Farwell's testimony concerned letters he had sent at various times to law enforcing officials apprising them that he had information that a speakeasy or gambling place was operated at a certain address. Most of his matters, it was said, went back beyond the statute of limitations.

The editors, it was announced, were called to see if they could give some helpful suggestions on how the jury can proceed in its inquiry to get at the bottom of the charges against the police department.

Among the editors questioned were Robert M. Lee of THE TRIBUNE, Harry C. Read of the Chicago Evening American, Harry Canfield of the Herald and Examiner, and Richard Finnegan of the Daily Times.

Others Called for Monday.

The Rev. Philip Yarrow, E. J. Davis and the Rev. Elmer L. Williams, editor of "Light'nin'," are to be called before the jury on Monday to be given the same opportunity to testify that was accorded to Albert R. Brunker, chairman of the civic safety committee. Brunker went to Boston last week and made a speech in which he was reported to have made sweeping charges of corruption. After hearing his testimony the grand jurors issued a statement saying that Brunker had given them no concrete evidence on which to proceed.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce, and Gordon Hostetter of the Employers' association are also slated for grand jury appearances on Monday if they can be notified in time. The jury, it is reported, wishes to question Col. Randolph in reference to speeches he has made and the facts on which he based his statements.

The jurors have been trying for several weeks to obtain a $50,000 fund to finance the investigation. Col. Randolph is to be asked, it was said, about the offer he was once reported to have made that his organization would finance the inquiry if the county board failed.

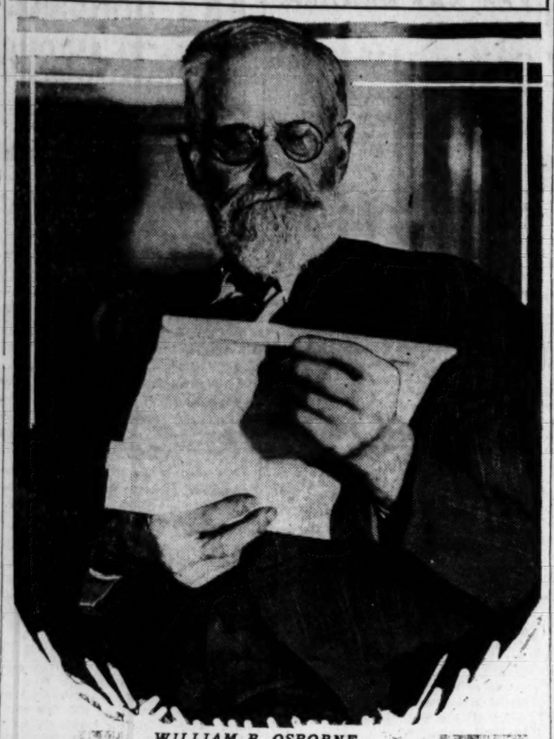
McGoorty Charges Police Job Buying.

Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court, addressing the Oak Park Civic league at a dinner last night, declared that he believed the special grand jury had no evidence on which to proceed, "not because that kind of evidence does not exist but because those who are purported to have the evidence have not come forward."

"The recognized head of the Chicago underworld has bought and paid for the promotions of a number of men in the police department," Chief Justice McGoorty said.

"Organized crime cost the United States $3,000,000,000 last year—Chicago contributing $100,000,000. There has been no time in the history of Cook county when there has been a greater need for organized public opinion along proper lines."

RECALLS CIVIL WAR DAYS



WILLIAM B. OSBORNE.

88 Years Old

William B. Osborne, civil war veteran, celebrated his 88th birthday anniversary at the home of his adopted daughter, Mrs. S. B. Merrick, 8210 Ellis avenue, yesterday. Osborne was a member of the 51st Indiana regiment, under Col. A. D. Straight. He participated in the capture of Gen. John Morgan, rebel cavalry raider, in July, 1863, at New Lisbon, Ind. Among his treasured possessions is a letter written by Col. Straight while that officer was in Libby prison.

JUDGE GRANTS CHANGE OF VENUE TO LEO BROTHERS

Leo V. Brothers, who was indicted for the murder of Alfred Lingle, was granted a change of venue yesterday from Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court. The case was sent back to Chief Justice John P. McGoorty for reassignment. Under the law Judge Prystalski had to grant the petition inasmuch as the defense charged that he was prejudiced.

Judge McGoorty said that he would select a judge to preside over the trial today. The attorneys for both sides talked about conferring on some suitable judge, but the chief justice indicated that the case would be assigned in rotation like any other case.

In the course of the discussion Attorney Robert E. Cantwell for the defense indicated that a continuance would be asked from the original trial date of March 3, fixed by Judge Prystalski. Prosecutor James McShane said that he would oppose such a request.

Grandson Must Change His Name to Get Estate

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Provided he changes his name to William Jay, William Jay Iselin of Katonah, N. Y., will receive the residuary estate of his grandmother, Mrs. Lucy Oelrichs Jay, who died Jan. 29. In her will Mrs. Jay directed that if her grandson did not comply with the conditions the residue was to go to her friend, Stoddard Hancock of Darien, Conn.

Mrs. Jay was the widow of Col. William Jay, descendant of John Jay, first chief justice.

RAIDERS SEIZE SAFETY BOXES OF PLUMBERS' UNION

A detective squad directed by Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson of the racket bureau yesterday seized five safety deposit boxes belonging to the plumbers' union. Books of the union had been seized previously.

Officials of the state's attorney's office, who acted on demands of members of the union, assert the books and the evidence obtained yesterday will show that union officials were diverting organization funds for their private use.

The raid was made on search warrants issued by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court. Cash, building bonds for the plumbers' building, theater bonds, and evidence tending to show collusion between union officials for the diversion of funds were obtained, it was stated.

Seized in Two Places.

Three of the boxes were seized in the Reliance Safety Deposit company, 1540 West Madison street, and the other two in the Security Trust and Deposit company, 159 North State street.

While the entire evidence had not been perused last night, Charles Mueller and Charles Lounsbury, assistant state's attorneys in charge of the racket bureau, indicated enough evidence had been obtained to show union members had been duped by their officials.

Last of Series of Raids.

Yesterday's raids culminated a series of incidents arising from the protests of union members over alleged racketeering among union officials. A series of meetings has been held in an effort to oust present officials.

CAPONE DELIVERS EDICT: NO MORE GENUINE LIQUOR

Warns High Life Rummers to Sell His Booze.

The independent bootleggers who cater to a select trade, which demands and is willing to pay for the best, have been given notice by emissaries of Al Capone that hereafter they will deal only in his liquor or get out of the business, federal authorities have learned from their informers.

Capone's latest gesture is in keeping with his ambition to get a working monopoly of the booze business in Chicago and vicinity, the authorities say, and is the culmination of the missionary work done by Teddy Newberry in the north side territory following the slaying of Jack Zuta and Joe Aiello and the banishment of Bugs Moran.

Ultimatum Is Delivered.

According to the reports reaching the federal investigators, Capone's representatives held a secret meeting with a group of the independent bootleggers, instructing them that no further importations of good liquor would be tolerated.

"You must take our booze or get out of the racket," the small fry were told. The meeting ended with a compromise, whereby the independents were permitted to dispose of their stock on hand, but further supplies were to be provided by the syndicate.

Customers of the better class bootleggers have been warned in recent days that the good stuff might be hard to get, according to reports, and the authorities say that virtually no Canadian liquor is being run in at present.

Good Liquor Toned Down.

The good liquor for the Capone trust comes from Florida, it is said. This is used as a base for the colored spirits sold under pretentious labels at $6 a pint.

One federal official said he was informed that Capone reprimanded his agents on his last visit to Chicago because their new business department was not functioning satisfactorily. Capone was told of Newberry's efforts to muscle in on the north side saloons, which, according to reports, have not been wholly successful, but he insisted on taking over the silk stocking trade which wants imported stuff.

Capone has always been equipped to supply the demand for imported wares, but the liquor is treated in Cicero or Melrose Park before reaching the consumer, prohibition officials say.

$112,000 REALTY SCHEDULED FOR MADDOX BOND

Claude Maddox, alleged head of the Circus gang, who was indicted for the attempted murder of Sergt. James McBride of Bellwood, was yesterday released on $50,000 bond. Maddox's friends put up $112,000 worth of real estate to cover the unusually large bond fixed by the grand jury and which Chief Justice John P. McGoorty refused to reduce. Sergt. McBride, an important witness against William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White, was shot while riding on a street car through Maywood on his way to the state's attorney's office.

TYDINGS CLAIMS DRYS PUT WINE IN VOLSTEAD ACT

Gift to Farmers for Support, He Says.

tion of wine amounting to 229,293,090 gallons in the five years before prohibition had increased to a total of 678,909,050 gallons during the five years ending with 1929. In other words, American citizens are enjoying three times as much "native value" today as they did before the dry law went into effect.

Not only is home wine made with government sanction, but it is made with financial assistance from the federal treasury, he pointed out.

"The federal farm board," he said, "had up to Jan. 20, 1931, loaned a total of $19,187,022 to the California grape grower coöperatives, of which $2,555,330 was loaned to Fruit Industries, Inc., a $30,000,000 corporation whose principal business is the manufacture and sale of grape concentrates for the manufacture of wine and champagne in the homes.

"We put a man behind prison bars for manufacturing a beverage containing two per cent of alcohol and then allow another man to manufacture a liquid containing 20 per cent of alcohol and furthermore lend him government money so he may expand his business and increase his profits."

It was here that Senator Sheppard interposed, asking by what authority Senator Tydings stated that the manufacture of liquor containing 20 per cent alcohol was permitted.

Tydings Comes Back.

Senator Tydings replied that he would furnish authority and proceeded to do so. He said he would show that any one could take "Vine-glo," the fruit industries product, turn it into wine, and do so legally.

"I deny that, absolutely," Senator Sheppard retorted.

"The courts, the prohibition director, the Wickersham commission, are all against the senator," Senator Tydings answered.

"In other words, the situation confirms the popular belief that the prohibitionists gave the farmer a wink when this law was passed and told him he could keep on making hard cider," said Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], a wet, "and they winked at the grape growers and said they could continue raising grapes for wine making purposes."

"Of course," assented Senator Tydings, "the rural sections were largely dry under local laws. So, in order to keep that force behind the Anti-Saloon league proposal, they put this joker deliberately into the Volstead act, so that the farmer could make his cider as strong as he wanted.

No Beer for City Fellow.

"But the city man couldn't have his beer, because we all know that in a great many farming sections any town which has over ten thousand people is looked upon as sinful, and every man in it as corrupt, and criminal. Righteousness is way out where the west begins, where cities are few and far between."

But section 29 of the Volstead act, so Senator Sheppard kept insisting, referred to "nonintoxicating" liquids.

Senator Tydings replied to him with the decision of a United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which declared:

"The government appears to have acquiesced in that construction by refraining from seeking a final interpretation by the Supreme Court of the United States. As the matter stands, then, when wine is produced in the home for home use, whether or not the product is intoxicating is a question of fact to be decided by the jury in each case. If this view stands, it becomes impracticable to interfere with home wine making, and it appears to be the policy of the government not to interfere with it. Indeed, the government has gone further and materials for the purpose of easy home wine making are now manufactured on a large scale, with federal aid."

Cites More Decisions.

Senator Tydings cited more court decisions. Senator Sheppard declared he could not show the one court decision necessary to prove his point—a ruling by the United States Supreme court.

"Why," argued Senator Tydings, "should the government give aid to the California grape growers and at the same time, through the law's discrimination, shut off a market for the grain growers' products?"

"To permit the manufacture of beer," he said, "would put a million and a half men to work, and beer is less than a fifth as intoxicating as the wine now permitted to be made."

Section 29 refers specifically to nonintoxicating cider and fruit juices," Senator Sheppard declared, and backed his assertion by reading the section:

"The penalties provided in this act against the manufacture of liquor without a permit shall not apply to a person for manufacturing nonintoxicating cider and fruit juices exclusively for use in the home, but such cider and fruit juices shall not be sold or delivered except to persons having permits to manufacture vinegar."

Senator Tydings declared himself delighted that the section had been read, and he read it again, emphasizing the four words "shall not be sold."

"Why not sell them?" he shouted. "Why not sell fruit juices that are nonintoxicating? Answer the question, if the senator can."

"The senator is trying to switch the whole proposition now," Senator Sheppard complained.

Tydings Talks On.

"Why not sell nonintoxicating fruit juices?" Senator Tydings chanted. "What harm can they do—pure, golden, nonintoxicating grape juice, apple juice, peach juice?"

Then he answered his own question. "It is because when the juice is put in the keg it is nonintoxicating," he said. "But from the day it is put in, it becomes more and more intoxicating. That joker was put in the law because old Dame Nature is perpetually at work, and it becomes unlawful to sell these intoxicating liquors—which is what they are after a few days. They wanted to let the farmer put his apple juice in a barrel without any alcohol being present, knowing that in sixty days he could get just as drunk on that cider as he could on the best whisky ever made."

Quotes Woodcock.

Senator Tydings went on to quote a colloquy between Director Woodcock and Representative Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] before a house committee. Mr. Woodcock's admission, Senator Tydings declared, made it clear that the prohibition bureau has accepted home wine and cider making as legal, but still insists that making home brew for home use is illegal, this despite the fact Mr. Wodcock found that home-made wine contained 12 per cent of alcohol and home brew only 3.4 per cent.

"The citizen who makes wine in his home," said Senator Tydings, "may drink a gallon every day, and go to chuch and contribute to the Anti-Saloon league, and be a respected, law abiding citizen. But his neighbor in the next pew, who has made home brew containing only 3.4 per cent of alcohol, is a criminal and a 'liquor outlaw.' He is a criminal, while the home wine maker has the protection of the government, including the prohibition bureau, thrown around him."

U. S. DRY AGENT SAYS HE HELPED BEAT PRISONER

Edwardsville, Ill., Feb. 6.—(AP)—M. H. Camplin, federal prohibition agent from the Springfield, Ill., office, admitted at a preliminary hearing today he held Bowman Poss, Highland saloonkeeper, while a fellow agent administered a beating to Poss.

The other agent, Camplin said, was H. G. Johnson, also of the Springfield office. A written statement from Dr. J. W. Kempf, Poss' physician, stated the saloonkeeper's jaw was broken, two teeth were knocked out, and his face was badly bruised.

The beating was administered during a raid on Poss' resort at Highland last Jan. 30. Camplin made the admission under cross-examination by counsel for Poss, who was held over for the grand jury after the hearing on a charge of possession of liquor. The agents made the raid without a warrant, evidence disclosed.

Camplin said the fight started when Poss attempted to upset a workbench behind the bar on which a glass of "colored spirits" was sitting.

Volstead Act Author Has Appendicitis Operation

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Andrew J. Volstead, "father" of the prohibition enforcement act, rested easily in Fairview hospital today after an emergency operation for acute appendicitis last night. Dr. N. H. Scheldrup described Mr. Volstead's condition as "very favorable." Mr. Volstead is legal adviser to the northwest prohibition administrator.

JAIL 1,000 RICH INDIA WOMEN FOR RUM PICKETING

Defy Order to Keep Away from License Sale.

AHMADABAD, India, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Nearly 1,000 women, many of them from the families of millionaire mill owners, were arrested today for picketing during an auction of licenses for liquor shops. All were released after the sale ended. The women had disobeyed police orders that no one approach the place where the sale was held.

Today's incident recalled the recent resolution adopted by the workers' committee of the national congress, which declared that picketing of shops dealing in liquor and foreign cloth was no part of the civil disobedience campaign but was "an exercise of the citizens' ordinary right so long as it remained strictly peaceful."

Another disorder occurred today at Karachi, where police dispersed natives who had attempted to interfere with the movement of foreign cloth from a warehouse to the railroad station.

100,000 Pay Tribute to Nehru.

ALLAHABAD, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Several persons received minor injuries today when a crowd of 100,000 flocked here to pay a last tribute to the aged pandit Motilal Nehru, who died early today at Lucknow. The body of the 69 year old Nationalist leader, who gave up a life of affluence to lead a passive fight for home rule, was brought here from Lucknow by his sorrowful followers. The body will be cremated.

The high court flag was lowered to half-staff and all marks of public sorrow were shown everywhere. Leading officials walked in the funeral procession of the fallen leader.

Nehru was released from prison, seriously ill, last month. His six months' sentence for his activities during the civil disobedience campaign had not expired, but serious results were feared from further confinement.

Plan New Parley in May.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Arrangements are being pushed for a second Indian round-table conference to be held in India about the end of April or the beginning of May, when, it is expected, details of the proposed new Indian constitution sketched at the London conference will be filled in with the help of Mahatma Gandhi and the all-India congress party.

It is proposed to send a British parliamentary delegation of seven, consisting of three Labor members and two each from the Tories and Liberals. Prime Minister MacDonald hopes to head the delegation. The other labor delegates are expected to be W. Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India, and Sir William Jowitt, attorney general. The Liberal delegates are expected to be Lord Lothian and Isaac Foot, and the Tory delegates Maj. Oliver Shanley, son of Lord Derby, and either Lord Peel or Sir Samuel Hoare.

Arrangements are being made to show a talkie of the final session of the London conference, including Prime Minister MacDonald's speech, all over India. Trucks with portable talkie machines will travel from one end of the country to the other.

BIG NAVY AIRSHIP REACHES PANAMA AT 80 KNOT CLIP

Los Angeles to Stay Aloft Until Dawn.

PANAMA CITY, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The big United States dirigible Los Angeles arrived over Panama City at 10:15 p. m. [9:15 p. m. Chicago time] tonight.

The airship, on its way from Lakehurst to participate in the naval war game in Panama waters, made good time on the latter part of its journey from Guantanamo, Cuba, and reached Colon at 9:20 p. m. [8:20 p. m. Chicago time].

It was believed likely the Los Angeles would remain aloft until daybreak, when it will moor to the submast on the Patoka, in Balboa harbor.

Helped by Tailwind.

The Los Angeles left Guantanamo at 8:20 a. m. During the early hours of the voyage the speed varied between 48 and 70 knots. Late this evening a tailwind assisted the dirigible and as it neared Colon it was reported to be making nearly 80 knots.

The Los Angeles arrived at Guantanamo yesterday after a 24 hour flight from Lakehurst. It will take part in the mimic warfare which will begin off the Pacific end of Panama canal late next week.

Fleet Nears Panama.

ABOARD U. S. S. ARKANSAS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The United States scouting fleet, en route to Panama to engage in maneuvers and a mimic warfare, was nearing Colon, Panama Canal Zone, tonight. The vessels slowed down somewhat so as to delay the arrival until after daylight tomorrow.

During the day the auxiliary vessels of the fleet proceeded direct, but the fighting vessels engaged in maneuvers. The destroyers operated apart to try out tactical formations, while the cruisers maneuvered with the flagship Arkansas.

All the vessels today reported the absence of contagious diseases on board and the fleet will enter port tomorrow with a clean bill of health for all hands.

Princess Beatrice at 73 Winning Fight for Life

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The gallant fight for life of 73 year old Princess Beatrice, aunt of King George and mother of Queen Victoria of Spain, tonight appeared fairly certain of being won. The princess, who has been seriously ill with acute bronchitis since last month, was reported in an official bulletin to be making slow but definite progress toward recovery.

FORFEITS SEAT AS BRITISH M. P. FOR FRAUD OF $11.97

Laborite Pleads Guilty to Rail Fare Swindle.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—T. I. Mardy Jones, Welsh labor member of parliament, forfeited his seat in parliament and a political career for the tiny sum of $11.97. He was convicted at the police court today for wrongfully taking from the Great Western railway two fares by sending nontransferable free tickets issued to him as a member of parliament to his wife and young daughter for the purpose of traveling to London.

Besides blasting his political career, Jones paid a fine of $10 and $78.75 costs, and Mrs. Jones was fined a like amount without costs. Both pleaded guilty. The court was packed when sentence was passed and those present heard a raking statement from the bench, wherein the judge asserted: "This is a disgraceful case you are involved in."

Mails Old Ticket Stubs.

According to complete admissions, Jones was unable to leave London because of an impending critical vote in parliament. A number of important documents were at his home which he was unwilling to entrust to the mails and he asked his wife to bring them to London.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jones were short of funds so he mailed the old ticket stubs, which had already been punched but not collected on a trip from Wales to London. His wife bought platform tickets to enable her and her daughter to board the train for London. Thereafter Mrs. Jones used her husband's ticket stubs from an intermediate station between Pontypridd in Wales and London. The daughter was ignorant of the deception.

The conductors discovered the fraud and passed on the worthless stubs to the railroad officials.

Resigns Commons Seat.

According to testimony, Jones attempted to arrange an adjustment during the investigation but failed to do so. He resigned his seat in the house of commons yesterday.

Jones, who is 52 years old, worked as a pit boy in a South Wales mine at the age of 12.

He is going back home, a poor man. His sole income was his parliamentary salary of $2,000 a year. Friends say he will probably return to the coal mines to earn a living.

KILL OFF LOOP PIGEONS? NO AND YES, SAY READERS

Opinions Vary on Extermination.

Several persons were interviewed yesterday to get their opinions on whether Chicago should exterminate its loop pigeons. In a letter from a reader published in THE TRIBUNE, it was suggested that Chicago get rid of its pigeons as New York City has done.

The first district police station was called. Did it receive any complaints concerning pigeons in the loop?

"Why, no," said Detective Charles W. Stine. "What kind of a person would it be who'd make a complaint against a pigeon? I'm a lover of birds myself. Look at the way Chicago people feed the pigeons. I used to have a flock eating out of my hand every morning at 5 o'clock at State and Madison when I was in uniform. Why, we've always had the pigeons with us."

A Loop Institution.

George A. H. Scott of the Illinois Humane society, who has been with the society for 31 years, said:

"The pigeons have been in the loop for 30 years, though in no such numbers as they are today. They've become a sort of loop institution. Of course, they're dirty. We've had lots of complaints from owners of buildings, asking us what to do to get rid of them. We always tell them that if they do exterminate them in any but a humane way we'll prosecute them."

One of the pigeons' favorite haunts is the Art institute. Members of the Art institute staff were questioned as to their opinions.

J. F. McCade, superintendent of the building, thought that the pigeons baked in a pie for the poor would be more useful than flying over the institute and building their nests in the north and south loggias there.

"The pigeons are beautiful, but they are almost a menace," he said. "I certainly object to them on the building, because they are so untidy. Their extermination would make it much safer for visitors coming into the building. If they were exterminated, we could clean the building up and then keep it clean."

Calls Them Picturesque.

Walter J. Sherwood, also a member of the Art institute staff, held another opinion entirely.

"Of course, they're very messy, but they are picturesque," Mr. Sherwood said. "I think their picturesque quality more important than their nuisance aspect. One of our former directors used to say they reminded him of the flock of pigeons at St. Mark's in Venice. It is famous the world over for its beautiful pigeons, and there is something lovely about pigeons around a great church or art institute, I think.

COMBINE PLANE AND DIRIGIBLE IN NEW AIRSHIP

Invention of Tennesseean Described at Capital.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Plans for a new type of airship, combining the dirigible's safety with the airplane's speed, and a project to establish regular trans-oceanic air service, were laid today before congressional committees.

The house military committee heard a description of the new craft from its inventor, George W. Hardin, superintendent of education for Greene county, Tennessee.

His idea is to attach an airplane body with two motors to the bottom of a small dirigible. In case of motor trouble, he said, the airplane could be detached and the dirigible containing the passengers and pilot would operate separately.

Bill Introduced.

A bill to provide $50,000 with which the army would experiment with Hardin's device has been introduced by Representative Reece [Rep., Tenn.].

Officers of the Goodyear-Zeppelin company told the senate commerce committee today dirigibles could increase the speed of trans-oceanic transportation as much as did the steamship. They insisted, however, a regular service could not be established without assurance of air mail contracts.

P. W. Litchfield, president of the company, said it was planned that two dirigibles, one German and one American, would be running on a weekly trans-Atlantic schedule by the summer of 1932. Two more ships are contemplated for a biweekly service.

Require Mail Contracts.

Experimental flights have so demonstrated "the feasibility of this transportation," he continued, "that the company is willing to build $5,000,000 ships for this service, without risk or obligation to the government."

But, he contended, private capital cannot be interested unless the government gives assurance of mail contracts.

Plans for a dirigible capable of carrying 10,000 pounds of mail, 80 passengers, a crew of 50 and a pay load of freight, maintaining a two and a half day service between New York and Paris, were outlined by J. C. Hunsaker, vice president of the Goodyear company.

Hunsaker and Litchfield appeared in support of the McNary bill for the "establishment and development of American air transport overseas."

BANKER'S DAUGHTER MISSING 12 DAYS; FAMILY ASKS HUNT

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Miss Florence Parker, 22 years old, stepdaughter of James MacDonough, a vice president of the Manufacturers' Trust company, has been mysteriously missing for the last twelve days, it became known tonight. The young woman has not been seen since she left for the MacDonough home in Yonkers a week ago last Monday.

Three days ago Mr. MacDonough made a confidential report of the case to the missing persons bureau of the New York police department.

Miss Parker had seemed perfectly happy at home and had no romantic attachments so far as her family was aware, Mr. MacDonough said. Her principal interest was in art, and she had spent a year or more in Paris devoted to its study. She had only a small amount of money, probably not in excess of $5, with her when she left ostensibly to keep a luncheon engagement in Manhattan.

Miss Parker is five feet two inches tall and weighs about 100 pounds, with dark brown hair and eyes, and olive skin.

YOUTHS HELD FOR ROBBERIES.

Charged with three robberies, Frank Pappas, 22 years old, 618 South Throop street, and Fred Mullen, 24 years old, who refused to give an address, were held to the grand jury in bonds of $50,000 each yesterday by Judge Francis Allegretti in Boys court.

COUNTY SLASHES MORE; UNABLE TO BALANCE BUDGET

Still $1,500,000 Over Estimated Revenue.

After trimming down the appropriations of a half dozen departments the finance committee of the county board last night found that it still must cut out approximately $1,500,000 more or increase its revenue estimates by that amount to make both ends meet in the 1931 county budget.

When the committee adjourned at 11 p. m. it had hacked the total appropriations down to $25,789,000, while the county controller estimated the year's revenues at $24,339,000. The committee will attempt to bring the two figures together at a special meeting tomorrow afternoon.

Suggest Change in Figure.

Unwilling to cut appropriations further, several commissioners suggested that the estimate of 12 per cent for loss and cost of tax collection be changed to 10 per cent, bringing up the estimated revenue by $900,000. The city estimate was 9 per cent and the sanitary district 15 per cent. Another proposal was to hoist the estimates of receipts from delinquent tax fees.

State's Attorney Swanson appeared before the committee during the afternoon and protested strenuously against contemplated cuts in his appropriation. The state's attorney is asking an additional $125,000 over expenditures last year.

At one point in the discussion, Swanson rapped his fist on the table and declared: "Leave my office alone! All this picking around to make cuts is wrong."

All Make Same Protest.

"That's what they all say, Judge Swanson," replied Mrs. Glenn Plumb, a committee member. "All say leave their offices alone."

Deputy Controller O'Connor asserted that substantial reductions must be made in every office and that Swanson's was no exception. The final appropriation for his office, however, was left unsettled.

The board of assessors was hard hit by the trimming process. Scores of deputies, clerks, supervisors and messengers' jobs were eliminated and the whole appropriation reduced to $824,-000 from the $1,070,000 the assessors said was necessary.

Famous Tenor's Son to Sing

Enrico Caruso, who is soon to make his debut over the radio, practicing under the direction of Adolfo de la Huerta, former president of Mexico. [Acme-P. & A. Photo.]

New Altitude Record

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Adolfo de la Huerta, leader of two revolutions and once provisional president of the southern republic, is again in rebellion, this time at the head of an artistic revolt.

A frail, timid girl with wide eyes marched into De la Huerta's voice studio today, stood before Maestro Adolfo and critics gathered there, and sang the highest note ever produced by a human throat—a "C," three octaves above middle "C."

A critic refused to believe his hearing, so another young woman, less timid but scarcely more robust, marched in and did the same thing. Then the two girls went up another note in the scale, to "D," above the witching high "C," just to make it unanimous.

When a De la Huerta tenor strolled in and sang an "F," above that much slighted high "C." The highest male note since Rubini, monarch of tenors early in the nineteenth century, the revolt was on in earnest.

The feminine vocalists were Leonor Rosas and Cora Montes, coloratura sopranos. The tenor was Luis de Ibarguen.

"I like this kind of revolution better," remarked De la Huerta.

TIGER ATTACKS CIRCUS WOMAN TRAINING HIM

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Mabel Stark, animal trainer, narrowly escaped death today when attacked by a Bengal tiger she was training for a new act. The tiger leaped on her from behind, gashed her arms and slashed her over one eye. Helpers rescued her.

She was knocked down, rolled on to her back, and was attempting to draw her gun when attendants fought off the tiger with long steel prods.

Miss Stark had her wounds dressed and resumed work with 16 other tigers she is training.

BELLE GETS 30 DAYS IN JAIL FOR FLOUTING LAW

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Belle Livingstone, who has boasted of her triumphs as the hostess to the nobility of England and has startled Park avenue with her series of salons, was sentenced to thirty days in prison today by Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey for violating a personal injunction against violating the prohibition law.

Belle, whose lawyer, Samuel Weinsed, said in pleading for mercy, is sixty years of age, solemnly and unsmilingly faced the judge when he pronounced sentence.

JURY ABSOLVES WIFE IN KILLING OF HER HUSBAND

Justifiable Homicide Is Inquest Verdict.

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned late yesterday by a coroner's jury at an inquest in the Belmont hospital in the case of Mrs. Alice May Barry, 40 years old, who shot and killed her husband, John, a stereotyper, in their home at 4140 Mason avenue on Thursday night.

Mrs. Barry calmly told the jury that, because her husband had threatened her life, she recently obtained a pistol belonging to J. C. Krug, half brother of her husband, loaded it, and removed it from a closet shelf to a dresser drawer in Krug's room. After Barry had ordered Krug, for 11 years a roomer in their home, out of the house on Thursday night, and declared that her mother, Mrs. Alice McGovern, must go as well, she reproached him, she said. They quarreled, he struck her and choked her and pulled her hair, and she fled to the bedroom where the gun was hidden, she said.

"I took it out of the drawer," she testified. "He was right up on me. Before I knew it it went off. He never spoke, but dropped at my feet."

In response to questioning Mrs. Barry said she had never before pulled the trigger of a gun.

"It would take considerable effort to pull this one," a deputy coroner said. "Did you point it at him? Show us how you did it."

"Just like this," Mrs. Barry said, taking the weapon.

Last Easter her husband became ill, she said, and for six months appeared mentally deranged. Three months ago he returned to work, but still suffered from delusions, she testified.

NEW YORK BANK LENT 12 MILLION TO ITS FRIENDS

President Is Pictured as an Autocrat.

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Loans of nearly $12,000,000 to affiliates were made by officials of the closed Bank of United States without knowledge of the loan committee and with only the tacit approval of the executive committee of the bank, the committee whose task it was to pass upon all loans, witnesses before Referee Robert P. Stephenson testified today in the bankruptcy proceedings of four of the bank's many affiliate corporations.

Bernard K. Marcus, president of the bank, and Saul Singer, executive vice president, were pictured as having acted as virtual dictators in the handing over of millions of the bank's money to the now bankrupt subsidiaries.

Bar Loan Committee.

Michael J. Kletz, a vice president of the bank and a member of its loan committee, told Mr. Stephenson all members of the loan committee were excluded from the room by Mr. Marcus and Mr. Singer when the huge loans to the affiliate companies were discussed by the executive committee.

The examination before Referee Stephenson was conducted by James N. Rosenberg as counsel for the Irving Trust company, receiver for the bankrupt affiliates of the bank.

John J. Girolamo, assistant cashier, testified that large loans, sometimes in excess of $500,000, would be voted by the executive committee to the affiliate companies without discussion, criticism or objection. Mr. Girolamo termed this procedure as "rather queer." He said that for a while the names of the Bankus, City Financial and Municipal Financial corporations came up at every weekly meeting of the executive committee of the bank in connection with approval of increased loans to these affiliates, loans which eventually reached the $12,000,000 total.

Another Quiz Busy.

While this testimony was being given before Mr. Stephenson, the county grand jury heard the testimony of Simon H. Kugel, vice president and director of the bank; H. S. Lipschutz, chief bookkeeper for the bank and affiliates, and treasurer of Bankus corporation, and several bank clerks. Mr. Kugel signed a waiver of immunity. The presentation of evidence was conducted by Max D. Steuer as assistant attorney general.

Following the grand jury's session, Mr. Steuer went before the appellate division and argued an appeal brought by attorneys for Mr. Marcus and Mr. Singer in a suit challenging the legality of the public hearings conducted by Mr. Steuer. The court reserved decision.

Judge Caught with Wine in Cellar; Goes to Trial

West Plains, Mo., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—A judge was granted a change of venue today. Judge Robert Hamilton of Pomona, for many years judge of the Howell county Circuit court, was arrested in a raid on his home recently and officers charged several gallons of fine wine were found in the cellar. Today he was granted a change of venue to the Carter county Circuit court.

Wife, "Forced to Swallow Cigaret," Gets Divorce

Marion, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Burwell F. Rader, 30, of Herrin, was granted a divorce from her husband, Robert Rader, by Judge R. R. Fowler in Circuit court. Mrs. Rader testified that her husband became enraged because she smoked a cigaret and forced her to swallow one that was lighted. Her husband did not appear to contest the suit.

INQUIRY CONSIDERED IN ACTRESS' ATTACK ON COMEDIAN KEATON

KATHLEEN KEY.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—A district attorney's investigation loomed today into the troubles between Buster Keaton and Kathleen Key, actress, whom Keaton accuses of beating him up. Edwin Loeb, an attorney with whom Keaton conferred, said Buster was personally satisfied to consider the matter closed at the stage where Miss Key was removed from his dressig room to the Culver City police station last Wednesday and then turned loose.

At the Metro-Goldwn-Mayer studio, where Keaton is employed as a highly paid film star, it was stated that a request for a district attorney's inquiry was being considered. Buron Fitts, district attorney, said that if any investigation is requested and it appears there is a basis for such, an inquiry will be started.

Miss Key remained in seclusion today, although she telephoned some of Keaton's friends to inquire if he had been hurt in the mêlée in which windows and furnishings of his dressing room were smashed prior to her temporary seizure by police.

RUSSIA? YOU CAN HAVE IT, CRIES ENGINEER, BACK

Shoes $60 and Butter $6 Per Pound.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Philip Harty and Mrs. Harty of Newark, N. J., stepped down the gangplank of the Hamburg American liner New York tonight and heaved hearty sighs of relief. They were back in a country where shoes cost less than $60 a pair and butter not quite $6 a pound. They had come back from Russia.

Harty, a mechanical engineer who went to Russia last August to investigate rolling mills in Siberia, had much to say, and little of it was complimentary to the soviet or the so-called "five year plan" of social and industrial rehabilitation.

"The five year plan is not collapsing," Harty remarked, "it has collapsed. The people are in rags. There is depression everywhere.

Only Youngsters Loyal.

"The only ones satisfied are the young generation who have been taught the soviet ideas from the start. If I learned one name in Russia, it was their equivalent for 'capitalist.' For it was hurled at both my wife and myself wherever we went."

Harty laughed when told of reports that Russia needed 12,000 American engineers for her five year program.

"That's the funniest thing I have heard yet," he chuckled. "They are already defeated and know it. They are without technical training. They will not listen to an American. Why Americans are sent there is more than I can understand.

Couldn't "Fire" His Men.

"As a superintendent I could not discharge men because they were incompetent. No recommendation for improvements was considered unless it went to a council and then there was no prospect of action for weeks."

Transportation service is bad, he said.

"One time I became ill," he went on. "I sent for a doctor. Meantime I took some medicine I had supplied myself. Two days later the doctor arrived. Later I was sent to a hospital. It was filthy. They wanted to operate on me for kidney trouble. I refused. After an X-ray examination the doctor admitted his diagnosis had been wrong."

ASSEMBLY QUIZ ASKED IN STATE BANK FAILURES

Council Group Also Seeks Rail Home Rule.

An investigation by the general assembly into the failure of state banks in Chicago was recommended yesterday by the council committee on judiciary. If the council concurs the legislature also will be asked to follow its investigation with recommendations for prosecutions when criminal neglect or intent is found, and for strengthening the laws controlling state banks if that is found necessary.

Legislation giving Chicago home rule over railroads in the matter of track elevation also was approved by the committee. The legislature will be asked, if the council approves the committee's stand, to adopt a bill drafted by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] who has been fighting two railroads in his ward that are delinquent on track elevation work.

Never Pay More than 30%.

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], who sponsored the banking investigation resolution, declared that no state bank that has failed has even paid more than 30 per cent on its deposits. He said that either the state law governing the operation of the banks is loose or the state officials are lax.

In reply to the alderman's statement, State Auditor Oscar Nelson said that 95 per cent of the bank failures in Illinois are in the process of liquidation and that one downstate bank has paid one hundred cents on the dollar.

"Most of the bank suspensions in Illinois are of such recent date," Auditor Nelson said, "that the receivers have not yet had time to fully liquidate. "While the average return to depositors to date may be 30 per cent, this is no indication whatever that a much larger percentage of return to depositors will not be forthcoming as the liquidation proceeds.

Take Up Rail Issue.

On the home rule resolution, Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th] declared that the city should seek complete home rule and pointed out the action of the Illinois commerce commission in many public utility matters, stressing particularly its recent action in permitting the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad to retain its tracks over Plymouth court and Taylor street, although the authority granted to the railroad by the city has expired.

"If we went down there with a complete home rule bill, we wouldn't get far," said Ald. Nelson. "When we get a Chicagoan for governor we will stand a better chance."

The committee also approved a resolution requesting the legislature to cut the three cent gasoline tax to one and one-half cents, and appointed Ald. John Toman [23d], the sponsor of the gas tax reduction, as head of a subcommittee to watch all legislation in Springfield that affects Chicago.

DRILLERS STRIKE OIL, GAS ON FARM IN LAKE COUNTY

As drillers were boring for a water well yesterday on the farm of Charles True, four miles west of Lake Forest and four and a half miles southeast of Libertyville, oil and gas began spouting so hard that the drillers' rigging was shattered. The bore had reached a depth of 165 feet. Last night the well was shooting oil, mud, water and stone 200 feet into the air every half hour with the regularity of an Old Faithful. Mr. True immediately began making arrangements to have the flow tested by oil experts. Hundreds of farmers and citizens from the neighboring countryside flocked to the True place and considerable excitement exists over the discovery.

PRINCE OF WALES TALKS SPANISH AND IT'S IGNORED

Every One Replies to Him in English.

BY GERALD MARTIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA, Canal Zone, Feb. 6.—The prince of Wales did his darndest to try out his knowledge of Spanish upon first setting foot on the American continent this morning. He has been taking an intensive Spanish course during the last few weeks and had practised upon numerous Latin-Americans aboard the liner Oropesa during her voyage across the Atlantic.

But everywhere here he met with an English response, for Panama is bilingual and every notable in Panama speaks English. Panama's representative, upon greeting the prince at Cristobal, replied to his Spanish greeting in English, and Dr. J. J. Varrarino, foreign secretary, on receiving the prince at Panama's airport did likewise.

He Finally Gets Discouraged.

The prince of Wales greeted President Ricardo J. Alfaro in Spanish, but the president, who had been in Washington for eight years as minister, responded in perfect English.

Wales looked worried, with a sort of "what's the use" in his smile, but he still persisted in greeting Panama citizens in Spanish, even to the raising of his hat in Latin style when being introduced. His brother, Prince George, eventually whispered:

"Hold your Spanish until we make Talara, Peru, and then give the Talarans the works."

Fly Over Canal.

The princes arrived at the Paitalla airport from Colon at 10:30 a. m. in two tri-motored planes. They were escorted across the isthmus by two other planes.

The princes enjoyed their air trip over the canal. During the journey across the isthmus their planes hovered low and circled around the locks and cuts, as well as over the city of Panama.

The steamship Oropesa entered Cristobal harbor at 7:30 a. m. The coast guns boomed a salute. Arriving alongside the pier, autos were ready to carry the party to France field, from where they left for a half hour flight over the canal.

Calls on United States Governor.

After arriving here the princes called on President Ricardo Alfaro, where toasts to Great Britain and Panama were exchanged. President Alfaro showed the prince of Wales the bullet holes, the result of the recent revolution, as well as the damage to the palace, which has not yet been repaired.

The prince of Wales later called on Gov. Harry Burgess at Balboa Heights and then visited the British legation, where he reviewed British veterans of the world war and the Boy Scouts. He then lunched informally with Minister Wallis.

The royal party late tonight boarded the Oropesa, which was to sail at midnight for Chile.

$1,624 GIFTS PUSH GOOD FELLOW FUND OVER $90,000 MARK

Despite the gloomy outlook for many needy families yesterday as the mild weather changed to cold, the day wasn't dark for the 304 families being maintained by TRIBUNE Good Fellows. Gifts and pledges totaling $1,624.34, one of the largest daily totals to arrive for a week or more, pushed the Good Fellow fund over the $90,000, with $394.47 to spare.

The change in the weather, however, may mean added privations for many of the families of unemployed men in the city. There is plenty of time yet this month and next for much cold weather.

Your contribution to the Good Fellow fund may make possible the support of additional families which otherwise would be without food and fuel. All families under the Good Fellows' care are selected by the recognized social agencies: The United Charities, Salvation Army, Central Charities bureau [Catholic], and the Jewish Social Service bureau, which have made personal investigation into their needs.

3 DAYS TO GO, RELIEF DRIVE IS $628,249 SHORT

With three full working days remaining before completion of the $5,000,000 relief drive being conducted by the governor's unemployment commission, collections last night stood at $4,371,752, leaving a deficit of $628,249. Yesterday's contributions, headed by $47,000 from Wilson & Co. and its employés, totaled $66,372. A provisional donation of $500, dependent upon pledging of the full quota, was sent in by the Royal Tailors.

A gift of $2 from a woman was accompanied by a letter explaining that illness of her husband forced the family to be dependent upon gifts from a friend. Expressing the belief she was fortunate to have such a friend, she gave the donation to others who "are not so fortunate as to have a friend to aid them while they are in need."

tion of the public which could not afford to purchase complete strings.

Prior to the reorganization on Jan. 1 complete control of the company is said to have been vested in Mr. Juergens. The eldest son, William Jr., was treasurer and the other son was vice president. O. R. Hirt, now out of the company, was secretary.

The reason for reorganization remains obscure. Whatever the cause, the jewelry trade learned shortly after the new year that the father, his sons, and Hirt had resigned as officers and directors and that the new president was Walter J. Rinn, vice president of the Philip Rinn company, a lumber company.

No Experience as Jeweler.

Mr. Rinn, prior to becoming president of Juergens & Andersen, had had no experience in the jewelry business. His wife, however, with Mrs. Vera Andersen Stenson, controlled the preferred stock. Under the reorganization Mrs. Stenson's husband, Robert Stenson, hitherto sales manager of the firm, became secretary. Three other stock holding executives, Paul C. Rietz, Fred Kline, and Theodore Tracy, were named directors.

Discussing the firm's affairs following announcement of Mr. Juergens' death, Mr. Rinn said the principal reason for the reorganization was the former president's protracted ill health. He admitted that Juergens and Andersen had experienced minor difficulties following the market crash, but denied any intent on the part of the officers to liquidate the assets.

"This concern is capitalized at $1,100,000, and has assets of twice that amount," said Mr. Rinn. "It is a going concern and possesses ample credit. Any rumors to the contrary are false."

Immediately following his resignation Mr. Juergens left the city for Mud Haven, a health resort near Minneapolis, in hope of recuperating his health. His departure occasioned comment in the jewelry trade at the time. Returning home about a week ago, his health seemed further impaired, and at the advice of his physician he was planning to go to the Sacred Heart sanitarium at Milwaukee when he ended his life.

Girl Bandit and Thirteen Reds Executed in China

HANKOW, China, Feb. 6.—(AP)—One girl bandit and thirteen convicted communists were executed here today as the authorities continued their campaign against the Reds. Communist attacks upon Yangtze river shipping have continued for a stretch of 300 miles along the stream above Hankow. The Reds have used rifles, trench mortars and field guns against passing craft. Reds near Shasi are constructing six miles of trenches along the south bank of the Yangtze as protection from the fire of patroling gunboats.

DOLLAR PURCHASING POWER GAINS 25 PCT., BRADSTREET REPORTS

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—If you have fewer dollars in your pocket than you had a year ago it may be some comfort to know that, theoretically at least, each dollar you have today is almost as good in raw commodity purchasing power as a dollar and a quarter was a year ago.

Bradstreet's monthly commodity price index, as announced today for Feb. 1, showed a decline of about 2 per cent from Jan. 1, of more than 19 per cent from Feb. 1, 1930, and a drop of 35 per cent from Dec. 1, 1925.

This indicates the lowest level of commodity prices since Jan. 1, 1915, and shows current costs are less than 7 per cent higher than they were at the outbreak of the world war.

January saw the 16th consecutive monthly decline in this index. There was a slackening of the recent sag in breadstuffs, live stock, hides, and leather.

GOV. LA FOLLETTE SHAKES UP STATE RAIL COMMISSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The expected shakeup of the Wisconsin railroad commission came today with Gov. Philip F. La Follette naming Theodore Kronshage, Milwaukee, and David Lilienthal, Chicago, to two of the three places on that body. A. R. McDonald remains as the only old commissioner.

The appointments are in line with the general La Follette policies of seeking broader public rights in the direction of extending public ownership of utilities and in regulation. Mr. Kronshage is a member of the La Follette faction and has been the leading figure in trying to get the public ownership program of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities enacted into law.

Mr. Lilienthal has won a reputation as an advocate of lower rates and closer regulation of utilities.

Mr. Kronshage is appointed for the six year term, succeeding Adolph Kanneberg, who has been offered a position by La Follette.

Mr. Lilienthal takes the place vacated through the resignation of Philip H. Porter after the election of La Follette. His term is for two years.

COUNTY REALTY VALUE FOR 1929 NEAR 3½ BILLION

$9,197,615 Cut from Assessors' Figure.

The assessed valuation of all taxable real estate in Cook county for 1929 is $3,431,348,998.6 The board of review yesterday completed its work of reviewing the assessments and turned the books over to County Clerk Sweitzer. The 1929 realty assessment total is $95,577,722 more than the $3,335,771,272 figure for 1928.

As they finished the work on the real estate assessment books, the reviewers announced that the other assessment lists—personal property, capital stock and railroad assessments—will be given to the county clerk by Feb. 15.

Disagree on Time Needed.

Upon receiving these books the clerk may then start the task of fixing the rates for the 38 townships of the county. Just how much time this will require is a matter of debate among the taxing officials. The county board has been told that the work can be done in three weeks. Mr. Sweitzer, however, declares that it will take seven weeks.

After the rates are computed another ten days will be needed by the county treasurer for mailing the bills to the taxpayers. Should the county clerk complete his work in three week the bill will be in the hand of the taxpayer not more than ten day before April 1, the last day on which taxes may be paid without a penalty.

If seven weeks is required to fix the rates the taxpayers will receive their bills several weeks after the penalty date. The county commissioners are undecided as to what to do about the penalty date and have referred the question to their legal advisers.

Reduction of $9,197,615.

The $3,431,348,998 figure of the board of review represents a reduction of $9,197,615 from the figures fixed by the board of assessors. This reduction, taxing officials said, is perhaps the smallest in history. In 1928 the reviewers cut the assessors' figures by $28,187,942 and in 1927 the reduction was $362,411,960.

Out of a total of 1,300,000 assessments the reviewers made changes on only about 7,000, although more than 40,000 complaints had been filed against the assessments. The largest reduction was one of $2,207,104 for Hyde Park. The North Town assessments were reduced $1,634,475; West Town, $1,571,870, and Lake View, $1,214,290.

Most of the reductions were made in the city, the assessors' figure of $2,536,414,539 for the city being cut $9,447,095 by the reviewers.

Valuations Are Compared.

Mrs. Robert Sturgis of Lake Forest Wins Divorce

Mrs. Elizabeth Hammond Sturgis was granted a divorce yesterday and the custody of her two children by Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady at Waukegan. She charged desertion and there was no contest. Her husband, Robert S. Sturgis, is manager of the Savage Products Distributing company, 53 West Jackson boulevard. Both are members of the Lake Forest social colony. Mrs. Sturgis, a niece of Cyrus Hall McCormick, filed her suit last Wednesday. It was not scheduled for hearing until the March term of court, but a special agreement was made by which Judge Dady heard it yesterday.

Executions Delayed

RICHARD SULLIVAN. FRANK H. BELL.

CHARLES ROCCO. JOHN POPESCUE.

Four convicted murderers were yesterday granted stays of execution pending the review of their cases by the Supreme court. The writs of supersedeas are compulsory under one of the new statutes passed by the legislature. The men, who were convicted in pairs, were scheduled to be electrocuted Feb. 13.

Frank H. Bell and Richard Sullivan were to be executed for the murder during a robbery of Christ Patras, North Clark street restaurant manager. They were convicted after a sensational trial in which each tried to blame the other for firing the fatal shots. They had to be specially guarded because of feeling which developed between them.

John Popescue and Charles Rocco were scheduled for execution for the murder of Courtney Merrill, south side banker. He, too, was killed during a robbery. They pleaded guilty to the crime, but Judge Philip Finnegan sentenced them to death, despite their pleas for leniency.

MOVE TO UNITE REALTY OWNERS FOR TAX CHANGE

A move to unite property owners against the tax levying and tax spending methods used in Chicago and Cook county was started yesterday by the Chicago Real Estate board. In an announcement sent out by the board all property owners are invited to enroll with the real estate interests for legislation to cure taxation ills.

"Tax spending bodies are effectively organized," said the announcement. "The property owner, forced to defray an inequitable proportion of governmental expense, having a clear knowledge of tax problems and conscious of the alarming conditions which bear down upon him, must likewise have a far reaching, unified, and effective organization and medium of expression."

The board already has created a property owners' division to work out a comprehensive program of revenue law revision.

Abolition of the boards of assessors and review was recommended yesterday by William H. Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission, in a speech before the real estate board. It is one step to be taken in removing the causes of the "whole rotten taxing system," he said.

LITSINGER FAILS TO PRESS CHARGE, PROSECUTOR SAYS

Failure of Edward R. Litsinger, member of the board of review, to communicate further concerning his charges against Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackidge in the $50,000 faro transaction, yesterday caused State's Attorney H. E. Fullenwider of Sangamon county to telephone State's Attorney Swanson.

Mr. Fullenwider said his office was prepared for action, but that he had heard nothing from Mr. Litsinger since the formal letter in which he accused Mrs. Blackidge of being a party to a plot to swindle him out of the $50,000. Mr. Litsinger was to have appeared in Springfield yesterday for another conference, but didn't, Mr. Fullenwider said.

Mr. Swanson expressed surprise at Mr. Litsinger's silence and said he would communicate with him to learn what his plans are.

Chicagoan Ends Life with Bullet in New York Hotel

Monte G. Simon, 45 years old, a salesman employed by the Bowman Dairy company, committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver last night in the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City. According to his widow Mr. Simon had been mentally ill for several weeks. He left home last Monday and she had not heard from him until a dispatch told of his suicide. He was the father of two children, one 14 years old and the other four.

COUNCIL PLANNED TO STUDY RELIEF OF TAX BURDENS

Seek Economies in Cost of Government.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A national tax council representing agriculture, railroads, industry, real estate, business, and other taxpaying groups was planned yesterday at the final session of the taxation experts who have been conferring at the Hotel Sherman. The promotion of economies in the cost of government—federal, state, and local—which is now running almost 13 billion dollars a year and leaping at the rate of half a billion a year—is to be the chief aim of the council.

The conference, which was called by Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, called for the formation of state and local groups to study tax problems, "especially the general property tax." Speakers laid stress on the burden carried by real property and upon the development of supplemental sources of revenue from intangibles. Some argued for a state income tax as one means of inculcating a "tax consciousness." It was not mentioned by name in the resolutions. Illinois voters have rejected proposals for a state income tax.

Will Study Government Costs.

The conference set forth that the first item to be studied is distribution of the costs of government, so that they may be "fairly shared by all persons according to their ability to pay."

Among other suggestions in the program were:

Budgeting, supervising and control of federal, state and local expenditures.

Publication of budgets and bond issues, providing for appeal before their adoption by taxpayers to "a quasi-judicial state board."

Consolidation of undersized units of government and elimination of unnecessary units.

Retrenchment in the costs of federal, state and local governments, and the awakening of "tax consciousness" in the public.

Will Call Second Conference.

The program is to be submitted to the various agricultural, commercial, banking, real estate and other organizations represented in the sessions and later Mr. Thompson is authorized to call a second conference.

The general property tax was called "confiscatory" by some speakers, who said it caused delinquent tax land to be thrown on the state as an added burden.

"The state of Michigan," said Judge Arthur J. Lacy of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, "owns nearly one-fourth of the state and may eventually own it all if this creeping paralysis is not prevented."

Grant Stay of Execution to 34 Dry Law Offenders

Freeport, Ill., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Judge Charles E. Woodward granted a thirty day stay of execution today to the thirty-four Rockford men sentenced yesterday to federal penitentiary for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. They asked for time to perfect their appeals.

CAN TWINS HAVE TWO FATHERS? SCIENCE SAYS YES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 6.—The question as to whether twins can have two fathers is the subject of an engrossing case in southern Sweden.

A young couple were separated without being legally divorced. After the separation the wife bore twins, a boy and a girl. The husband denied parentage and hailed his wife into court. She insisted that her husband was the father.

The court ordered an examination of the twins' blood. Prof. Wolff of the Swedish laboratory of chemistry and law reached the conclusion that the man could not be the father of the girl, but that there was nothing against the possibility of his being the parent of the boy. The professor refused to make a declaration of the probability that there were two fathers.

Prof. Nathaniel Broman of the University of Lund said that from a scientific point of view it was possible for twins to have different fathers.

JURY CALLED OFF ST. PAUL POSTAL LEASE INQUIRY

Blaine Links New in Move to Block Court Action.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—President Hoover's campaign in 1928 was brought into the investigation of the St. Paul commercial postal station lease today when Senator John J. Blaine, Wisconsin insurgent Republican, chairman of the special committee investigating the leases, established the fact that a grand jury investigation of the lease had been called off.

"Is it not a fact," Senator Blaine asked of John H. Bartlett, first assistant under Postmaster General Harry S. New, "that you were sent to St. Paul to call off the grand jury and that you said you did not propose to get mixed up in that kind of business?"

"I didn't know I was sent there for that purpose," replied the witness.

Active in St. Paul Case.

Senator Blaine developed the fact that during the summer of 1928 Postmaster General New and other federal officials became active about the St. Paul case; that the late James W. Good, Hoover's western campaign manager, while a guest at the Brule, Wis., headquarters of President Coolidge, talked about the affair over long distance telephone with L. K. Drill, who was about to become district attorney at St. Paul, and that after these and other occurrences, the grand jury was excused from holding a previously scheduled meeting.

The grand jury reported first on March 8, 1928, and then adjourned until Aug. 7.

Barlett Goes to St. Paul.

Meanwhile Mr. Bartlett went to St. Paul, after a conference with Postmaster General New.

While these conferences were progressing, late in July, Senator Blaine brought out, Mr. Good, who later became secretary of war in the Hoover cabinet, called Mr. Drill about the case.

All of these circumstances, Senator Blaine charged, pointed to the conclusion that efforts were being made to prevent further grand jury investigations and criminal proceedings.

INDIANA BUDGET MEASURE CALLS FOR 28 MILLION

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The biennial state appropriation bill was introduced in the house today. It provides for appropriation of $27,947,030, $617,402 less than the budget passed by the 1929 legislature, and is $8,915,047 less than the total requested by department heads.

Actually a total of $76,107,230 is made available for the biennium beginning Oct. 1, 1931, as compared to $85,000,000 two years ago, because the state budget committee recommended that the total income of the state highway department and the fish and game division of the state conservation department be allotted to those departments without budgetary restrictions, as previously.

Although the state budget committee thus makes a showing that indicates there may be no increase until 1932 in the present state 29 cent tax rate, some statehouse officials predicted there are financial difficulties ahead.

Savings are noted in the budget bill in both the recommendations for the departments and the institutions. Allotments to departments are $7,912,749. Requests totaled $9,178,821. The institutions receive $20,034,281, compared to $21,589,070 in 1929.

A total of $46,500,000 was allotted to the state highway commission.

Appropriation of $8,800,000 is recommended for the four state universities and colleges. Purdue university would get $650,000 and Indiana university, $4,500,000.

Indiana State Teachers' college at Terre Haute received $850,000. It had requested $1,005,656 and received $858,000 in 1929. Ball State Teachers' college at Muncie received $800,000, as compared to $823,310 two years ago, and a request for $954,877.

DIAMOND MINERS TREATED LIKE CONVICTS, CHARGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Feb. 6.—Dr. Steenkamp, member for Namaqualand, in parliament today vigorously attacked the government's policy in the state diamond diggings in Namaqualand.

To prevent the theft of stones Dr. Steenkamp said the white workers were placed in a camp which was inclosed by wire where they were compelled every evening to undress and march on cold cement to the shower baths. Their letters were censored and they were dressed in government suits with no pockets, like convicts.

The men were treated like prisoners, the doctor said, but the minister of mines, F. W. Beyers, refused Dr. Steenkamp permission to investigate as to whether the Kafirs in Johannesburg were treated better in spite of reported annual thefts of $14,580,000.

Strike in Madeira Blocks Increase of Bread Price

FUNCHAL, Madeira, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The people of Funchal fought for their daily bread today and won, although several strikers and policemen were injured. The strike was instituted as the result of a wheat and flour decree affecting the price of bread. Today's clashes occurred when police attempted to disperse gatherings outside of flour mills. Quiet was restored after the governor suspended the decree, which had raised the price of bread. Work is expected to be resumed tomorrow.

Treasure Hides in Southwest, Professor Says

Tells Stories of Dons and Desert Pirates.

BY AL CHASE.

"Coronado's Children," by J. Frank Dobie. [Southwest Press.]

When you've shivered and thrilled your way through "Coronado's Children," by J. Frank Dobie, cow punching professor of English at the University of Texas, you'll want to quit your job, and, with this gorgeous book as a guide, go down and dig up some of the untold millions of gold and jewels scattered over the southwest.

J. F. DOBIE. [Bachrach Photo.]

If you have thought, as we did, that most of the world's lost treasure was down in Davy Jones' locker, Prof. Dobie's stories, told with the charming simplicity of cowboy vernacular, will be a joyful surprise.

Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and Louisiana are honeycombed with lost mines, buried Spanish plate, and doubloons, to say nothing of jackloads of jewels. And Prof. Dobie, in addition to painting a modernistic picture of ancient gem hijacking, plate plundering, and doubloon double-crossing, pens a sort of treasure trove Baedecker of the southwest.

He weaves an alluring background of authenticity out of legend and first hand stories gleaned during ten years of research in many states and long hours of yarn swapping round camp fires and at ranch houses.

Many of the treasure troves and lost mines Prof. Dobie tells about with so much enthusiasm and realism are actively being searched for right now. With the wide circulation which the selection of his book by the Literary Guild for February insures it is safe to predict that 1931 will be a bull year in the southwest buried gold market.

One of the most picturesque and smashing of all his stories is the raid on Monterey by twenty Mexicans and Red Curley's gang, made up of four Gringos. They looted the mint, sacked the cathedral, and raided the smelter. With this load of treasure, comprising an untold fortune in doubloons, jewels, and plate, the bandits fled back across the Rio Grande, where the Yankees promptly murdered their Mexican pals and cached the plunder in a deep hole near El Muerto Springs, Texas.

The four Americans were soon hanged or shot, and ever since treasure hunters have haunted the valley where the fortune is said to be. Part of it is believed to have been recovered. This is the most magnificent booty, not even excepting Pancho Villa's, to have been buried in modern times, says Prof. Dobie.

As a bit of caution to the over-enthusiastic reader of "Coronado's Children" who contemplates immediate digging, Prof. Dobie warns with the significant words of one of the most famous treasure hunters of the southwest: "It looks as if something fatalistic hounds every man who follows after these mines."

Maurice Browne Tells Plan for Memorial for Rupert Brooke

A letter from Maurice Browne, formerly of the Chicago Little theater, co-author of "Wings Over Europe" and spectacular producer of "Journey's End," calls attention to the Rupert Brooke memorial which is to be erected at the grave of that young English poet on a rocky promontory of Skyros, a Greek island, where he was interred at midnight after he had died on the vessel which was bearing him to service in the Dardanelles on April 23, 1915.

Funds are being solicited for a monument "To Immortal Poetry," and it is certain that many Americans will wish to contribute. Oliver Saylor, author of many books, the latest of which is "Revolt in the Arts" [Brentano's], has been appointed official collector of funds for the United States. His address is 11 West 42d street, New York City. The list of international subscriptions will be published in a book, "Homage to Rupert Brooke and Poetry." Dr. Paul Vanderborght of Brussels university is founder and general secretary of the committee. The English committee includes John Drinkwater, as chairman; John Galsworthy, Walter de la Mare, W. W. Gibson, Mr. Browne, and others.

Ludwig's Early Biographies Now Printed in the U. S.

Because a misunderstanding exists concerning the publication of Emil Ludwig's biographies of Michelangelo, Rembrandt and Beethoven so close to the completion of another recent Ludwig biography, G. P. Putnam's, publishers of "Three Titans," announce that the Rembrandt biography was published in German in 1922, the Beethoven in 1927, and the Michelangelo in 1929.

It was Ludwig's plan from the beginning that the biographies should appear together in one volume as soon as the Michelangelo section was completed.

They have just been published in this country in English for the first time under the title "Three Titans."

HARRIS BIOGRAPHY OF OSCAR WILDE IS ATTACKED BY DOUGLAS

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Lord Alfred Douglas, former friend of Oscar Wilde, has taken exception to the most recent edition of "Oscar Wilde; His Life and Confessions," by Frank Harris, in a letter recently made public by Covici-Friede, publishers of the biography.

In the letter Lord Douglas declares that Harris interpolated a statement and told "impudent lies," adding, if Covici-Friede were an English firm "I would get you locked up for it. Your safety lies in the fact that you live in a country where every kind of criminality is condoned and protected. I am, with the utmost contempt, yours, etc., Alfred Douglas."

The immediate cause of this letter is another letter written by Lord Douglas to Harris, at Harris' request, telling of the former's relationship with Wilde. It is published for the first time in the Covici-Friede edition of the biography and, as published, contains the sentence, "You are at liberty to make any use of this letter and I have no objection to its being published."

Lord Douglas now asserts that this sentence was added to his letter by Harris and that he never intended the letter to be published.

German Author Offers Thriller to Americans

'Grand Hotel' More Lively than Arnold Bennett's.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Grand Hotel," by Vicki Baum. [Doubleday-Doran.]

It is less often than one thinks that a tremendous literary success in Europe is followed by as brilliant a furor in the United States. The most dazzling European successes often suffer some sea change in their importation and emerge merely another prize novel or another inexplicable "foreign" book.

VICKI BAUM.

When anything from overseas does catch the American fancy it leaps into a golden glory. Witness recently "All Quiet on the Western Front." There has come again from the German a conquering hero—or heroine—in "Grand Hotel," by Vicki Baum.

"Grand Hotel" reached America first as a play and took New York by tempests of the heart and the head. Every one was thrilled—those who like their emotions raw and those who like their technique tricky. "Grand Hotel" was, according to all of the audiences that were fortunate enough to get through the doors, the high point in exciting melodrama handsomely gotten up as cosmic drama. The words of the war scarred Doctor Otternschlag about life being a Grand hotel through which men pass for a moment gave it that cosmic lead.

The play was made by the author from then novel which excited and elated Europe and England. It was produced by Reinhardt and was a furor. The play and the novel especially intrigued England, coming as they did about the time of Arnold Bennett's "Imperial Palace" and having the same sort of milieu, a great luxury hotel. The German novel finally has reached us, in translation by Basil Creighton. What America will do about it lies as always on the knees of the reading gods. It is our wager, however, that America will go mad over it, but not completely as it did over "All Quiet on the Western Front."

As a matter of plain fact, "Grand Hotel" is not an epic novel at all. Those who expect a masterpiece of sweeping greatness will do better to keep their illusions and their $2.50. But those who ask for a good story, with every possible element of excitement and a melodrama of superlative thrill, will do well to rush themselves to their nearest bookshop.

There is a story to the effect that Vicki Baum wrote it as a serial for a newspaper. If that story is apocryphal, it is a shame, for that is exactly what the novel sounds like—the tiptop peak of a daily serial to keep the world from brooding upon its sadly trodden toes. It is the essence of romance, of melodrama, of excitement.

Every character in it and every situation either is flesh or fish or good red herring. They are all charmingly consistent with themselves, from Kringelein, a shabby little doomed bookkeeper from the country—who wants to "see what life is like" in the few weeks, or perhaps only days, that his fatal disease will give him—to the elegant young Baron von Geigern who lives by his wits. As remote poles of life as possible, those two, through the accident of being fellow guests in a great hotel, become magnets to drama and melodrama of the most intense sort.

There are an ageing dancer with her last passion; a pompous merchant who had once owned Kringelein body and soul and had a cheap little amour with Flammchen, who is a frank opportunist, until she wanders into the arms of the pity impelling Kringelein. They are all exciting puppets in a fascinating tale.

Vicki Baum has managed somehow to make them all real human beings as well as alluring puppets. She has a genius for animating people and places. Her "Grand Hotel" is a much more vivid picture in memory than is Arnold Bennett's "Imperial Palace," even just as a hotel; you care much more, too, about what happens to her characters. It is first rate grand melodrama, as "Imperial Palace" was second rate grand opera. For a train, for that dour evening at home when last night's dining was not done wisely but too well, for that tired feeling, for that onslaught of the old [or even modern] blues, for anything but the waste basket or a five foot shelf of books, we recommend "Grand Hotel."

LADY ELEANOR SMITH WRITES NOVEL ABOUT SPAIN, BRITAIN, TOO

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Those who believe that great men have sons and daughters of equal or superior greatness, although at times they may have been discouraged by the work of sons and daughters of ancient celebrities, can verify their convictions this spring.

First of all, Lady Eleanor Smith has a new novel coming out called "Flamenca." It has its roots firmly planted in the past, for it takes us back as far as 1820. It begins in Spain, and then goes to Devonshire, where the greater part of its action occurs. The author's manner is vigorous and lively; and, although I have not as yet done more than glance at "Flamenca," I am sure that it is a book to be read with excitement and pleasure.

That is not surprising, when one recalls the fact that Lady Eleanor Smith is the daughter of the late Lord Birkenhead. Lord Birkenhead once expressed a contempt for the art of the novelist; but I think he probably did that "to annoy, because he knows it teases." At any rate, when Lady Eleanor Smith wrote her first novel, "Red Wagon," which had a great success on this side of the Atlantic, she would not show her father a line of the book until it was published.

I do not know whether Miss Daphne du Maurier has taken the same stern course with Sir Gerald du Maurier over her first novel, "The Loving Spirit;" but this, too, goes far back, and starts with a perfectly huge genealogical tree. Miss du Maurier chooses 1830 for her point of departure, and her book is a very long excursion into family history. On the first page Janet Coombe, born in 1811, is standing upon a hill overlooking the seaside village of her birth, while in the last chapter of all Jennifer Coombe—she is no longer a Coombe, although she has married a cousin—is standing in the very same place as her great-grandmother, overlooking what must be in essentials the same scene. This book, though less vigorous than Lady Eleanor Smith's, shows considerable quality. That would not be surprising, for Miss du Maurier is the daughter of one of England's ablest actors, and the granddaughter of that artist-author of genius, the creator of "Trilby" and "Peter Ibbetson."

Stolid Chinese Really Nervous, Author Insists

'Chee' Is Their Word for 'Brainstorm.'

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Florence Ayscough, author of "A Chinese Mirror," translator of Tu Fu's poems and foremost woman authority on Chinese culture, was guest of honor at Blair Niles' tea and reception Saturday afternoon—and evening. Blair's invitations may read "from four-thirty to seven," but her parties are too successful to keep to schedule.

Lots of people had arrived before us; Anne Parrish, Emily Clarke, Deems Taylor, John and Margaret Farrar, Doris Ullman, Isabel Paterson, Will Cuppy, Jonathan Cape, George Sylvester Viereck, and half a hundred more. But determinedly we outmaneuvered them to the guest of honor, for here, at last, was opportunity to clear up the long standing mystery about the mysterious Chinese.

There isn't any, because they aren't. We have it on Mrs. Ayscough's authority. The reason that a Chinaman wears a poker face is because he is full of nerves, even as you and I, and is trying not to show it. His customs and complexes aren't mysterious—merely different from ours. When the Chinese have suppressed themselves until they can't stand it another moment, Mrs. Ayscough said, they go "Chee." "Chee" is the word for "blowing off steam," and also "an explosion of the mind."

Although Mrs. Ayscough was born in China, her heritage and education are of New England. She has just returned from a year in Europe to fill four months' lecture dates in the United States. In order to lecture in Germany and to read certain important critiques not available in translation, she recently added German to her repertory of languages—it must have been kindergarten work to one at home in the language of China. She writes Chinese characters with quick, sure strokes and as unhesitatingly as she forms the graceful curves of her English script. We watched her make both while autographing copies of her books, a rite—or a wrong if you happen to be the hard worked guest of honor—that has, of late, become part of the tea ceremony in New York.

Our suppressed desire to see the first book ever printed was gratified on Monday when Belle da Costa Greene, head of the Morgan library, shared her realm with tea time guests. She's an inspired hostess. She encouraged that irreverent intimacy which, we discovered, makes for greater appreciation of treasures of literature, art and history.

Philip Gibbs Tells Tragedies of Peace Since World Fought

The author of those two sensational books of war revelations, "Now It Can Be Told," and "More That Must Be Told," has written a comprehensive and penetrating study of the world at peace in "Since Then" (Harpers). He sets down the grewsome story of pillage and violence that has resulted from the treaty of Versailles and gives first-hand information on situations that censorship has kept out of the press.

Beginning with an account of the armistice and the peace conference with unforgettable portraits of Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyde George, the author tells how the various countries emerged from the war and what adventures befell them in their efforts to recover. He describes the civil war in Russia, Hungary with its reign of terror under Bela Kun, the Armenian massacres, the Greco-Turkish fighting, the lawlessness in Italy which was forcibly put down by Fascism; the appalling sufferings of the post-war famine in Germany. Shorter chapters are devoted to what he calls the "restless nations"—Palestine, Egypt, India, China.

The chapter called "America After the War" includes a discussion of prohibition, the policy of isolation, war debts, the Harding administration, the alien menace, the Dayton trial, American prosperity and the tourist menace.

"Since Then" is labeled "the disturbing story of the world at peace." Sensational as are the facts, it is the true story of what has been happening in the world during the last twelve years.

LYLE VERSUS THOMPSON.

It has become apparent that the Republican nomination for mayor lies between Lyle and Thompson. Other candidates may affect the result, but without benefit to themselves unless the winner recognizes their direct or indirect services.

Ald. Albert is a man with a good public record, but conditions in this election seem to count him out. He deserves well of the city. He is young, which is not a drawback. This election if it disappoints him does not close his public career in Chicago. THE TRIBUNE regards Ald. Albert with friendliness and his work with respect, but does not believe that he can defeat the city hall. His strength, whatever it may prove to be in votes, is that of the Deneen organization.

Senator Deneen as a policy keeps his following together by presenting candidates. His purpose is not confined to the winning of an election. It is to preserve the identity of what he calls his group. He carries it into the primaries with its own candidates. If he loses he has at least kept a fighting front. His organization is preserved for future uses, for himself and his subordinates.

Ald. Albert is his candidate in the primaries not so much in the expectation that the Deneen organization will nominate the Republican candidate for mayor but in keeping with the Deneen policy of holding his followers together. They are not given the opportunity of forming other connections. This program may serve the senator, but it does not seem to serve the city.

If the election, as it appears in the progress of the campaigning, lies between Lyle and Thompson, there is no reasonable course for Republicans opposed to everything experience has disclosed to them in the present city administration except to vote for Lyle.

WHY ARE THEY BACK?

Twelve men who were dismissed from the police force by the civil service commission have just been reinstated in compliance with court orders quashing the dismissals. The commission acted upon charges ranging from drunkenness and graft to complicity in assault. If guilty, all these men have shown themselves unfit for police service. But they are now back on the force.

How was this result brought about? The offenses occurred from two to ten years ago. The courts have ruled that proceedings for the reversal of the commission's action should be taken within a reasonable time and that six months is a reasonable time. The state's attorney's office complains that the corporation counsel's office did not raise this objection and was therefore guilty of a negligence directly responsible for the restoration of the men to the force.

In response to this criticism Corporation Counsel Ettelson has issued a statement asserting that the record in each case shows that laches—that is, failure to take timely action—was pleaded in each case. He also asserts that the fact of laches necessarily appears in the record, since in the petition for relief the applicant must give the date of his dismissal. No suggestion is therefore necessary, he contends, since the court has the record before it and must take judicial cognizance of the facts presented.

This would seem to put the technical responsibility on the several judges who quashed the records and ordered the reinstatement. It does not, in our opinion, divest the corporation counsel's office of a share of responsibility. It is the duty of counsel to bring essential facts to the attention of the court and to press his points in argument. The mere presentation of a record is not trying a case, and no one knows this better than Mr. Ettelson. Mr. Ettelson also points out that the court in its wisdom may decide that the petitioner is entitled to relief in spite of the period of time intervening between the offense charged and his application.

Such inquiry as we have been able to make develops that at least one of the judges acted upon the strength of an alleged agreement between the corporation counsel's assistant and the defendant's attorney, without independent examination of the record. This may be a common practice. It ought not to be. It does not relieve the judge of his own responsibility, which is fixed by the record, not by agreement of counsel. It is the judge's duty to enforce the law. In such cases obviously it may be the political interest of the corporation counsel's office to connive with the defendant to evade the law. It is the court's duty to defeat such connivance.

In this matter the fact remains that twelve men formally tried by the civil service commission for serious offenses and dismissed from the force are now back on the force. Mr. Ettelson wishes us to assume that his office efficiently and faithfully presented the cases against them, and that the judges involved held that they were insufficient to justify dismissal. He does not assert that the men ought to be back. He passes the buck to the courts. The men are back. Why? Was it because of the failure of Mr. Ettelson's assistant to present the cases faithfully or competently? Was it the failure of the judges to study the records, or was it their conclusion that the records did not support the dismissals by the commission?

Some one or several of these officials were wrong, and the net result is that men convicted of offenses which, if proved, unfit them for the force are back on the force without any satisfactory showing that their dismissal was wrong or that they are fit to be returned to service.

REALPOLITIK IN THE NORTHWEST.

Recent remarks of THE TRIBUNE regarding the St. Lawrence waterway brought a reply from the St. Paul Dispatch, which was reprinted in part on this page a few days ago. Our point was that the artificial price for wheat fixed by the farm board made exports of wheat and flour from the United States impossible. Therefore, the principal justification for the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars by our government for the construction of the St. Lawrence seaway had vanished. The seaway, if built, might be of value to Canadian farmers, but not to ours. The further fact that Canada has retaliated against our higher agricultural tariffs by raising a tariff wall against our manufactures removes whatever value the seaway might have possessed in furthering our exports to Canada.

To these contentions the Dispatch replies that THE TRIBUNE harbors "the doubly sinister design of sabotaging the farm board in the esteem of the west and discrediting the waterways." Furthermore, "wheat is only one of the commodities that will move from the midcontinent out through the Gulf of St. Lawrence. That traffic will include agricultural implements, dairy products and machinery, tires, automobiles, meats, iron and steel products. . . . Incoming goods will consist of rubber, coffee, tea, newsprint and many other items."

Perhaps the Dispatch will be more inclined to take the word of Mr. Legge, chairman of the farm board, for the future of our export trade in wheat. Only a few days ago he said that the American farmer has "just as much chance as a snowball in that other place" to export his wheat at a profit. This is true, he said, because land, labor and transportation are cheaper in other wheat growing lands. That goes considerably beyond the position taken by THE TRIBUNE. We said the farm board had made exports impossible. Mr. Legge says exports are impossible, with or without the farm board. The American farmer must produce for the domestic market and no other.

The St. Lawrence waterway might have had value in the movement of wheat in export because the waterway is open during the months of heaviest exportation. For other commodities the value of the route is much more doubtful, and from the viewpoint of St. Paul it is nearly negligible. The Dispatch might well examine, in this connection, the export trade of the northwest in flour and dairy products. It will be found, we suspect, that the flour trade has already all but vanished. So far as dairy products are concerned, the United States imports a great deal more than it exports, the totals for 1930 being $29,000,000 and $16,500,000 respectively. It was precisely that fact which led to the increase in the dairy tariffs; any lowering of transportation costs on imported dairy products will, of course, tend to destroy any benefits conferred by the tariff.

It is handsome of this spokesman of the northwest to favor the expenditure of the taxes paid by its constituents for the benefit of the automobile makers of Detroit, the tire makers of Akron and the steel manufacturers and meat packers of Chicago, but it is worthy of note, perhaps, that those who are, in the opinion of the Dispatch, to be the direct beneficiaries of this generosity are not themselves more enthusiastic about the project.

GILBERT STUART'S BIRTHPLACE.

[New York Sun.]

Rhode Island will preserve as a state monument the house in North Kingstown where was born the American artist, Gilbert Stuart, painter of the first six of our Presidents and whose famous painting of Washington is better known to the American people than any other of the world's great portraits. The house in which Stuart was born, in 1755, has stood for almost 180 years as a fine example of rural New England architecture of the colonial period. Its picturesque situation in the valley of the Narrow river, beside a broad millpond fringed with woods and shrubbery and within sight of McSparran hill, of romantic association, has contributed to the peculiar aptness of its designation as "a shrine of American art." In recent years the house has been permitted to deteriorate. It stood vacant and neglected for twenty years and was almost ruined by alterations to convert it into a tavern and dance hall. This disregard for the spot brought expressions of regret not only from travelers but from residents of the state. The action of a body of wealthy Rhode Islanders to restore the property at their own expense has met with state approval.

Young Stuart appears to have passed only his early boyhood at the house on the millpond. His father, who had emigrated from Scotland to America some time in the '40s of the eighteenth century, was a snuff maker and, entering into a partnership with a resident of Newport, started a snuff factory in the basement of his home. The venture was not successful there nor had it a happier outcome at Newport, to which the family moved. In 1774 he went to Halifax and opened a factory there which apparently prospered. In the following year his son Gilbert departed for London. The boy's genius early was recognized by the friends of his family and when he became a student of Cosmo Alexander he made an actual start on his career. Soon after his arrival in England his friend and guide, Alexander, died and young Stuart became a pupil of Benjamin West. Although the training under Alexander had a strong effect in his early life, the influence of so great a master as West was not evident in his later work. It showed an originality which was described by one of his London critics as "distinctly American." Stuart did not meet with the failure which had been the part of so many of his artistic compatriots who went to Europe. He painted royalty and nobility and received large fees. He returned to America in 1793, living first in New York, then in Philadelphia, finally settling in Boston.

HONOR BRIGHT.

"How nice it must be to work beside so many cakes!" exclaimed the benevolent old gentleman to the little boy in the confectioner's shop. "But don't you ever feel you would like to eat some of them?"

"O, no, sir," was the reply. "That would be stealing—but I just gives 'em a lick now and then."—Exchange.

WINTER NOTES, DANGERS, AND HINTS.

[These suggestions are taken from Scoutcraft, December, 1930.]

"FREEZING. A frozen part of the body will have the color of lead and feel hard to the touch. It will be insensible. The old-fashioned method of rubbing with snow often causes the skin to rub off, which later leaves scars and is liable to infection. Small frozen sections can be thawed out by holding the hand over them. Parts recovering from freezing are treated almost like burns. They should be kept surgically clean and protected by a coating of sterile vaseline."

Let us add this: Frozen parts must not be put in warm water or exposed before a fire, or held over a radiator. They can be thawed with clean, cold water or by covering with wool or fur or by contact with warm skin. The sensitiveness to cold which follows freezing can be overcome by bathing in warm [not hot] melted paraffin as recently described in this column.

Scoutcraft warns against profuse sweating due to overdressing and heavy exertion while hiking, skiing, or skating. Avoid having the garments become wet with sweat by removing surplus wraps and sweaters.

"Wet feet: Hikers are especially warned against getting the feet wet, or at least letting them stay wet. The boots should be kept well greased. Extra socks should be carried on the hike. If the feet are wet or cold or both time off should be taken and the socks should be changed."

Frostbite is a very troublesome affliction and its effects are long continued. While cold foot baths and vigorous rubbing, and especially baths in warm paraffin, will help to relieve the itching and burning, and tendency for the toes to turn dead white, prevention is much better than cure.

Scoutcraft advises hikers to keep out of the smoke when they sit around an open camp fire. "Smoke, for a period of time, is bad for the eyes, causes them to tear and smart, and if continued for a length of time will cause smoke blindness." Hikers are advised to sit in the position where the smoke blows away from them. The smoke from certain woods contains volatile poisons capable of causing skin eruptions and is unduly irritating to the air passages and eyes.

SCARLET FEVER.

V. N. writes: The article on scarlet fever in your paper has frightened me somewhat. I understand from the letter written by M. A. that her niece suffered no ill effects from the disease and had no symptoms of any other disease but was taken unawares. Am I correct? I had it when I was 8 years old and am now 20. Is there any danger of my developing any other of the diseases you mentioned? Up to this time I have had no ill effects.

REPLY.

The story carried several items. Most of them related to the contagiousness of scarlet fever. I judge you refer to the woman who died from Bright's disease caused by scarlet fever. The death occurred many years after the primary disease. Bright's disease is one of the more frequently encountered after-effects of scarlet fever. Perhaps you would be reassured if analysis proved that you had escaped this after-effect.

TREATING RUPTURE.

L. V. R. writes: Is it possible to cure a rupture? I have been advised to have an operation, but do not wish to have this done. Would participation in sports aggravate this condition?

REPLY.

Some ruptures are cured by exercises to develop the abdominal muscles; some, by wearing suitable trusses. However, operation is the only cure that promises a great deal. Holding the hernia back with a truss generally gives satisfactory relief. Having a hernia is quite apt to interfere with sports.

JOINT TENANCY.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother and I own a home in joint tenancy. She has one other son. In the event of her death would I become the sole owner, or would my brother receive some part?

D. R. G.

If the instrument expressly provides for joint tenancy as distinguished from tenancy in common, the surviving joint tenant will take to the exclusion of the heirs or devisees of the one who dies first.

CONSISTENT DUMPING.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Friend of the People.]—The alley in the 7400 block, between Wentworth and Vincennes avenue, is full of garbage and rubbish. The alley was cleaned the early part of January and looked fine, but two hours later several bundles of garbage and rubbish were deposited there. J. S.

Conditions complained of have been remedied and notices have been served on the offenders to stop further dumping in this alley, which will be kept under observation to see that the notices are complied with.

SUE FOR POSSESSION.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—How can I have tenant in a barber shop removed so I can regain possession of property? He bought the lease from a barber who was formerly in the shop. Rent was not paid for four months and lease was broken. What steps must I take to have him put out?

A. B.

UNDIVIDED INTERESTS.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Vacant lots were left by my father, who died intestate. The only living direct heirs are four children, of age and living in Illinois. One of the heirs cannot or does not want to pay his share of the taxes and special assessments, nor does he want to sell his share. The others, after paying his share for one year, do not desire to continue to do so. What relief at law have the heirs to protect their equities? H. S.

Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

CAN YOU GET IN?

It's just a bit confusing. Not to say embarrassing! We've sent out spellbinders, and substantial citizens, and tons of propaganda, and statistics to prove that Chicago is not crime-ridden. And just as we get it all proved up jumps the Club of Crime Victims in Chicago, and no one can join it except people who have been slugged, kidnaped, held up, burglarized, beaten up, racketeered, bombed, and other things like that. The club is being organized to take part in the mayoralty campaign and boasts already of its big membership. But that's just it. The bigger it gets and the more we brag about it—well, we've got to send this to the My Most Embarrassing Moment Editor; that's all.

And the terrible thing about it all is that after awhile we who can't join the club, because we're ineligible, are going to feel very unhappy. It will be just like being blackballed at a golf club because we tear divots up all over the green. Or turned down by a town club because our family didn't move into Chicago until after the fire.

We go over to the club office and say we'd like to join and the manager shoves us out a blank and says, "Robbed, slugged, bombed, or beat up?" And then we have to drop our heads and blush with shame and say no.

"I'm sorry," the manager will say with withering scorn, "you're ineligible. Good afternoon!"

Why, even thinking it over will make us fairly yearn to get held up or something. We Americans are natural joiners and it's going to be a mighty bitter pill to those of us who won't be able to qualify for the Crime Victims' club.

We might, to save our pride, organize an "I've Never Been a Crime Victim in Chicago" club. But we could never have a meeting; there wouldn't be enough members to make a quorum.

TO EARTH.

I.

Dreamer and rebel, gay outcast,
Now bowed and humbled, home at last,

I wearily sink to your breast
And plead for surcease and for rest:

O take me as you would a tree
And let your strength flow into me!

As you would heal with loving care
The tree that droops in proud despair,

Heal me, O Earth, and let me be
As willing captive as the tree:

Let me grow roots in friendly sod,
Mothered by you . . . and close to God.

II.

You comfort the most scraggly tree,
Yet pay no heed at all to me:

No blade of grass, no tree or weed,
Appeals in vain in time of need,

Yet I, who hunger at your breast,
Receive no whit the blessèd rest

That you bestow so lavishly
On every drooping weed or tree.

Yet am I comforted somehow
In knowing that, though cruel now,

You, through some bitter alchemy,
Shall come at last to shelter me!

SHERRY KING.

"HELL hath no fury," sang the late Mr. Congreve some time ago, "like a woman scorned." But her fury at being scorned is nothing like her demoniac rage when she's told she's getting fat. (Buster Keaton, please write.)

OUR HELPFUL HELPS FOR AFTER DINNER SPEAKERS.

The unpleasant dilemma of Gen. Butler because of his remarks in Philadelphia has caused a perfect panic among after dinner speakers everywhere. Ordinarily, and in a general way, this is a free country, but if any foreign potentate, king, or government official can reach hands across the sea and take an American to task for what he said in a little talk at East Sheboygan, Beatrice, Neb., or South Chicago, then after dinner speakers have got to watch their steps. Every day we will print a story that will be perfectly safe to use in speeches at clubs, sewing societies, directors' meetings, and so on, for which nobody outside of America, no matter what his rank, can call the speaker to account. We have had these stories gone over by several eminent lawyers and eminent authorities on international law, and any after dinner speaker may feel fairly confident he can tell these amusing little tales without getting into serious trouble.

AFTER DINNER STORY NO. 1.

Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen: My good friend, Mr. ——, was telling about the birdie he made at golf the other day. Speaking of birdies reminds me of the Irishman who saw a parrot sitting in a cage. The parrot was a good talker and Pat was simply amazed because it was the first time he had ever seen a parrot or heard one talk. So he hunted up a bird store and said he wanted to buy a parrot that was a good talker. The bird store man thought he would have some fun with the Irishman, so he brought out an owl and said he was the finest parrot and the best talker that could be had. Pat said he supposed there were all kinds of parrots, and while this one didn't look much like the other one he had seen, so long as it was a fine talker he would buy it. A few days afterwards the bird store man happened to meet Pat and said, "Hello, Pat! Is your parrot doing much talking?" "No," said the Irishman, sadly, shaking his head, "he don't do much talkin', but he does a hell of a lot of thinkin'."

THE BIG PARADE

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 7, 1915.

LONDON.—Fearing a submarine attack the Lusitania of the Cunard line made use of the American flag on a trip through the Irish sea. This virtually proves the German allegation that British ships were utilizing neutral flags and therefore that American shipping should avoid certain areas where, according to the German official announcement, submarines would be active.

LONDON.—The Exchange Telegram's Copenhagen correspondent wired: "I am in a position to state that the American ambassador in Berlin informally notified the German government that an official protest will be made by the United States against Germany's decree of blockade against Great Britain. The Danish, Swedish, and Norwegian governments also are making representations."

PARIS.—The French war office official statement says: "Efficient fire was maintained by our artillery in Belgium and in the valley of the Aisne, and slight progress was made by our troops in Champagne to the north of Messiges. In the Argonne and Woevre districts the French artillery dispersed convoys of the enemy and set fire to a convoy train of twenty-five wagons."

PETROGRAD.—The German front west of Warsaw again was penetrated by a Russian force, which crossed the River Rawka, between Skiernlewice and Bohinoff. The battle, which is now being fought along a front about 30 miles west of Warsaw, will determine whether or not the Germans are to be rolled back to the Silesian frontier.

FEBRUARY 7, 1901.

CHICAGO.—To establish municipal courts of record, to abolish the fee system in justices' courts and to limit their scope will be the purpose of a legislative bill to be prepared by a special city court commission of judges, attorneys, and aldermen appointed by the city council's judiciary committee. On the committee are Judges E. F. Dunne and Orrin Carter, Robert McMurdy, Aldermen Edward J. Novak, Charles Alling, and Walter Butler, and Justice Charles Everett.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—A bill to make electrocution the legal method of execution in Illinois was introduced in the house by Representative D. E. Sullivan of Chicago. If the bill becomes a law the death penalty will be administered in Joliet penitentiary and the warden or such assistant as he designates to act will receive $50 for ending each human life.

THE HAGUE.—All Holland joined today in the festivities preceding the wedding of Queen Wilhelmina to Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin which is to take place tomorrow. People came from all parts of the country to march in the parade, which was held in clear but bitterly cold weather.

PEKING.—The foreign ministers voted to demand the deaths of all Boxer officials named in their note, except Prince Tuan, Duke Lan, and Gen. Tung Fu Siang.

LONDON.—In view of the recent Boer activity the government has decided to reinforce Gen. Kitchener with 30,000 mounted troops, in addition to the large forces recently equipped locally in South Africa.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 7, 1881.

GALVESTON, Tex.—The northbound express was wrecked nine miles north of Hempstead, on the Texas Central railroad, when the engine fell through the Cedar creek bridge, throwing five coaches down a fifteen foot embankment, bottoms upward. The Strakosch and Hess English opera troupe was among the passengers. Eighteen persons were injured.

LONDON.—A Natal dispatch says that the Wakkerstrom garrison is holding out well. It made a sortie, capturing stores. The garrisons of Pretoria, Lydenburg, and Rustenburg are well provisioned.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The legislature having adopted a joint resolution asking President Hayes to pardon the Mussel Slough settlers, convicted of resisting the United States marshal in Tulare county, when several were killed, the friends of the settlers are working hard to obtain signatures to the petition to the President backing up the legislature. The document will be a formidable one.

HIGH WAGES AND PROSPERITY.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—The letter of Mr. G. Z. in yesterday's TRIBUNE so vigorously denouncing Mr. Traylor's recent remarks about wages and prosperity arouses further thought on the question, "Do high wages make prosperity?"

In a competitive world this much is true: Wages can only come out of the products sold that labor helps create.

In the year 1930 commodity prices declined nearly 20 per cent and these declines are gradually creeping and will doubtless continue to creep into a lower cost of living. Under such conditions money wages can come down without loss of purchasing power or sacrifice by laborers. In many industries they must come down if labor is to be employed at all.

This, I believe, is what Mr. Traylor had in mind when he said labor must be quick "to recognize the real wage in a falling market if there is to be any stability in prosperity and employment."

In my opinion wages in the building industry could be reduced very substantially to the great advantage of all connected with that most important industry. If labor unions and the building industry would coöperate and use the courage, the initiative, the research, the patience, and the adaptability to changing circumstances that the automotive industry has so brilliantly demonstrated in the last ten years by constant advertising in cultivation and education of the public. I believe the next decade could be made a "home minded decade" as the past one has been made a "wheel minded decade."

And certainly revival of this important branch of the building industry would go a long way toward reviving general business, to say nothing of the less tangible values such a condition might create. R. E. D.

THE STANDARD OF LIVING.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—Many thanks to G. Z. for his letter opposing Mr. Traylor's idea of a general wage reduction. The white collar workers were never paid even a living wage in prosperous times and any further reduction would simply mean sweatshop wages and a general lowering of the American standard of living. Such speeches as Mr. Traylor's only serve to help Russian Red propaganda.

I have noticed that such proposals always come from wealthy individuals who have nothing to worry about in a financial way and who never intend to submit to a wage cut themselves.

J. BROWN.

THE CENSORSHIP.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—I notice that Supt. William J. Bogan is starting to censor history. Too bad, but he's several thousand years late. Why is it that these censorships are always for the protection of morals, and then only one department, sex morals? Nobody seems to consider that the real danger in literature of any kind is the formation of wrong ideas and the overtaxing of the imagination. Children are allowed to scare themselves silly with the horror tales of Poe and others. Not only allowed, but encouraged. Then people laugh at them because they are afraid in the dark. Yet the first intimation that a parent gets to the effect that the child has been allowed to read something about sex, away goes the parent, with blood in his eye, calling for suppression of the book. To ask for intelligence in censorship, however, is anomalous. One can only ask that it be not too vicious, as this present instance of it most certainly is.

JAMES HARRINGDON.

A BOYHOOD FRIEND.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—As a boyhood friend of Judge John H. Lyle, remembering him even from the time when in his Tennessee cradle he was attempting to execute the great strategic movement of getting his big toe in his mouth, I wish to go on record as to his honesty, sincerity, and fearlessness. If any of the "glass house" occupants care to verify this statement, an inquiry to the old home town (Morristown, Tenn.) will elicit information which will, at least, be poor material for his critics.

KING WOOTEN.

VARIOUS KINDS OF INSULTS.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Why is it that all the powers that be in Washington get so excited and fall over each other to apologize to some foreign representative for a second hand remark? How many times in a year are tourists of ours not only insulted but robbed by excessive charges—in Italy and other parts of Europe? If they did make a squawk do you think they would get redress in Washington? And if they did would they get it? Answer is no.

W. B.

UNCONCEALED WEAPONS.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Is there any law against carrying weapons not concealed? Can one buckle on his gat over his coat, or in cold weather over his overcoat, especially while traveling?

BUTLER SELECTS A DEMOCRAT AS CHIEF DEFENDER

R. F. Morris Heads Galaxy of Lawyers at Trial.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Roland F. Morris, former ambassador to Japan and a prominent Pennsylvania Democrat, will head the galaxy of counsel who will defend Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler when the marine officer is placed on trial for his recent criticisms of Premier Mussolini. Mr. Morris will be assisted by Maj. Henry Leonard, Col. A. M. Holding, a former president of the Pennsylvania Bar association, and Col. Jesse F. Dyer of the marine corps.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the Morris appointment it was learned that Butler's counsel plans to call several prominent Americans to testify as to his character and his distinguished military record. Efforts are being made, it was learned, to obtain Gen. John J. Pershing, under whom Butler served during the world war, as one of the witnesses.

Attainments of Attorneys.

In announcing that the Butler legal staff had been filled, Maj. Leonard took occasion to issue a statement presenting the legal attainments of the lawyers who will attempt to prevent the dismissal of the peppery marine officer. The statement follows:

"I have associated with me in the defense of Gen. Butler Roland F. Morris, a member of the firm of Duane, Morris & Hecksher of Philadelphia. Mr. Morris has been active in public life and formerly was our ambassador to Japan. At present he is a professor of international law at the University of Pennsylvania. I also have associated with me Col. A. M. Holding, president of the Chester bar. He is recognized throughout the state as one of the outstanding trial lawyers of the state."

Selection of the majority of his counsel in Philadelphia strengthened reports that Maj. Gen. Butler plans to retire from the marine corps following the trial and go into Pennsylvania politics. His friends state Gen. Butler now plans to fill a lecture engagement beginning next October, and then run for the senate. His home is in Chester, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Will Present Butler's Record.

The decision of defense counsel to present Butler's entire record in an impressive manner before the six admirals and one major general of marines who constitute the court martial board is based on the theory that a body of men fully acquainted with the marine officer's career as a fighting man would recommend his dismissal on the offense charged.

The defense plan calls for the appearance as witnesses of the highest ranking officers under whom Gen. Butler served in France. Officers and officials who commended Butler for gallantry on the battlefield or for skill in diplomacy also will be asked to testify. These include Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, retired, Pershing's chief of staff and later head of the service of supply. It also is possible that civilian officials, who headed the navy department at various times during the last thirty years which Butler's record covers, may be asked to testify. Butler has more than twenty decorations, two of them awards of the congressional medal of honor.

Confer with Witnesses.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler and Maj. Henry Leonard, one of his counsel, were here today conferring with witnesses who may be called to testify at Gen. Butler's impending court martial.

The general and Maj. Leonard slipped into town quietly from Quantico, Va., and went to the offices of Roland S. Morris, former ambassador to Japan, one of three new members of Gen. Butler's battery of defense lawyers.

Morris is a past president of the Contemporary club of this city at which Butler made his address Jan. 31, describing Premier Mussolini as a "hit and run" driver.

WOMEN LEARN DUTIES AS JURORS

PLAN WOMEN'S JURY SERVICE AT MEETING TODAY

Officials and Club Leaders to Confer.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court will preside this morning in his courtroom at a conference of jury commissioners, judges, and prominent club women on the matter of jury service by women authorized by last November's referendum. Means of inaugurating women's jury service will be worked out at the meeting, which was called by the chief justice.

Delay in impangling women as jurors, Judge Sonsteby said yesterday, has been due in part to lack of facilities to accommodate women jurors, and partly to the difficulty in compiling lists of women eligible to serve. A subcommittee will be appointed to inspect the courtrooms in the building, to choose a few which may be easily adapted to the installation of necessary facilities. As for the jury lists, they are subject to revision annually by the jury commissioners, consequently there need be no delay on that score.

Wants Women on Juries.

"I'm willing and anxious to have the women come into the courts and serve," declared Judge Sonsteby. "I think it's a good thing, and regret the fact that there has been all this delay and discussion about it. The thing has been settled; now let's get started. I think we'll really get some action at this conference."

Among the well known women who participated in the fight to obtain for women the right to serve as jurors and who have been invited to the conference are Miss Jane Addams, Miss Harriet Vittum, Miss Sophonisba Breckinridge, Miss Edith Abbott, Miss Mary McDowell, Miss Lea Taylor, Miss Genevieve Corkell, Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton, Mrs. Murry Nelson, Mrs. Eric Stubbs, Miss Mary McEnerney, Miss Amelia Sears, Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb, Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, Mrs. John P. McGoorty, Mrs. George W. Hanson, Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, Miss Esther Dunshee, and Mrs. Rena Elrod, state representative, who first introduced the women's jury bill into the legislature.

Jury Commissioners Joseph H. Barnett, James J. McVicker, and Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey have been requested to attend the conference, as have Judges Holmes, Jonas, Brooks, McKinlay, Fairbank, Fardy, Scheffler, and O'Connell. Albert J. Horan, chief bailiff of the Municipal court, and Chief Clerk Joseph L. Gill will also be present.

Visit Criminal Courts.

Justice as it is dispensed in Cook county's Criminal court building was seen in operation yesterday by a group of 40 clubwomen, chairmen of districts in all parts of the state of the Illinois League of Women Voters. Under the direction of Miss Corkell, Chicago chairman, and Mrs. C. P. Fowler of Evanston, state chairman, the women visited several courtrooms to observe the proceedings with which they will become more familiar in the rôle of jurors when the system of women on juries becomes generally operative. Chief Justice John P. McGoorty addressed the women at luncheon in the Administration building of the county jail.

Harold Lloyd Baby Gains; Physicians More Hopeful

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Tiny Harold Lloyd Jr. gained another hold today on the life physicians feared he would lose when he was born prematurely two weeks ago. He was weighed for the second time since his birth and found to have gained five ounces this week, a hopeful indication. His weight was three pounds three ounces. Physicians said an examination of the infant, son of the film comedian, proved him organically sound.

PRESIDENT REFUSES TO SUBMIT NAME FOR FEDERAL JUDGESHIP

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—President Hoover today backed up Attorney General William D. Mitchell in the latter's controversy with Senator Thomas D. Schall [Rep., Minn.] over the appointment of Ernest Michel to a Minnesota judgeship. In a communication to Schall the President called attention to Mr. Mitchell's objections to the selection of Michel for the judicial post, and stated that in view of the attorney general's report he would not send his name to the senate.

In refusing to appoint Senator Schall's candidate the President took occasion to assert that while he was aware of implications that political reprisals might be instigated against him for his refusal, he "felt he had an independent obligation, as President, to nominate men for the federal judiciary who are not subject to any question as to their fitness." He asserted, also, that the initiative in making any federal appointment lay with the President and not with the senate.

In his letter the President suggested Senator Schall submit eight or ten names of men he thought would make fit appointees, and added, "From such a list I shall hope to find some one with fitness for that position."

HUNT PAL OF BANDIT SHOT BY CICERO DOCTOR

Dr. George M. Laing, 2232 South 50th avenue, Cicero, was recovering from two bullet wounds yesterday while police searched for one of two bandits who on Thursday night robbed the physician and a woman patient in his office and escaped as the doctor drew a pistol and started firing.

One bandit, who gave his name as Fred Nelson, was hot in the shoulder blade and later captured by a Cicero policeman. He refused to reveal the identity of his accomplice, but police learned later that the robber's partner was registered with him at 37 North Halsted street under the name of "Jensen."

CANNON PUTS ON DEFENSE; FATE UP TO 12 MINISTERS

Faces Suspension for 3 Years.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The hearing of charges against Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church South neared an end tonight with the prelate facing the possibility of a three year suspension and a church trial.

Testimony aimed at the personal character of the bishop has been introduced inside the Mount Vernon Place Methodist church before the twelve ministers investigating the charges. Documents reflecting on his conduct have been identified by witnesses as furnished by Mrs. Helen McCallum, who later became Bishop Cannon's second wife.

Seven Must Vote Against Him.

The accused bishop presented his defense today in a morning and afternoon session and tonight the twelve ministers were expected to begin deliberation on their verdict. If five of them find that the charges have no weight, the bishop will stand cleared, but if eight believe them to be true, he will be suspended and brought to trial before the general conference of the church in 1934.

Dr. Eugene Crawford, an associate of Bishop Cannon on the board of temperance of the church, was the only witness to appear today. A handwriting expert, Burt Ferrar of Washington, went into the church and stayed for an hour, but was not called before the committee.

The major charges against Cannon have been presented in writing. Information from within the church was to the effect that an affidavit signed by the second Mrs. Cannon is among the exhibits, as well as a 26 page document signed and sworn to by a friend of Mrs. Cannon.

Bishop Stands Strain Well.

The bishop came to the church again today on crutches. Members of his family said he was withstanding the strain of the 15 hour daily sessions remarkably well. He spends each night in Sibley hospital, where for two months this winter he was confined with arthritis.

RACKET BUREAU RAIDERS SEIZE HIRSCHIE MILLER

Sift Charge of New Coup Against Cleaners.

Hirschie Miller, one of the central figures in the era of racketeering and terrorism in the cleaning and dyeing industry several years ago, was questioned by prosecutors of the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office last night.

Miller was formerly head of the Acme Cleaners and Dyers. After a two year cut price warfare, in which bombing, burning of clothing, and the slugging of drivers was common, Miller was bought out for $210,000, contributed by members of the Master Cleaners and Dyers' association. His original investment in the Acme concern was said to have been less than $100,000.

Signs Five Year Agreement.

At that time Miller signed an agreement not to enter the industry again for five years. The five year period is now up, and Miller is allied with the Peacock Cleaners and Dyers, according to the prosecutors. A recent agreement by members of the association, in which each signed a contract with Dr. B. M. Squires, economist, who acted as arbitrator, was understood to mean the end of price cutting wars.

Then, according to the prosecutor, the Peacock Cleaners began cutting prices below the scale met by others, and said to be below actual cost. Members of the association began to protest. Representatives, said to be from Miller, called on Dr. Squires and suggested that the Peacock concern could be purchased. No price was mentioned, but it was understood that a price similar to that paid for the Acme Cleaners would be sufficient.

Racket Bureau Raids Plants.

Instead of complying with the request to discuss the matter with the association, Dr. Squires informed the state's atorney's office. Last night a police squad from the racket bureau under Sergt. Roy Steffens raided two plants of the Peacock company at 4744 North Racine avenue and 4656 Broadway, seized a number of books, and took Miller into custody. After being questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Lounsbury he was freed upon his promise to appear before the grand jury if called.

A special meeting of the north side cleaners called by Dr. Squires and Frank Harscher, executive secretary of the association, was held yesterday at the Bismarck hotel. It resulted in a resolution to refuse to have any dealing with Miller.

AUTOISTS WON'T BE ARRESTED NOW FOR LACK OF CITY LICENSE

For the present at least there will be no arrests of motorists for failure to have city license tags. This was announced yesterday by Bernard O. Romin, superintendent of the license department. "For the last week," says Mr. Romin, "large crowds have been applying for vehicle tags with the result that there has been delay in the filling of orders. No arrests will be made by the police until the large number of accumulated applications and remittances for licenses have been cleared up."

"LIGHTHOUSE KATIE," HEROINE, IS DEAD AT 83

Saved Scores of Lives During Her Career.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—"Katie's light" still flashes its warning beam far out in New York bay, but Katie is dead. Mrs. Katherine Walker, 83 years old, who tended Robbins Reef lighthouse for thirty-five years to become the most famous off-shore keeper in the service, died today in a cottage on Staten island, five miles from the sea battered ledge of rocks she called home.

A lonely life devoted to duty was Mrs. Walker's. She was a tiny woman, standing four feet ten and weighing only 107 pounds, but unaided she rescued more than fifty persons from the waves.

"The only manifestly grateful creature I ever saved was a dog," the woman lighthouse keeper said upon her retirement on pension several years ago, "and I'll never forget the look in his big brown eyes as he raised them to mine."

A Beacon to Seafarers.

If you have ever been aboard an incoming liner nosing her way along the upper bay you may have seen "Katie's light" shining through the mist and fog almost three miles from the nearest land. It marks a long narrow ridge of rocks just outside Kill Van Kull and it has held its gleaming head above the waters since the oldest inhabitant can remember.

Years ago Mrs. Walker moved there and made that water ringed, isolated spot her home when her husband, Jacob Walker, was appointed its keeper. Then in 1890 the husband died of pneumonia and Katie Walker became the lighthouse keeper.

"Jacob sent me a dying message from the shore," said the wife, "for I had stayed to tend the light. It was just three words, 'Mind the light,' and ever since the thought of the light always has been with me."

There were a son and a baby granddaughter back in 1900 and once—just once—there was a party on Robbins reef.

"There were sixteen who came to the reef to my little girl's birthday party," Mrs. Walker told interviewers in 1918. "They were her schoolmate friends that she had made ashore. We had a merry afternoon. But grief came again while I was minding the light. My grandchild died and she was carried down the iron ladder to a boat that took her to the island for burial."

Often 24 Hours on Duty.

For twenty of her years of stewardship Robbins Reef light was equipped with oil burners, requiring almost constant attention. On occasions the keeper was on duty for twenty-four hours. Often for days and even for months the mother and her young son saw no outsiders. In stormy weather they were completely cut off from the world. Yet Katie Walker found time to joke.

The only means of communication with the world for years was a rowboat. On Christmas night in 1914, while alone in the lighthouse, Mrs. Walker fought a terrible storm in that rowboat to save the occupants of two scows who had jammed their vessels on the reef. She picked six men off the rocks.

Once in 1885, when ther husband was alive, Mrs. Walker sought to quit the lighthouse. She packed her trunk and told him she couldn't stand the sight of water everywhere, but he laughed and unpacked the trunk, and it was never packed again until the infirmities of old age eight years ago compelled her to accept a pension and move ashore.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: A Hard Job

May Substitute for Gag Act Under Fire.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The teeth of Minnesota's laws of libel were being whetted today by a state senator who termed the provisions of a bill he is drafting even more drastic than the newspaper suppression law of this state.

Since repeal of the latter has been voted by the house, with similar action likely to be taken by the senate, Senator Henry L. Morin said he would introduce a bill next week setting up a new and broader definition of criminal libel.

Unlike the suppression statute, however, the new measure would be aimed at individuals responsible for publication, rather than the publication itself, and would be an amendment to the present law on libel.

New Definition of Libel.

Its definition of libel reads:

"Every malicious publication by writing, printing, picture, effigy, sign, or otherwise than by mere speech, which shall expose any living person, or the memory of one deceased, to hatred, contempt, ridicule, or obloquy, or which shall cause or tend to cause any person to be shunned or avoided, or which shall have a tendency to injure any person, corporation, or association of persons in his or their business or occupation, shall be a libel."

Persons found guilty of publishing a libel under the new definition would be guilty of a felony, punishable by not more than three years nor less than one year in prison. Another drastic provision relates to trials, where the burden of proof would be placed on the defendant, malice being presumed.

Gag Law in Senate.

The suppression law, which has attained a national reputation as "Minnesota's gag law," may be repealed at this session. A bill providing for repeal was passed by the house Wednesday and is now ready for consideration by the senate. Constitutionality of the suppression law is being tested in the United States Supreme court in an appeal from the decision of the Minnesota Supreme court upholding its constitutionality. Arguments in the case were recently heard by the high court at Washington.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

CZARNECKI IS SLATED TO STAY AS CHICAGO CUSTOMS COLLECTOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Reappointment of Anthony Czarnecki as collector of customs at Chicago now seems assured. The term of Mr. Czarnecki, who was an appointee of Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.], expired last August. He has been continuing in office pending an adjustment of patronage matters by Senator Deneen, who is to retire from the senate next month, and Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.], who will thereafter be the chief federal job dispenser.

It is understood that Senator Glenn virtually has agreed to the reappointment of Mr. Czarnecki as part of a general agreement affecting a number of positions which is to be finally worked out next week.

Clarence Buck of Monmouth, Ill., who was defeated as the Republican nominee for state treasurer in November, is regarded as the most likely selection for collector of internal revenue at Chicago to succeed Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, who recently resigned. Mr. Buck is Senator Glenn's choice for the position, but is objectionable to Senator Deneen.

Senators Glenn and Deneen are understood already to have agreed upon United States District Judge James H. Wilkerson for the Page vacancy on the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Senator Glenn's choice to succeed Judge Wilkerson on the District bench is John P. Barnes of Chicago.

POPE OPENS NEW POWER STATION OF VATICAN CITY

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 6.—Pope Pius XI. today celebrated the ninth anniversary of his election to the pontificate by inaugurating the Vatican's new electric power station, replacing the old one that had become insufficient for the increased needs of the Vatican since it has become an independent state. After a short address the pontiff, with his own hands, set the dynamos in motion.

The pope moved on foot from his state apartment to the power station accompanied by the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Pacelli, and all the members of his noble antechamber. He seated himself in a gilded armchair in the dynamo room. Senator Marconi, who has been superintending the erection of the Vatican wireless station, and numerous Vatican officials were also present.

Then the pope approached one of the dynamos whose flywheel had been painted white in order to render it more easily visible. Following the instructions of one of the engineers, the pope operated the switches. One dynamo after another was set into motion. The new power station comprises four Diesel engines, each of 200 horsepower, driving four dynamos each of 135 kilowatts, and a battery of a capacity of 3,000 amperes.

LAY 2,191 SUICIDES TO STOCK LOSSES IN FOUR YEARS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Testimony that one life insurance company had paid 2,191 suicide claims in the last four years was given a senate judiciary subcommittee today at a hearing on the Heflin bill to prohibit marginal trading on the New York Stock exchange.

A. S. Brown Jr. of Boston, writer on construction projects, gave the data, saying the insurance company reports "indicated it was the big fellows who committed suicide."

First Anzac to Enter Gallipoli Dies in Canada

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 6.—The first Anzac to set foot in Gallipoli and last to leave, Lieut. Col. Charles Melville McNaughten, formerly of New South Wales and war hero, died at his home here last night. Son of Sir Melville Leslie McNaughten, fourteen years chief criminal investigator of Scotland Yard, Col. McNaughten enlisted in Sydney when the war broke out and soon became an officer. Thrice wounded, he was sent home. Refused permission to return to the front he reënlisted as a private and was sent to France. His identity was discovered and his commission was restored.

Chicago Red Cross Has $524,440 of Its Quota

The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross reported yesterday that $6,198,623 of the $10,000,000 national Red Cross fund for drought relief has been raised. James T. Nicholson, manager of the Chicago chapter, said that $524,440 of the Chicago quota of $940,000 has been collected or pledged. Montgomery Ward & Co. announced that it has authorized a contribution of $20,000 to the Red Cross fund. The contribution will be made in individual donations at the company's mail order houses and retail stores throughout the country.

CLERK'S DREAM OF QUICK RICHES ENDS IN PRISON

Took $207,000 to 'Win at Races.'

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Charles F. Pierce had a system to beat the horse races and in order to get the capital to put it into operation he took $207,000 in securities from the National City bank main office in Wall street, where he was employed, it was charged today as he was held under arrest.

According to the police, Pierce confessed that he had taken the bonds, intending to make a quarter of a million at the Havana tracks, return the bonds and then start a night club and speakeasy which would keep him the rest of his life.

Although he obtained a month's sick leave last month and went to Havana with $5,000, which he had borrowed on $9,000 worth of the securities, he never actually put a cent on the horses, for he had to return to New York again to try to borrow some more money, and before these complicated transactions were completed he was arrested. All of the bonds except $9,000 worth have been recovered and the police expect to get these.

Married and a Father.

Pierce is twenty-seven, married, and the father of one child. For six years he has been in the employ of the National City bank, in which time he has been promoted from messenger boy to customers' security clerk at $3,000 a year.

In his position he took care of customers' securities, and as they rarely came in to clip their coupons, he was able to take the $207,000 worth of Liberty bonds and treasury bonds without fear of immediate detection.

Last fall a friend told Pierce how he could infallibly beat the races. He mulled this over in his mind and finally decided to make his fortune with it. Last month he told his superiors that he was in ill health and that he had been advised to stop work for a time. He was given a month's leave, which started about the tenth of last month.

He Helps Himself.

Before he left, detectives said, he took on Jan. 5 $50,000 worth of Liberty bonds. The next day he took $29,000 in Liberty bonds. Jan. 7, it is charged, he took $128,000 in treasury bonds.

He rented a safe deposit box in the Irving Trust company branch on 7th avenue in the name of George F. Kenney, a former employé of the bank, and left the bonds there, except $9,000 worth, which he took to the Paramount Rediscount corporation. On them this company gave him a loan of $5,000.

With this money and $40,000 in bonds he went to Havana and there tried to borrow money on the securities. This loan was delayed and he returned to New York and on Tuesday went back to the Paramount company with $64,000 in bonds, seeking a $50,000 loan.

The members of that firm were suspicious and asked for additional references. They were provided, but they were not considered satisfactory and the investigation resulted in the young clerk's arrest.

Everett Hunter, Wealthy Boat Manufacturer, Dies

Everett Hunter, 62 years old, wealthy boat manufacturer at McHenry, died yesterday after a brief illness. He came to America from Hull, England, when he was 18 years old. Thousands of Chicagoans who visited the resorts or owned cottages in the Fox river country used his craft. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon, with burial at Woodlawn cemetery.

ACCUSED OF STEALING GASOLINE.

Anna, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Nine boys, ranging in age from 12 to 18, arrested here yesterday, charged with wholesale thefts of gasoline from automobiles.

Doctor's Prescription Restores Health

GEORGE A. JAMES DIES; EX-OFFICIAL OF KANE COUNTY

George A. James, 73 years old, a former treasurer of Kane county and an active figure in Illinois politics for more than 40 years, died yesterday in his home in Aurora of a heart attack. He is survived by a widow, Julia Meredith, and a son, J. Charles James, who is solicitor general for the Burlington railroad, with offices in Chicago.

Besides being treasurer of Kane county, Mr. James also served as an alderman in Aurora and as a member of the Kane county board and the board of public works of Aurora. His father, J. C. James, was one of Aurora's pioneer business men.

Mr. James' funeral will be held in Aurora at 10:30 a. m. Monday. The Rev. B. E. Chapman, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, will have charge. Interment will be in Spring Lake cemetery.

Gen. Edwards Weaker; Takes Little Nourishment

Boston, Mass., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards was "very weak" today. Hospital attendants said he passed a fairly comfortable night, but had taken little or no nourishment. The general, who underwent an operation Jan. 15, has been in an increasingly weak condition for several days.

THE LONG LOOP

BY B. M. BOWER

SYNOPSIS.

Dix Larrabee, head of Whistling Creek ranch, was swindled in an oil well frame-up by Owen Gray, neighboring rancher and banker. Everything he owned, except the home ranch, was mortgaged. Dix, an orphan, keeps from his grandmother and his young brother, Chuck, the true state of affairs. Gram has her heart set on seeing Chuck a doctor. Chuck has expensive tastes and his indulgent older brother has a hard task paying for his college tuition and material demands.

Mart McGuire tempts Dix with the idea of changing the brand of the cattle from Gray's O T ranch to a coffeepot, symbol of Dix's own.

Tom, an Indian helper, discovers a lost valley with a geyser on the Coffeepot ranch. Only one passage leads to it, through what is seemingly a blank cliff wall. It is an ideal hideout for cattle.

With vague misgivings Dix begins rustling from Gray's herd, hiding the stolen cattle in Lost valley. A blizzard obliterates all traces of the crime. After a second raid Dix was ready to call quits, but Mart and Tom continued night riding on their own. Dix's profits mounted steadily after every shipping.

Chuck and a flyer friend, named Frosty, arrive at the ranch. Chuck confesses to Dix that he has given up a medical career for aviation. He and Frosty plan to build secretly a competitive plane for a prize. A shed built against the crevice, hiding the entrance to Lost valley, seems to them the ideal place for their work.

Dick has a row with Mart over Chuck.

Owen Gray's aunt and cousin, Helen, visit the O T ranch. Helen knew Chuck in Baltimore. She suspects something wrong between her cousin and the Larrabees.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

FEMININE INTEREST.

"I don't know as it was anything in my tone," Owen replied, "but I sure have got plenty in my mind when I think of that outfit."

"What, for instance? Larry's a good kid, Owen. I like Larry Larrabee."

"O, Chuck. I wasn't thinking of him. He may be all right, for all I know. But he sure has got a brother I'd like to get the goods on." He stopped on the creek bank and stood with his hands in his pockets, frowning at the water.

"Get the goods on—does that mean——?"

"Rustling," Owen said, glancing over his shoulder at the house. "We're keeping quiet, so don't say anything, Helen. But you might as well know what you'll be running up against if you go playing around with Chuck Larrabee. I'm laying low till I get what evidence I want, and then I'm going to bust that Coffeepot outfit wide open."

"Is that Larry's brother you mean when you say the Coffeepot outfit?"

"Dix Larrabee. Yes. He's the bird I'm out to get. He's been stealing us blind ever since—for two or three years now. I know it—we all know it as well as we know anything in the world—but he's so darn foxy we just can't catch him at it. But we will. He can't get away with it forever. He used to be straight as a string, till he thought—well, at any rate——"

Helen reached for Owen's hand and pulled him over to a rock under a tree loaded with little green plums. She sat down and pulled him down beside her. Helen was a pretty girl with brains and that indefinable air of freedom from petty thinking which comes of living much in the open. The Blue Mesa of Arizona was home country to Helen Blair and she knew cattle and brands and what goes with it much better than she knew the subjects she had majored in at school with Josephine Parker.

"Now, give us the lowdown on this Coffeepot business," she commanded when they were settled. "Larry being a very good friend of mine, I think I've a right to know his background. And you needn't be afraid I'll tell; not even Jo. You may this brother of Larry's used to be straight until he thought something or other. What was it he thought that turned him into a cattle thief?"

"It isn't Chuck that's involved," Owen pointed out. "You don't know Dix; he's the slickest rustler in the country."

This was probing the heart of the business and Owen squirmed a little.

"Well, he thought I gypped him out of some money, I guess. But that's the bunk. I acted in perfect good faith——"

"How did he think you gypped him?"

"Well, that oil rig over there." Owen pointed a finger that never had broken a nail with hard work. "That tells the whole story, if you know how to read an oil sign."

"I do, dear heart." Helen's tone was not matching the tender epithet. "I've seen millions made and I've seen them go blooey with those things. So, Larry's brother sunk some of his money in a duster! And he blamed you—is that it?"

"These pinheaded ranchers can't see over the edge of a dollar," Owen complained bitterly. "Dix went in pretty steep—we all did. Mortgaged his cattle and invested the money—he plunged. Damned money grabber. If we'd brought in a gusher he'd be sitting on top of the world and acting like he owned all that was under him. He got all he could scrape together and put it in Graypoint Oil. And she was a dry hole. Just like that." Owen threw out his hands in an eloquent gesture of defeat. "It was a complete washout."

"And Larry's brother was all washed up," Helen shrewdly surmised.

"Cleaned, yeah. But he wasn't the only one that went to the laundry—and that's where his darned pinheadedness comes in. We suffered, all of us alike. But Dix Larrabee acted like it was all framed, with him as the victim. He just as good as told me at the trial that we'd framed him."

"At the trial. It did get into court, then?"

"O, yeah. The stockholders squealed like stuck pigs. Brought suit against the company for misuse of funds. All a lot of baloney, of course. The jury acquitted us without ever leaving the jury box. And that was that."

"Only, according to you, that was not that in Dix Larrabee's opinion. There was some more, he thought."

"Well, yes. You might put it like that, only, of course, he's all wet if he thinks I robbed him. That doesn't give him the license to start rustling O. T. cattle."

"Are you sure he did?"

"And how! Clancy Brown—he's my foreman, you know—he reported a couple of hundred head gone in one haul. Wiped off the range slick—and—clean. If the Coffeepot didn't get away with them, who did?"

"But a bunch like that would have to be driven clear out of the country, wouldn't you suppose? How could they steal that many cattle and leave no trace?"

"And that," said Owen Gray, in a tone heavy with gloom, "is the vital question. Clancy rode over there a few days after the cattle came up missing. He never saw hoof nor hair of 'em. Dix was slick enough to take him around over the ranch, clear up to the head of the basin, and let him look his eyes out. And there wasn't a thing out of the way. After that he missed another bunch and paid another visit to the Coffeepot ranch. Nothing doing. And ever since then cattle have come up missing."

"But why Larry's brother?"

"Well, it's hard to say how I know, but I do. Dix is the quiet kind that'll wait like an Injun to get his dirty work in. Besides, he's been making money since we've been losing stock. His beef shipments are bigger than they ever were before—that's pretty darn strong evidence, it seems to me."

"But how do you think he does it?"

"Well, that's what sticks me. I'd give a whole lot to know his system." Owen leaned and scooped a handful of pebbles from the ground and began flipping them one by one into the water. "That's what I'm stalling for. Clancy's been watching him like a hawk, and I had a stock detective working on the case all last summer, but even he couldn't get a line on Dix."

"Well, you know it may be just because he's innocent," Helen ventured. "Some outside gang may be stealing from you. I don't suppose he's the only stockman in the country who lost money in your oil well, is he?"

"I'll say he isn't! They all did. Dix Larrabee just bucked the game a little stronger than the rest, is all."

Helen sat for a few minutes watching the ringed ripples slide away from the little splashes where the pebbles landed.

"You really haven't a thing to go on, have you, Owen? Just the fact that he is making money with his cattle, and that is nothing strange, with a rising market and good range conditions and all. I know plenty of cattlemen who are getting rich and paying off their debts. You see, dad is a director in our bank at home, and all the ranchers come to him with their business problems, and when I'm home I help him a lot in the office. So I do know more than I would ordinarily. And it doesn't look like much of a case against them—I mean the Larrabees."

"It isn't Chuck that's involved," Owen pointed out. "You don't know Dix; he's the slickest rustler in the country."

"Well, I can see where I must meet this Dix person. Lend me your car, Owen! Jo and I'll just beat it over there and shake little boy friend Larry by the hand."

"Sure. Go ahead. And say, Helen, maybe you can do more than all the rest of us put together—toward getting the lowdown on Dix, if you know what I mean. Would you do that for me, beautiful? Sleuth a little, and the like of that?"

"Way, that's what I'm going for!" she snubbed him. "If Larry's brother is a common cow thief, I want to know it—and I can't know it any too soon!"

Good Morning!

Power, beauty, swing, honesty, imagination! All of these has "Cimarron." It IS a picture.

Story of the west [the rise of Oklahoman]; it's not like other stories of the west. Epic of "covered wagon days"—it's mighty slack on the covered wagons. "Cimarron" doesn't despise symbols, but goes beyond and beneath them. It wastes little footage with the time honored caravan tolling across the plains to a final haven—and clinch for the lovers of the piece—but plunges into the absorbing yarn of a man and a woman who helped to build a civilization. A fine, strong, breezy story that carries you from the great Oklahoma land rush in 1889 to the days of 1929 when a great state royally justifies the faith of its pioneers.

After what was done to "Show Boat" on the screen, it's a wonder that Edna Ferber, stunned, didn't keel back into the lap of a strong resolve to never, never again play games with the motion picture industry. But—the brave woman took another chance—and well it is that she did. "Cimarron" should rejoice her heart and swell her coffers.

Richard Dix plays picturesquely and well the hero, Yancey Cravat—romantic, restless, dreaming, daring, doing, flamboyant, adventurer, editor, fighter and lover of a man, who, with his gallant girl wife, and their child—and Negro boy Isaiah—leave the comforts of Wichita, Kas., and forge forth to make a new land bloom. Yancey loves well his wife and children, but he wasn't born for fireside ways and so—he must be on and away—ever to new fields and new excitements. Sabra? Well, Sabra stays home, minds the fires and the youngsters, becomes a power in the community—and is elected to congress.

Irene Dunne plays Sabra beautifully. In the last scenes especially she gets you—and right by the throat.

Estelle Taylor does an excellent and persuasive bit of acting as Dixie Lee, the town's principal lady of pleasure, who is befriended by Yancey Cravat. Edna May Oliver is something grand as a Mrs. Tracy Wyatt. The only thing SHE has to do to get a laugh is to just do anything. George Stone is very clever as Sol Levy, and all other rôles are played. I would say, in a manner to please the most critical. Photography, sound and lines hit on all cylinders.

Much credit is due the director. Mr. Ruggles has been so broad, so canny, so far sighted! No detail has been neglected—such as difference in apparel rung in by changing periods—but he has not permitted detail to interfere with the sweep and bigness of the production as a whole. He was hired to make "Cimarron" a motion picture and he has made it a REAL motion picture. It never stops or diddles about, but moves grandly and compellingly from crashing start to warm, human finish.

You should see "Cimarron"; your mother and father should see it; all your children should see it—and so should theirs if they have any. The dog and cat would get a kick out of it, too, but, alas, their place is in the home.

See you tomorrow.

Persian Palace Ruins Are Found Above It.

OXFORD, England, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A city so ancient that its ruins show watermarks left by the biblical flood has been discovered a few miles east of Babylon by the Oxford University Field museum expedition in Mesopotamia.

On top of it is the first well preserved palace of the Sassanian dynasty of Persian kings ever found. And the discovery of the palace was largely accidental.

Prof. Stephen Langdon, the American-born director of the expedition, explained it to the Associated Press today.

The field director, he said, waiting to begin excavations on the main hill over the site of the ancient city, set his Arab workmen to leveling the mounds of earth nearby. They had not been at work for a week before one wall and two gateways of the royal Persian palace had been laid bare. Prof. Langdon estimates its date at about 350 A. D.

Below it, in layers representing the various stages of civilization, are the ruins of buildings which preceded the palace. Vertical shafts in the gray hill show buildings dating back to the ancient Sumerians, the first known civilized race, and the water marks on the ruins show when the city was inundated by the biblical flood and by another earlier and greater flood.

The Roman empire was constantly at war with the Sassanian kings, and Prof. Langdon believes the palace will contribute new information on this period of the Roman empire. Gold ornaments and pieces of sculpture already found show a blend of Persian and Greco-Roman influences.

Gotham Club Women Attack Methods of New York Police

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The New York City Federation of Women's Clubs today in an official report condemned the police stool pigeon system and demanded sweeping reforms in the Women's court and enforcement of the vice laws against men and women alike.

The report was presented at the annual convention of the organization by the committee on unjust convictions of women. It represents a survey which that committee made following the recent vice scandals and the sentencing of women defendants on "framed" evidence.

More than 395 member organizations, with a membership of 100,000, were represented today at the federation convention. Here is the report on stool pigeons:

"This committee also believes that the system of the police 'squealers' to bring about arrests which result in framing innocent women, to keep up a high average of arrests, does not aim at fair play or a just and honest enforcement of the law, and is a practice to be condemned by every honest citizen, and the practice should be abolished."

Bernard Shaw Hits Back at Critic for Censure of Composer

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Bernard Shaw has joined other outstanding men in a public protest against the treatment accorded Sir Edward Elgar in an article on modern English music contributed to a German reference book by Edward Joseph Dent, professor of music at Cambridge university.

The Protestants term the references to Elgar as "unjust and inadequate" pointing out that Prof. Dent gave but sixteen lines to the composer, and said of him "For English ears Elgar's music is much too emotional and not free from vulgarity."

Said Shaw: "Elgar's music holds the same position in England as Beethoven's in Germany and the vulgarity of his more popular tunes is the vulgarity of Handel's 'See the Conquering Hero,' or the finale of Beethoven's fifth."

Sir Edward Elgar's best known work is the "Pomp and Circumstance" series.

North Shore Alumnae of Michigan to Give Luncheon

The north shore alumnae of the University of Michigan are entertaining the Chicago alumnae at luncheon at the Orrington hotel in Evanston today at 1 o'clock. Dr. Marguerite Wilker, director of the University Nursery school at Ann Arbor, is to talk on "Nursery Schools and Supervision of Children's Play." Frances Capthorne, composer, and Norma Bosworth, soprano, are to sing two groups of children's songs. Reservations may be made by calling the Orrington.

STIMSON PRAISES U. S. POLICIES AS THE BEST FOR LATIN AMERICA

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, at a dinner of the council on foreign relations at Sherry's tonight, upheld the Latin American policy of the United States as noble in its general conception and devoted, in spite of certain lapses in the past, to safeguarding the independence and welfare of the republics in this hemisphere, as well as to protecting the interests of the United States.

Secretary Stimson explained the basis on which the United States had recognized the governments which had come into power as a result of revolutions and defended the course of the American administration in forbidding the shipment of arms to Brazilian rebels last October, two days before the government fell and the rebels took over the reins. In doing so he strongly criticized the "non-recognition policy" of President Wilson. He replied to criticisms of our Latin American policy made last month by John Bassett Moore, counselor of the state department under Wilson.

The historic policy of the United States, Mr. Stimson explained, had been to recognize a new government as soon as it demonstrated its stability and its willingness to discharge international obligations, without regard to how it got into power.

President Wilson, however, radically departed from that policy, Mr. Stimson went on, by refusing to recognize Victoriano Huerta as president of Mexico because he had come in through arbitrary force. Armed conflict with the forces of Mexico followed, Mr. Stimson reminded his hearers, and disturbed relations between the United States and Mexico for years.

The present administration has abandoned the Wilson policy, Mr. Stimson continued, and returned to the traditional one of de facto recognition. It was in accord with the classic American policy, he pointed out, that the state department had recognized the new South American régimes.

A different situation obtained in Central America, Mr. Stimson said. There not only vital American commercial and strategic interests centered around the Panama canal but republics in that region were most subject to disorder and revolution.

John W. Davis, president of the council, presided and introduced Mr. Stimson.

Former Prisoners Are Making Good Mrs. Booth Declares

When society seeks to rebuild its prison population into law abiding citizenry, it must go inside prison walls to lay the foundation for that reclamation project, Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth yesterday told the Executives club of Chicago, out of the fullness of more than thirty years' experience in such efforts. She is the wife of Gen. Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers of America, and the founder of the Volunteer Prison league.

"My years of contacts in prisons from coast to coast," Mrs. Booth said, addressing the luncheon gathering of the organization, "have taught me that you cannot deal with these men in the aggregate as though they were a bunch of cattle. Each man you deal with is a soul and every soul saved is worth the fight. We are proud of the fact that during the last two years 6,500 men have been paroled to our homes in different parts of the country and that out of that number less than 5 per cent failed to make good on parole.

"One of our first moves in beginning this work many years ago was to band the men together in prison in the membership of the Volunteer Prison league by pledging them to five promises that would make a good citizen inside prison or out. Up to the present time there have been enrolled 150,000 men in that organization, and I meet them everywhere. We have had 40,000 men pass through our houses, and the number who get their chance and do not make good constitute a surprisingly small percentage.

"In my years of prison work, my heart has not been broken by discouragement, but cheered by hope. Our message to every prisoner has been 'Forget the past. Lay a new foundation. Get ready for the future.' And then when each leaves those walls behind, we see to it that he gets a chance, and a job, and the cheer and friendship he needed."

Nations' Chiefs Recall U. S. Pact with the French

Hoover, Doumergue Both Send Messages.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Franco-American amity as it existed from the days of the American revolution through the world war and to the present day was stressed at a luncheon given today by the France-America society. The meeting was to commemorate the anniversary of the first treaty between the two countries on Feb. 6, 1778.

Before speeches were made by Ambassador Paul Claudel, Bishop William T. Manning, Dr. John H. Finley and William D. Guthrie, the president of the society, messages from President Hoover and President Gaston Doumergue of France were read. President Hoover's message follows:

"The celebration of the anniversary of the signing of the treaties with France at Paris on Feb. 6, 1778, is a valuable manifestation of an historic friendship and helps keep alive the feelings of international understanding and good will which are so essential as the firm foundations of world peace. I send to you (Mr. Guthrie) and the Franco-American society my cordial greetings and good wishes.

"HERBERT HOOVER."

The message from the president of France, read by M. Claudel, was as follows:

"It is with an ever renewed pleasure that I observe the faithfulness of your memory of all that recalls the already distant origins of French-American friendship. With all my heart I shall be with you in the mind at your reunion at which you will celebrate that great date which represents the anniversary of the treaties of 1778. In the name of France and in my own behalf I send to you my most cordial wishes. DOUMERGUE."

In reviewing the Franco-American treaties of alliance and commerce, Ambassador Claudel said that was the first time that an alliance had been enforced on a reluctant government by the strength of opinion and the direct will of one nation.

"In that circumstance," said M. Claudel, "there is no doubt that much was due to the skill, to the great mind, and to the great heart of the principal American negotiator, Benjamin Franklin. But the bulk of the motive power was supplied by such enthusiasts as La Fayette and Beaumarchais, who had not waited for the final signing of a contract parchment, but who for many years already had freely spent their money and their blood for a cause which they considered as being not only the liberation of a few colonies but the freedom and the coming of age of humanity.

"It was the first instance where a great nation united its strength with another nation, not primarily for any material interest, although national interests and political calculations were, of course, very far from being absent from the minds of the negotiators, but for the cause of a common ideal. And it is with great joy that we find the same character and the same motives in the intervention of America in the European war in 1917."

Since this new era in international alliances there has come about a new era in international diplomacy, said M. Claudel. The days of the specialists are gone and public opinion has come to the forefront. Foreign affairs have become such a serious thing that they must be submitted to the inspection and control of general opinion.

"The fault of specialists," continued M. Claudel, "is that they lose sight of the relative importance of problems; that their technical point of honor obscures the general interests and that they are likely to lose the sense of realities. Today we all perfectly understand what war means, and diplomacy has only one issue, one big article in its program, and that is peace, because war today does not only mean guns, cruisers, money and untold sufferings for the fighting men. It means also revolution."

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BATAVIA, Java, Feb. 6.—Miss Alicia Patterson, American flyer, and Miss Elizabeth Chase of Chicago arrived at Jokjokarta, eastern Java, from Australia yesterday. They are now making preparations to fly from there to Singapore, a distance oversea of 775 miles. They expect to take off within two or three days, weather permitting.

Liquid Diet for Brief Season Will Make Pounds Fly

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Twice within the last week I have been told by women that they had to lose six pounds in a week. Five pounds would do, in one case. Six was asked in the other. The first woman had a most important formal dinner engagement to which she could not go unless she could get into a dress she bought early in the season, but had already outgrown.

The other was a friend on a shopping tour with me who saw a dress she wanted, the only dress that would do. But it was too tight. It bear-hugged her arms and chest, and across her lower back it was pretty snug.

Now, in each case, the extra weight recently acquired was due to an improvident holiday season, from which reform was difficult. The extra poundage was something that could come off quickly with the right determination, and of course I don't know anything that will supply a woman with determination like a "special date," or a new frock she must have, regardless. Any way, I feel they'll both come through, all right, with such impetus behind them.

Of course, I suggested the good old liquid diet, for it is just what the patient needs when she wants to remove fat that has been recently acquired for no good reason. Take fruit juice or soup, according to your choice. Or you can go on a milk diet for one week, taking three quarts of skimmed milk a day with no other food but orange juice. You are allowed the juice of four oranges daily—one glass every couple of hours.

The fruit juice diet may be made tasty with one grapefruit, two oranges, and two lemons squeezed out and water to fill a pitcher added. Drink frequently through the day. If you become hungry, eat a whole orange.

The soup you take at luncheon and dinner time. Strained vegetable soup is recommended, but no cream soups, of course. You may have to take coffee and a piece of toast for breakfast. But let the rest of the day be liquid.

Beauty Answers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

H. L.: DRINK WATER WITH your meals if you wish, but do not use it to wash down the food. If water is taken while food is in the mouth the chances are the food will be improperly chewed and not sufficiently mixed with the saliva and indigestion results.

J. L.: TO REMOVE WARTS FROM the hands the folowing lotion is recommended: One dram salicylic acid, one ounce flexible collodion. Mix well. Apply with a tiny camel's hair brush for four nights. Then soak in hot water and remove the horny covering. Continue until wart has disappeared.

Holds Reunion This Evening.

Camp Court Oreilles will hold its annual reunion and dinner this evening at the Stevens hotel. Maj. W. A. Radzinski, director of the camp, will present honor cups and medals.

C. Sudler Jr. and Baltimore Girl Are Engaged

BY THALIA ——.

MR. AND MRS. W. FRANK ROBERTS of 4007 Greenway, Baltimore, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Marian Elizabeth, to Carroll Sudler Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Sudler of 232 East Walton place.

Miss Roberts, after finishing at Miss Master's school at Dobbs Ferry, spent a year in Paris. She is now secretary of the Junior league in Baltimore. Mr. Sudler is a graduate of Yale, class of 1917. He was captain in the first division of the American Expeditionary forces. The wedding is to take place in the spring.

To this formal announcement—which reveals an interesting and, I'm given to understand, a hitherto unsuspected romance—we feel impelled to add that Mr. Sudler, who has been one of Chicago's most popular eligibles, but pretty much of a confirmed bachelor, met his fiancée quite recently.

Husband Confesses Idea for Surprise Birthday Party.

One thing and another . . . Ralph R. Richardson gave a lovely birthday party for Mrs. Richardson the other night [he started to have it a surprise party and then broke down and told her beforehand for fear she mightn't like being surprised—lots of people hate it, you know]; there was a buffet supper, and backgammon afterwards—everybody brought cute presents, one of them a copy of Peter Arno's "Hullabaloo" all done up in a funny paper. . . . Mr. and Mrs. George M. Silverthorne Jr. of 1342 North Dearborn announce the birth of a son on Thursday at the Passavant hospital, to be named Thornton Dixon Silverthorne, after his maternal grandfather [Mrs. Silverthorne was Miss Jeanette Dixon of Monroe, Mich., before her marriage last March]. . . . Mrs. Howard Willetts had a midnight supper last night just for stage people—she expected to have about 35 actors and actresses, including Ethel Barrymore and John Drew Colt.

The marriage of Miss Emily Hamill, daughter of the Robert W. Hamills of Hinsdale, to Fifield Workum, son of Mrs. Julius F. Workum of New York, is to take place today at the Hamills' winter place, Bellefontaine Point, at Ocean Springs, Miss. The bride's two nieces, Katharine and Ann Hamill, are to be flower girls, and Roswell Miller of New York is to be best man. Only the family and a small group of friends are to be in attendance, and it's all to be most informal.

Those Florida Bound and Others to Travel Elsewhere.

Taking trains and boats 'n' things . . . Mr. and Mrs. Wilton B. Martin of 181 East Walton place depart today for Belleair, Fla. . . . Mrs. Stanley Field and her daughter, Mrs. T. Clifford Rodman, are going down to the Fields' estate at Sarasota, Fla., today also, to remain for several months. . . . Mrs. Tommy Wheelock was planning to leave last night for Columbus to join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rend, there (Mr. Rend has been in the hospital in Columbus, but is out now), and Miss Helen Rend is departing tomorrow for the same destination. . . . Mary Ott of Winnetka has returned from a round of visits in Annapolis and Baltimore. . . . Mrs. William J. Calhoun, who has been with her brother and sister-in-law, the William S. Monroes, has departed to visit in the east, Dedham, New York, and Washington, and will be gone until April, when she is to return to Chicago. . . . Mrs. F. Edson White departed last night for San Diego.

And so forth. . . . . Mrs. Leon Mitchell of Rock Island and Mrs. Menefee Wirgman of Louisville have been here this week, staying at the Ambassador East, and their respective husbands are joining them for the week-end (Mrs. Mitchell tells me that they read about Stu Prince's kitchen parties with great interest, because they've been all the rage in Rock Island this winter, and everybody thinks they're lots more fun than dress up affairs—pianos and victrolas are dragged out into kitchens for dancing after buffet suppers off kitchen tables). . . . The Melvin Traylors returned Thursday from a 10 day combined business and social trip to Dallas, Tex. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Barnes of Lake Forest depart today for Pasadena, and Elmer Stevens, Harry Wheeler, and John W. O'Leary, vice presidents of the Chicago Sunday Evening club, will tend to Mr. Barnes' presiding jobs while he's away.

The alumnæ association of the Girls' Latin school are holding a luncheon today at the Ambassador. Miss Elizabeth Singleton, principal of the school, will speak. The officers of the association this year are Mrs. Franklin Agnew, president; Mrs. Theophilus Noel III., vice president; Miss Josephine Wilkins, secretary and treasurer. The alumnæ committee consists of Mrs. Edward Harkness and Miss Helen Manhoff.

BRITISH BISHOP SAYS BIBLE CREATION STORY HAS BEEN OUTGROWN

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Loud laughter ended a debate in the church assembly on the Genesis version of the creation today in conclusion of a protest from the bishop of Birmingham, Dr. Barnes, against a literal acceptance of the Bible story.

The traditional narrative of the beginning was mentioned facetiously and the bishop protested by asserting that science now knows the age of the world with "very considerable accuracy, and that the approximate age of the earth was between two and four thousand million years."

The Bishop of London, Dr. Wittington-Ingram, who was presiding ruled out further discussion on the matter.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover today was the luncheon guest of Mrs. Robert P. Lamont of Chicago, wife of the secretary of commerce. Other guests were wives of the members of the cabinet.

Vice President Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gann were given a dinner tonight by the secretary of agriculture and Mrs. Hyde at the Mayflower.

The secretary of state and Mrs. Stimson went to New York this afternoon to spend the week-end.

Cards were issued today by the Congressional club for their last official evening reception this season. It will be on Monday evening, Feb. 16, in honor of the speaker and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Covington of Lake Forest, Ill., have taken an apartment at the New Shoreham for the remainder of the season.

Delta Sigma Party.

Members of the active and alumnae chapters of Delta Sigma club of the University of Chicago will give a luncheon and program today at the Midland club. The affair is in honor of the founders of the club. Mrs. George Wright Bronson, assisted by Miss Florence Janes, is in charge of the arrangements.

Pamper Child a Bit When He Must Be Kept in Bed

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"His cold hangs on and on—I simply can't keep him in bed," wailed his mother.

Well, I must say, I understand and sympathize with almost every difficulty mothers have. But when I hear a mother say "I can't keep him in bed," or "He simply won't stay in bed," I do feel impatient with them.

"I haven't done a bit of sewing so far this week," the mother of a convalescent child complained the other day. "Billy's been calling me and calling me. And he's so cranky. I'm nearly frantic."

You can keep a convalescent child in bed and contented, too, if you'll take the trouble. You can make him rest. But you have to be determined to do so and also you have to be willing to let housework or sewing or your personal concerns go by the board for the time being—and expect to have your legs ache good and hard at the end of the day!

As every one knows, children hate staying in bed. So, to keep them in bed and more than that, to keep them happy and occupied in bed takes a little managing and lots of patience.

To start with, one of the greatest comforts a mother can have is a regular little bed-breakfast tray with feet. It can take care of many things other than meals. These trays can be bought inexpensively in the natural wood as well as painted and decorated. A table for the side of the bed which will hold books, pencils, paints, small toys, etc., is almost necessary and saves many steps for the busy mother.

In planning occupations for convalescent children you have to take several things into consideration.

First, you must not give them fussy or too difficult things to do, as they use up too much energy working them out, and are apt to become nervous or get headaches from the tension.

Next, you must consider their eyes when they're recovering from certain illnesses, like measles. They must be given occupations which are not a strain on the eyes.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

This dress will please any girl, it has such a grown-up air, the two piece skirt, set onto the bodice in a pointed outline is just like the mode for elders. The dress buttons down the back—a new idea straight from Paris. It will adapt itself beautifully to wool crêpe, supple tweed, wool challis, rayon novelties, and the heavier weight cottons.

The pattern, 2,930, comes in sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

STOCK'S ORCHESTRA PRESENTS 2 WORKS OF RUSSIAN AUTHORSHIP

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Two compositions, a symphony and a symphonic poem, on the program of the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday afternoon bore the label showing that they were being played in Chicago for the first time. More than once it has been pointed out that one of the qualities that make Dr. Stock the conductor that he is may be found in the unflagging zeal with which he presents new music to the public. For out of this practice grows the permanent répertoire.

The symphony was the tenth from the pen of Nicholas Miaskowsky of Russia. The symphonic poem was "The Enchanted Isle," by Louis Gruenberg, of Russian birth and American residence. Of the two, the general verdict inclines toward the latter.

At least it betokens a more cheerful mood. The composer indicates in the program notes that the title has nothing to do with geography and a great deal with a state of mind. It was one of a set of four projected during the war "in an attempt to make the world somewhat pleasanter than the one existing then," laid aside for over eight years, and then picked up again and rescored. In its present form it has a lot of charm, imaginative melody, and melody. Though Mr. Gruenberg rates it as a sort of bridge between his former musical manner and that of the present, the rest of us will probably be willing to give it classification as one of the highly pleasant musical experiences of the season.

The Miaskowsky symphony is the portrayal of a set of moods, mostly violent, something of a Mary Wigman among compositions, attracting attention by the unexpectedness of its posturings and the earnestness if not always the beauty of its statements.

Miaskowsky is apparently the most prominent of the Russian composers to have developed in the soviet régime. Of the five symphonies by him which Dr. Stock has so far presented, this would seem to be the most deliberately malicious in its scrambling of dissonant sounds. It is a method of composition approved by those who like it because of its so-called truth. But must truth be invariably unpleasant? One seems to remember that there are many kinds of things in this world of ours, all equally true but not equally disagreeable.

The rest of the program consisted of Rabaud's "La Procession Nocturne," a gratifying fantasy making a respectful salaam in the direction of Richard Wagner; Mozart's Symphony in D major, not played as often as at least three others of the Mozart collection, and Liszt's "Tasso: Lamento e Trionfo."

Another American Opera.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A dream of an opera—Deems Taylor's "Peter Ibbetson"—will be presented to the world tomorrow in the glamorous setting of the Metropolitan Opera house.

Peter will be Edward Johnson. Another American singer, Lawrence Tibbett, will play Col. Ibbetson. Lucrezia Bori will sing Mary, the rôle Constance Collier played in the stage production of the Du Maurier work nearly 15 years ago.

Deems Taylor, whose previous compositions include the opera "The King's Henchman," "The Looking Glass" suite and the ballet interpolated in "The Beggar on Horseback," clung closely to the stage script in setting the story into an opera. Miss Collier, who made the play from the Du Maurier novel, assisted in the libretto.

The performance is in English except for one scene in French and several French folk songs.

Four Benefit Through Sally's Help Finding Jobs for the Needy

A manicurist, a hotel maid, a bindery girl, and a practical nurse were among the unemployed persons to benefit from offers of work made by readers of THE TRIBUNE yesterday through Sally Joy Brown. Miss Brown turns over all such offers to the Illinois Free Employment service at 116 North Dearborn street.

J. E., in a south side barber shop, offered the manicurist's job, with the stipulation that all she collected was hers. D. T. M., manager of an apartment hotel on North Central avenue, offered $16 a week to a maid.

J. D. L., on Kedzie avenue, said he would pay a man 50 cents an hour to clean his office. Sally Joy Brown appreciated that offer, as men's jobs are scarce and many more men than women wait without jobs at the employment agency.

Mrs. P. J. offered a man 50 cents an hour to clean her basement today. She lives in the 1600 block on North Moddy avenue. Hers was an idea which others can use in creating jobs.

Mrs. E. F., in the 6000 block on Kenmore avenue, said she would like to have a girl come to her home for two hours every day for two weeks to wash baby's clothes at 50 cents an hour.

The F. press, in the 300 block on South Wabash avenue, offered a temporary job to a bindery girl, to be paid on piece work.

C. W. S., in the 7000 block on Glenwood avenue, asked for a boy to deliver orders. Mrs. J. K., in the 4500 block on North Sacramento avenue, provided a job for a practical nurse by the week. A part time job for a girl, wrapping popcorn, was offered by L. T., in the 4200 block on Elston avenue.

Dr. H. M., in the 4700 block on Magnolia avenue, provided a job for a woman to clean by the hour, at 50 cents an hour and carfare. Mrs. G. H., in the 6300 block on Kenmore avenue, offered a man 50 cents an hour to wash windows.

Plaid Jacket Suggests Spring to Fair Golfer

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—I've written so much about plaids for spring that my typewriter has taken to spelling with a Scotch burr. But there seems to be nothing for it but to go on talking about them, for smart Parisiennes, whether they're in the north or in the south, or right here in Paris, are deriving a large proportion of their well known chic from plaid.

They are wearing plaids in silks, in woolens, in cottons, in chiffons. They're wearing plaid scarves and accessories with plain frocks, plaid skirts with plain jackets, or plain skirts with plaid jackets. Prints have taken unto themselves plaid backgrounds and some sports fabrics are even printed with plaid leaves.

Nothing could be more girlish and springlike than the golf suit from Jane Regny sketched above. The skirt is of navy blue twill, a material that is much favored by Paris couturiers. It's gored—an ideal cut for a "real sports" skirt, allowing enough width for perfect freedom and eliminating unnecessary bulk. The seams are visibly stitched and there are two handy diagonal pockets to lend extra dash [not to mention holding cash].

The waistlength blouse-jacket is of red, yellow, and navy plaid Scotch woolen. It's gathered into a wide band of plaid at the waist. The big buttons are navy blue bone. It has a tailored notched collar of the plaid. The underblouse of Regny's new, fine, white wool tricot has a similar collar, somewhat smaller, worn outside the jacket, which has two diagonal breast pockets that recall the skirt.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Needs Carpenter's Tools.

"I am a young man with a wife and child and have been out of work for the last eighteen months. I have just secured a job doing carpentry work and will need tools which I cannot buy. Do you think through your column I could get a rip saw, a hand saw, a keyhole saw, or compass, a brace and bits, a set of wood chisels, a square, a block plane and a jack plane? If the tools are not in good condition I can fix them up myself. I shall be grateful for any of them.

"R. N."

Having a job again after such a long seige of unemployment gives this young man new hope and courage. I hope we can get him the tools which will enable him to keep it.

Food Talk.

What are truffles? How are they used in cookery and where may they be obtained? The intriguing name is seen occasionally in cook books where it is an ingredient of some unusual dish or used as a garnish.

They are a kind of fungus which grows in clusters a few inches under the ground somewhat like a potato. But they have neither roots nor stems of any description. The spores or seeds concealed in the cells develop within the truffle. The secret to their mysterious propagation has been found in the activity of insects attracted by the peculiar aromatic odor of the truffle which permeates the soil. Insects break in and carry the spores to the leaves of nearby trees, where the spores develop and are later carried back to the soil.

The truffle takes so much of the nutriment out of the soil that only the trees which shade the ground can grow in the vicinity. A hunter of truffles, therefore, recognizes their habitat by the bare and somewhat cracked surface of the soil. They are hunted in a most interesting way.

Trained dogs and hogs that are leashed locate the "hills" of truffles and men accompanying these animals rescue the truffles. The harvest is in the winter time and extends over a period of three or four months. Truffles are grown in France, England, Germany, and Italy. The finest, however, are produced in France. The finest variety is known as the Perigord. They are almost black in color. Other varieties range in color from a grayish black to a brown.

Truffles are much used in French cookery. From the earliest times the peasants have cooked them and their old method is as good as any. This consists in washing the truffles and then covering each one separately with fat. Each truffle was then put into buttered paper and then into another thicker one and they were cooked between two layers of hot cinders for about 50 minutes.

As a flavoring they are exceedingly valuable, though they prove indigestible to some people. The famous perigord pate de foie gras is always seasoned with them. It was when regaling himself on this choice dish that Sydney Smith (the famous epicure) declared that his idea of heaven was eating pate de foie gras to the sound of trumpets. A portion of a truffle in a cold vegetable salad transforms a bourgeois into an aristocratic dish and a little truffle is good with almost any game either roasted or served in a ragout.

Truffles may be bought at all seasons of the year in bottles. American cooks, of course, must depend on the imported bottled kind.

Wife Tells How She Helped Quiet Mate to Become Sociable

BY DORIS BLAKE.

One type of husband is frequently reported in my correspondence, and a type of husband-to-be, whose extreme quietness and lack of desire to go about or be with people other than the chosen girl, worries. I get this type in both before and after marriage reports. They're generally fine men, devoted to the girl—but so awfully reticent, bashful, and shy that they are difficult to handle.

Perhaps Grace's method of meeting such emergency of temperament may be a guide to you. She says: "My advice to the young lady who is engaged to marry the quiet chap is to marry him if she loves him. I married one of those silent ones, twelve years ago, and I have found that with a little patience and effort on my part it was possible to help him cultivate a more pleasing personality.

"My husband didn't care to go places. He preferred to spend his evenings alone with me. So that the arrangement would not prove too lonesome a one for me, I made it my business to get my work finished in the morning so that I could occasionally go to bridge parties and other affairs in the afternoons.

"Then gradually I saw to it that my husband made acquaintances. I invited people in evenings for bridge. At first I never asked more than one couple at a time until he got better acquainted. As time went on he got to enjoy those evenings of bridge. Often, before the people would come, I'd tell my husband of the delightful time I'd had at their house and tell him how much I'd appreciate it if we could give them as good a time. He was always anxious to please me, and in this desire he often forgot to be self-conscious at all. Only a little at first, but before long he was acting quite freely. Indeed, after twelve years of married life with a quiet man I find I am much happier than many of my friends who married the so-called 'life of the party.' GRACE."

Chicagoan Returns.

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Emily Webb of Chicago returned from Europe on board the Lloyd-Sabaudo liner Conte Grande today.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

She Feels Neglected.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 19 and my boy friend is 23. We both care for each other, but he doesn't take me out three times a week, sometimes only twice. He has been working for some time. Do you think it advisable to go out with another fellow and not let him know? J. M."

It's rather selfish to expect so much of the young man, don't you think? He is being generous with you, I should say. Of course, you have the right to go out with other boys—but don't do it secretly.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

GIVING HOES A REST.

"It may be new fangled, but let's try it," is the sentiment that vegetable and flower gardeners are spreading before spring begins as they talk about parking their hoes in out of the way places this next spring and summer and relying on paper mulch to keep down the weeds.

Arguments for the use of sheets of paper mulch do not stress the saving in labor which very few gardeners would begrudge, anyway, as they consider gardening a means of obtaining the daily dozen ways of stretching muscles.

The major argument is that the victory over weeds and the immense saving of moisture hoarded in the soil during spring rains will give bumper crops or better flowers as compared to results from what has been a standard method of gardening for centuries. Seed and bulb stores selling the rolls of paper mulch indicate that the material purchased in reasonable quantities should cost around two and one-third cents per square yard for small lots, while in acreages the cost is estimated by the United States department of agriculture to one-third of that amount, or $35 an acre.

"Don't buy such a mulch if it is merely desired to use it for killing weeds without producing plants in the garden," advises a salesman, who says that ordinary tar paper will do the work of killing off quack grass or other weeds just as well as the more expensive mulch paper.

Two methods are suggested for planting in plots where the strips of mulch will be used for conserving moisture and removing necessity of hacking with a hoe. One is to plant through holes in the mulch and another is to sow seeds or transplant between strips laid fairly close together. Two qualities are being sold, one being used for annuals and another somewhat heavier for perennial plantings. In either case it is seldom that the mulch is usable the second time.

LEVINSKY KNOCKS OUT GAGNON IN 3D ROUND

NORTHWESTERN, CHICAGO FIVES CLASH TONIGHT

Free Throws, Yates Maroon Hopes.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

If Northwestern's undefeated basketball team wins its skirmish tonight with Chicago at Patten gymnasium and then adds a conquest over Minnesota on the same floor Monday, the Wildcats may relax a bit and enjoy the battle of the contenders for second place in the Big Ten.

Northwestern has won nine times this year in its campaign to add a basketball title to the gridiron championship achieved last fall. Five of these victories were over nonconference foes, while Ohio State, Illinois, and Michigan twice have been unable to match the ability of Coach Lonborg's quintet.

N. U. Victory No Certainty.

While Chicago is not given an even chance in tonight's game, Northwestern's victory is by no means a certainty. Chicago will offer an attack unlike that of any other Northwestern opponent this season, and if the Maroons can gain possession of the ball equally in attempts against their taller rivals, they may win. Chicago has won from Indiana and Minnesota each by one point, and has lost to Michigan, 41 to 15, and to Minnesota at Minneapolis, 30 to 27. The defeat by Michigan, which lost twice to Northwestern, occurred when Sid Yates, Chicago's most versatile forward, was out of the game with an attack of influenza.

Here Are N. U. Advantages.

Northwestern will have these advantages tonight:

1. The game will be played on the home court, which, according to Dr. Walter Meanwell, Wisconsin coach, is equivalent to an 8 point advantage.

2. Bob McCarnes, Northwestern center, probably will outjump Parsons at center, and Reiff, Smith, and Marshall also will contribute to a general advantage in height. This height will be capitalized by preventing Chicago's follow-up shots and also in following up Northwestern's shots. The Wildcats should score two or three field goals on these short shots, while Chicago cannot be assured it will score any.

Every Wildcat a Scorer.

3. All five Northwestern players probably will figure in the scoring, although Reiff, McCarnes, Riel, and Marshall will carry the burden of the offense. Chicago has Marshall Fish, Sid Yates, and Paul Stephenson as its most dangerous scorers. Parsons probably cannot break through Northwestern's under the basket defense, while Ashley is not dangerous from the floor. He may be supplanted by Jim Porter. Porter will strengthen the offense, but the change will weaken Chicago's defense.

4. When and if Joe Reiff plays on Northwestern's free throw line it remains to be seen if Chicago can stop the play. Joe scored ten field goals in the first Notre Dame game, most of them from the pivot play.

Lists Maroons' Chances.

Chicago's advantages tonight will be:

1. Yates is the fastest forward Northwestern's guards have met this year. In addition, he and Fish attack making short dribble-in shots. If either or both are hot Northwestern may have a close battle all the way.

2. This driving, dribbling attack generally causes opponents to foul. Chicago is an excellent free throwing team. Northwestern isn't, and if the Wildcats have an off night, such as against Illinois, when they failed in 17 of 24 attempts, Chicago may come through.

3. Chicago is a great finishing team. The Maroons came from behind to beat Indiana and Minnesota. The Hoosiers led, 19 to 24, at Bartlett's gymnasium at the half, only to lose, 32 to 31. At Minneapolis, Minnesota led by five points and Chicago came within one point of a tie twice, but was defeated. Northwestern barely eked out a 29 to 27 victory over Illinois after leading, 19 to 4, at the half. However, Northwestern, trailing 20 to 15 in the second half against Michigan at Ann Arbor, rallied to win, 34 to 31.

Campbell Tops Off Visit with Another Mark

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, 46 year old king of world race drivers, today established his second automobile speed record in two days on the ocean speedway here.

Having hung up a record of 245 miles an hour for cars of unlimited piston displacement yesterday, Campbell came back today in a midget machine and established a new mark of 94.031 miles an hour for automobiles with a piston displacement of less than 45 cubic inches.

Campbell now plans to rest here for a week or so and then return to England to enter competitive automobile racing in that country.

Passes Up Further Attempts.

He previously had announced he might try for new records over five kilometers and five miles before returning to England, but today issued a formal statement saying he had abandoned such plans.

Campbell said inasmuch as he already holds the world's record for five kilometers and five miles, established in South Africa in 1929, "it will not be worth the time and expense involved owing to the uncertainty of beach and weather conditions," to attempt to set new marks for those distances.

He said, however, that should his records for the mile, five kilometers and five miles be surpassed in the future, his Bluebird racing car would be called on to defend its title.

94.069 M. P. H. Is Faster Mile.

Campbell's first run south today over the measured mile in his midget car was clocked at 38.27 seconds for a speed of 94.069 miles an hour. His north run over the same course was timed at 38.30 seconds for a speed of 93.995. His average time for the mile was 38.285 seconds and his average speed 94.031.

The average speed over the kilometer, laid out within the measured mile, was 93.968 miles an hour. His speed on the first run south over the kilometer was 93.98 and on the north run 93.948.

Fails to Better Mark.

After establishing a new record in his midget car, Campbell later made an attempt to break his own mark but failed by about four-tenths of a mile an hour of equaling his previous speed. C. L. Cummins, Columbus, Ind., made four runs over the course in a Diesel engined car to test its performance. Its highest speed was 97.905 miles an hour. There are no world records for such types of car, but Cummins will be given a certificate of performance by the American Automobile association. He plans to change his gear ratio and try tomorrow to attain 100 miles an hour.

Romary Leads St. Viator to 23-18 Win Over Wesleyan

Kankakee, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—St. Viator's undefeated basketball team tonight annexed its tenth consecutive victory of the year by defeating Illinois Wesleyan, 23 to 18. The score at the half was 10 to 5 in favor of St. Viator. Romary was high point man with nine. The game ended the Irish home season.

LANDIS'ABSOLUTE POWER CITED IN BENNETT CASE

Edicts of Baseball Czar Final, Attorney Says.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis yesterday was represented as the absolute dictator of organized baseball by his defense counsel, Attorney George Miller, who opened the fight to defeat the attempts of the Milwaukee club of the American association to seek an injunction restraining Landis from enforcing his orders in the case of Outfielder Fred Bennett.

The commissioner, Attorney Miller told Federal Judge Walter Lindley, was given his absolute power by the major and minor league clubs, and they, in turn, must abide by his actions whether they are correct or erroneous.

Must Abide by Edicts.

"As long as Mr. Landis is commissioner of organized baseball those clubs belonging to the organization known as the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues must abide by his edicts, right or wrong," pleaded Attorney Miller. "The commissioner doesn't have to wait for any complaints. If he suspects anything detrimental to the best interests of baseball, it not only is his right, but also his duty to investigate and take whatever remedial or punitive action he deems necessary."

The defense attorney explained, however, that he intended to prove that the commissioner's action was correct in the Bennett case, in which Landis ordered the St. Louis American league club, which holds an interest in the Milwaukee club, to waive Bennett to the rest of the 15 major league teams or release him as a free agent.

Most of the defense counsel's arguments attempted to prove that Commissioner Landis did receive his "absolute power" from the members of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues. He read all the rules concerning the commissioner's powers and called attention to the fact that even down to each player's contract, there is a provision that the contract must be approved by the commissioner.

Optional agreements, around which the Bennett case revolves, also must be approved by the commissioner, Attorney Miller said.

Aims for Precedent.

"But the Bennett contract by which he was assigned by St. Louis to Milwaukee last year was not approved by the commissioner," Miller said, "because Bennett had been in the grip of the St. Louis farm system since 1928, a violation of the rules. He was with Tulsa, St. Louis, Wichita Falls, and Milwaukee, all controlled by the St. Louis club during this period.

"Last year, at the commissioner's demand, St. Louis asked waivers on Bennett, but when the New York Yankees and the Pittsburgh Pirates refused to waive, St. Louis withdrew the waiver and, contrary to rules, sent him to Milwaukee."

At one point in his argument, which took up the whole day, Miller said that inasmuch as Bennett had been returned by Milwaukee to St. Louis at the end of the 1930 championship season the Milwaukee club had no interest in the case and it was solely an affair of Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis club. Miller did not press his point, however, indicating he would not seek dismissal of the case on a technical ground, but desired to fight it out to establish definitely in federal court the powers of the commissioner.

Takes Case Under Advisement.

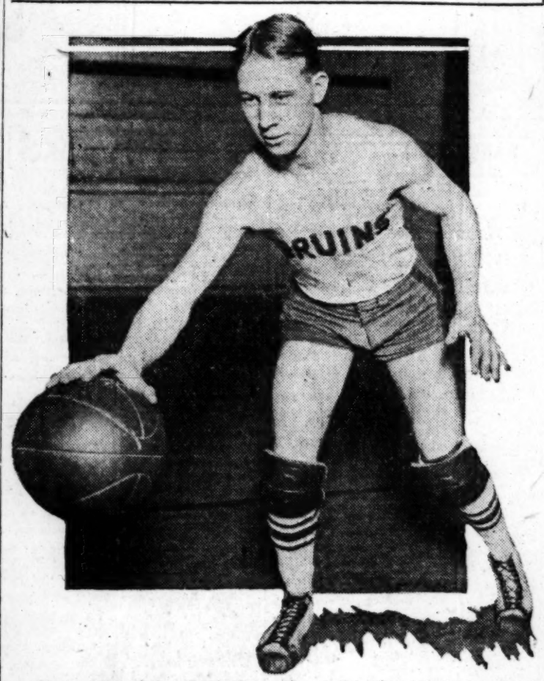
The only objection made during the defense's argument was when Miller said Bennett was kept in control of the St. Louis club while playing with Tulsa in 1928.

The court then took the case under advisement, giving counsel for both sides ten days in which to file briefs. Judge Lindley indicated that it will take him some time to arrive at a decision.

Millikin Gives No. Central Five First Defeat, 25 to 19

Decatur, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Millikin upset North Central, Little 19 basketball leader, here tonight, 25 to 19. It was the first North Central defeat in eight starts.

FANS TO HONOR HIM



Whitey Wickhorst, Bruin forward, to whom fans of the south side and Whiting, Ind., his home town, will pay their respects at White City tomorrow night. He is second high scorer in the American pro league. The Bruins play Fort Wayne.

Ten Cubs Occupy Berths Out of Chicago; Rest Join En Route

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

When the Cubs leave here California bound next Saturday noon, Bob Lewis, rotund secretary, will have only a limited flock under his care. So many members of the first squad are already on the west coast that there will be only ten present for the official getaway. They will be flanked by Coaches O'Leary and Schalk and Andy Lotshaw, trainer and director in chief of baggage.

The ten performers expected to occupy berths out of Chicago are Pitchers Bush, Smith, Petty, May, Herrmann, Montague, Baecht, and Sweetland and Catchers Hartnett and Taylor. Nelson and Warneke, two more flingers, will hop aboard at Kansas City. At Los Angeles there will be a gang of eight waiting to go on the club eating list on the morning of Feb. 17. This contingent will be made up of Pitchers G. Bell, Malone, Osborne, Root, Teachout, and Whiteworth and Catchers Campbell and Grace. Manager Hornsby and Blake will be at the Catalina camp when the others arrive.

Although the Cub bosses have given up hope of having their standing cash offer for Jim Bottomley accepted before spring training gets under way, it doesn't follow that St. Louis intends to keep the veteran. What they are going to do is to carry Bottomley until Collins, rookie first sacker from Rochester, has had a chance to prove a sensation or a bust. If it's the former Bottomley will be peddled.

When the White Sox get down to business at their San Antonio camp Manager Donie Bush will not have to do any figuring about Pitcher Bob Weiland or Infielder Johnny Ryan. They will be with three other former Comiskey employés at Atlanta, Ga. Ryan was picked up last season after finishing his college career. Weiland, who will be more than an every day southpaw if he masters control, originally was picked up in the Mississippi Valley league and farmed out twice to Toledo.

Before starting his annual vacation, Henry P. Edwards, publicity expert for the American league, completed the revised list of rookies who will go into various camps. Apparently all clubs have culled as effectively as was possible. None now are up to the maximum allowance of 40 players. The Athletics have the biggest crop, 38, of which 17 are new men and mostly pitchers. Boston has 35, Chicago, 34; Cleveland, 32; Detroit, 30; New York, 35 [15 new]; St. Louis, 26, and Washington, 33.

Comiskey Denies Deal Involving Kamm, Fonseca

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, spiked rumors today of a trade with the Cleveland Indians involving Willie Kamm, Sox third baseman, and Lew Fonseca, Cleveland first sacker.

Such a deal, said Comiskey, has never been given serious consideration "and will not be made."

The 70 year old veteran, a commanding figure in American league politics for 30 years, is here with Secretary Harry Grabiner and relatives to "take a good rest" before returning east to battle toward another pennant winner.

Comiskey has some other plans in mind, too. Reduction of the major league player limit from 25 to 20 men is an idea which he says he will back to the utmost.

"The present player limit is an injustice to the young players," he says. "The White Sox, like every major league club, have eight or nine young men on the bench all season who never get a chance to break into the game, except, perhaps, once or twice a season. It isn't right.

"Clubs have no right to keep these youngsters from practicing their profession. How are they going to get anywhere if they don't get a chance to show what they can do? A reduction in the player limit would give them a chance to break into the lineup, or go to clubs which could use them every day."

Purple Grapplers Beat West Virginians, 23 to 15

Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The Northwestern university wrestling team tonight defeated West Virginia, 23 to 15, after trailing, 15 to 3, with half the match gone.

MAROON WRESTLERS LOSE.

State College, Pa., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Penn State's wrestling team scored its second victory of the season tonight, defeating the University of Chicago, 21 to 11. Capt. Pearce's victory over Erickson, Chicago, in the unlimited class decided the winner.

LOUGHRAN GIVES MAX BAER A GOOD 10 ROUND BEATING

Tommy Bothered Only Once in Entire Bout.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 6.—With his lips drawn back from his toothless gums in an expression of mingled worry and delight, old Tommy Loughran, who was young Tommy Loughran five years ago, celebrated his return to importance in the ring this evening with a ten round victory over Max Baer, the laughing loon from California, who is most hilarious when other stout athletes are whaling him on the chin.

Of course, Loughran never could punch his way out of a cloud of smoke, but he kept Baer away with a stabbing left to the mouth and outfumbled him by a wide plurality in the clinches to win by something very close to a shutout.

Baer, a magnificent physique animated by an outboard intellect, made half a dozen sporadic attacks, cocking a menacing right hand for a long time before each of these shots, and though he clipped Loughran a few times there was no continuity, and Tommy was embarrassed only once, when a left hook chinned him by accident in the third.

The Amiable Mr. Baer.

The patrons who contributed gross receipts of $37,300 for their pleasure, were much amused by Loughran's clock watching and maneuvering to be in his own angle of the ring at the end of every round. After the sixth round, Gus Wilson, who was chaperoning Baer in the corner, hit him a broad slap across the face to rouse him to something like annoyance, but Baer threw back his head and spread his features in a huge guffaw.

"It's impossible to do anything with him," Mr. Wilson complained. "Loughran cuts his face and I insult him to the best of my ability, but he does not get sore. I had never such trouble trying to insult anybody in my life before. Ordinarily I am considered to be fairly insulting when I wish to be and I could pick a fight almost anywhere just by passing a few offensive remarks. But when I insult Baer he thinks I am telling jokes."

Baer has now lost two fights and won one on a technicality in New York, but nevertheless this eccentric young man seems likely to remain a person of interest to the customers. Except the matter of complexion and some difference in skill, he is a Caucasian Battling Siki.

Jack Dempsey refereed the main event and the semi-final, and wound up on the verge of collapse. The old legs get no younger.

Mr. Baer Does Some Training.

Throughout the early bouts a metallic clank sounded monotonously through the arean from somewhere off in the dungeons where the tearing tigers of the roped arena are caged awaiting their turns in the ring. "Clank! Clank! Clank!" rang above the murmur of the crowd, and the echoes answered, "Clank! Clank! Clank!"

"Why doesn't the Garden corporation have the plumbers do their plumbing in the daytime instead of disturbing the customers with this clanking at night?" Mr. James Farley, the chairman of the prizefight commission demanded. "One more clank out of this place and I will cancel their license."

"That is not the plumbers plumbing, Mr. Commissioner," stated James Jennings, who is hired to interpret the training methods, social customs, and conversation of Max Baer to the press of the country. "That is Baer getting in the last few licks of his training in his dressing room. He is beating his skull against the radiator to toughen it so he will not get concussion of the brain if his opponents hit him on the head, which might cause him to forget that he is going to marry a refined society heiress and debutante of the exclusive four hundred bon ton circles, who has been divorced four times.

"He is the most conscientious athlete about training that I have ever seen, but his training consists almost entirely of this skull-toughening exer-

West Entries in Golden Gloves Close Monday

Only two days remain in which to enter the west section preliminaries of the Golden Gloves tournament. The dead line for contestants competing at Ashland Boulevard auditorium is Monday night. The west section will be held Feb. 16 and 17.

Other city tournaments follow in rapid succession. Entries for the north side close Feb. 12, while entries for White City bouts will not be accepted after Feb. 16.

Sixteen boys (two in each weight division) will qualify at each of three city sectionals. Thus 48 boys will represent Chicago, against 15 out of town teams at the Coliseum, March 2, 3, and 4. Finals will be staged a week later at the Stadium.

Twenty-four miniature Golden gloves, each set with a diamond, ruby, or emerald to indicate first, second, and third place, are awards for boys selected for the Chicago team which meets New York in Madison Square Garden, March 30.

Nineteen year old Bert O'Donnell has entered the Golden Glove tourney in the middleweight class. Bert has been fighting only seven months, but has an enviable record, winning 80 per cent of his matches.

After graduating from St. Bridget, Bert went to night school and studied electrical engineering. He is now employed as a pressman during the day. He resides at 532 West 31st street with his parents.

Jimmy Milton, 18 year old physical director of the Illinois Olympian club, has entered the lightweight class. He has had two years' experience, winning 70 bouts out of 107.

Merrill Tonn, as his name implies, is a heavyweight. He weighs over 200 pounds. He was a lumberjack until six months ago at Peshtigo, Wis. He whipped a couple of fellows up there and decided to become a boxer. Merrill has all the qualifications of a good fighter. He also has the distinction of having the longest reach in the amateurs—a mere 84 inches, the same length as Carnera's, and is 6 feet 3 inches tall. Tonn lives at 1920 Montrose avenue.

A former A. A. U. lightweight champion of New York has entered Chicago Golden Gloves trials. He is Sherman Parry, 20 year old stable mate of Merrill Tonn. Parry has been in Chicago a year and a half. He is a southpaw.

Kid Howard will have Freddie Caserio, central A. A. U. middleweight champion, representing his gymnasium in the Golden Glove tourney this year.

Although boxing three years, Freddie did not win recognition until last year, when he fought his way to quarter finals of the Golden Gloves tournament. As a result he was chosen as substitute on the intercity team. Freddie won the Central A. A. U. championship last year.

Caserio lives with his parents at 2341 Calumet avenue. He is 20 years old.

Len Myers, Belle Plaine A. C., dances for a living and fights because he likes it. Thursday night he knocked out Pat O'Reilly in two rounds at the Belle Plaine A. C. Myers was graduated from Lane Tech last year and was captain of the boxing team. Since he started fighting he has had twelve knockouts to his credit. Len is just a flyweight, but he packs dynamite in his right hand. He is 20 years old.

Petrolle Floors Moore 3 Times; Knocks Him Out

KING FLOORS CANADIAN WITH RIGHT TO JAW

Shows Superiority from Start.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 6.—(AP)—King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight, knocked out Jack Gagnon of Boston early in the third round tonight in the Boston Garden's feature bout, scheduled for ten rounds. A wild right to Gagnon's jaw sent the French-Canadian down. He was struggling to his feet as Referee Joe O'Connor counted ten. Levinsky weighed 179 and Gagnon scaled 12 more.

Levinsky started crawling all over Gagnon from the start, but during the first round he was able to land only a few of his wild two handed swings to the head. The Boston heavyweight tried hard in the second round to back Levinsky into a corner and nail him with a hard body hook, but the King refused to be led.

When the third round opened Gagnon let go with a left jab. Levinsky ducked under it, came up inside of Gagnon's guard and ripped a heavy right hook to his jaw. Gagnon dropped heavily and did not fully regain consciousness until after his handlers had him seated in his corner.

SUSPEND SANTA, HANSEN

The Illinois athletic commission yesterday affirmed the decision of Referee Davie Miller in calling the José Santa-Knute Hansen bout at the Stadium last Wednesday "no contest." The reports of Miller and the judges, John Bray and Rube Metz, were read.

Under the commission's rules the purses in a no contest bout automatically are forfeited. However, each fighter received $125 training expenses and transportation home. Santa was given transportation to New York City.

Both Boxers Suspended.

In addition Hansen was suspended indefinitely and Santa was suspended for six months. Santa's contract called for $1,500, while Hansen was to have received $1,000.

Marty Gallagher, who was knocked out in the second round by Larry Johnson on the same card of fights, appeared before the commission with his opponent. There was no question concerning Johnson's performance, but Gallagher was grilled for dropping to the floor in the second round without being hit. Gallagher's explanation that he did not know what happened after being floored in the first round was accepted by the commissioners.

BABE RUTH WILL SAIL FOR SOUTH AND GOLF TODAY

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Babe Ruth will sail for Jacksonville, Fla., on his 37th birthday tomorrow to start the most important campaign of his baseball career—the grind to recapture home run hitting honors from Hack Wilson and guarantee continuance of his own $80,000 a year salary.

He is sailing on the Clyde line for Florida with Mrs. Ruth and his two daughters, Dorothy and Julia. He will go to the Yankees' training camp at St. Petersburg to play 36 holes of golf a day until the regular training season opens March 1.

KENTUCKY GRID CAPTAIN BARRED FROM UNIVERSITY

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Ralph [Babe] Wright, tackle and captain elect of the University of Kentucky football team, was not permitted today to reënter school for the second semester. President Frank L. McVey said infraction of university rules was the cause.

John Sims, half back and alternate captain elect, is expected to be elevated to the captaincy.

SENN, WALLER SPLIT.

Senn and Waller divided a north section double header on the latter's floor yesterday, the Senn heavies scoring their second league victory, 29 to 23, while the home lights took a 26 to 19 battle. Freeman and Ramsey were the stars.

O. P., PROVISO DIVIDE.

Oak Park heavies traveled to Maywood to hand Proviso a 32 to 22 defeat, but the home lights turned back the Villagers, 21 to 18. Siege and Beline featured for the victors.

N. T., MORTON SPLIT.

New Trier heavies kept pace with Oak Park by defeating Morton at Cicero, 29 to 32. Prohaska led the Morton lights to a 23-21 win.

LUTHER HEAVIES WIN.

Luther heavies, Chicago Private School league leaders, scored their fifth straight victory yesterday by trimming Christian High, 22 to 19, in an overtime battle yesterday. The Luther lights eked out a 15-13 decision.

THORNTON BEATS BLOOM.

Thornton defeated Bloom in a south suburban league double header at Harvey last night, the heavies winning, 22 to 20, on Weides' free throws, while Dehnert brought the lights a 13 to 12 victory with a last minute basket.

U. HIGH HEAVIES WIN.

Free throws by Harris and Strouse brought University High heavies an 11-10 victory over Thornton Fractional yesterday, but the Thornton lights went into a tie with U. High's ponies for the league lead by whipping the home team, 14 to 11.

CENTRAL DAY VICTOR.

Cortelyou and Tatham led Central Day teams to a double triumph over Chicago Latin on the losers' floor yesterday, the heavies winning, 35 to 11, and the lights, 38 to 6.

DOWNERS GROVE WINS.

Downers Grove heavies invaded Wheaton's floor last night for a 16 to 8 victory, but the home lights retaliated with a 17 to 15 triumph.

RIVERSIDE WINS PAIR.

Riverside scored a double victory over Glebard on the latter's floor last night, the heavies winning, 23 to 16, and the lights, 28 to 20.

cise, and the din has been terrific night and day up at Daffy Dell, where we have been stopping. It sounds like a machine shop most of the time."

Clank! Clank! Clank!

Paul Swiderski, the boy who nearly knocked out Mickey Walker in Louisville last Derby day, in the evening met Ralph Ficucello, the Golden Gloves alumnus, another heavyweight sketch, with Dempsey the referee. The boys dawdled somewhat in the mid-rounds and the customers complained, but they closed the act in a burst of action and Swiderski won slightly on points. Both boys took some punishment from the referee as Dempsey clapped them on the shoulders to warn them out of clinches. To this day old Mr. Dempsey hasn't learned to pull a punch. The flat of his hand left its imprint in wide red welts on the young men's hides and the smacks were loud in the gallery.

AL SIMMONS AND FIANCEE BREAK ENGAGEMENT

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Announcement that the engagement of Al Simmons, left fielder of the world champion Philadelphia Athletics, and Miss Dorothy Kuhn, Jenkintown, Pa., had been broken by mutual consent was made today by the young woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kuhn.

Their engagement, a romance of the baseball diamond, was announced at a dinner dance last September at which Manager Connie Mack and most of the Athletics players were guests.

"It is with great regret that I announce my daughter Dorothy and Al have decided not to marry," Mr. Kuhn said. "Because of my intense admiration for Al, whom I consider one of the most likable boys I have ever met, I want every one to know how I feel toward him.

"If the young folks have decided not to marry, that's their business. However, Al will always be welcome at our home. Both my wife and myself regard him highly and nothing will ever alter our friendship for him."

LEACH STOPS NORMAN BROWN IN THIRD ROUND

Gary Leach, Gary, Ind., middleweight, scored a technical knockout over Norman Brown, Indianapolis, in the third round of a ten round final at the Cicero stadium last night. Leach knocked Brown down for a nine count in the second and had him helpless in the third when the referee stopped the fight. Each weighed 159 pounds.

In the semi-windup Johnny Baima, former Golden Gloves champion, knocked out Angelo Garlow in two rounds. Myer Frager was awarded a four round decision over Tommy Wilson, while Babe Kellar defeated Georgie Stokes in the four round opener.

Gary Preps Wins 2 of 3 Calumet District Games

Gary, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Gary High school basketball teams won two of three basketball games in the Calumet district tonight. Emerson of Gary lost to Washington of East Chicago, 27 to 18, on the latter's court. Horace Mann of Gary invaded Whiting to win, 22 to 17. Wallace of Gary defeated Morocco here, 44 to 6.

Valparaiso, playing at home, defeated Hammond, 31 to 21.

Majestics Defeat Racine, 29-26; Eleven Straight

The Majestics scored their eleventh consecutive victory on the home floor last night when they defeated Racine, Wis., 29 to 26, at the West Side clubhouse.

REPORT POINTS TO CASH BUYING OF SECURITIES

Investment Demand Lifts Stock Prices.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Evidence that real accumulation of securities by investors and institutions went on in the stock market last month was contained in the monthly report issued by the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. Although the average of prices advanced about 6 per cent, borrowings of members of the exchange against stock collateral declined more than 9 per cent.

The buying of stocks largely for cash brought the first appreciable advance in prices in a number of months. The aggregated market value of all stocks listed rose to $52,061,956,709 on Feb. 1, an increase of $3,042,078,250 during January. The average market value was $40.09 a share on Feb. 1, compared with $37.80 a share on Jan. 1. There were 1,303 issues, aggregating 1,298,707,031 shares, listed on Feb. 1, compared with 1,308 issues aggregating 1,294,794,480 listed on Jan. 1.

Borrowings Decline.

But despite the advance in prices, borrowings of exchange members declined $173,267,572 during January, with the total standing at $1,720,345,311 on Feb. 1. These borrowings amounted to 3.30 per cent of the aggregate market value of all listed stocks, compared with 3.86 per cent on Jan. 1 and with 5.77 per cent on Feb. 1, 1930.

Money became still cheaper yesterday. With little demand for credit either for speculation or commercial enterprise, the New York Clearing House association reduced the interest rate on time deposits payable after 30 days from 2 to 1½ per cent. With call loans drawing only 1 to 1½ per cent and with short-term investments yielding abnormally low returns, the banks have faced the alternative of lending money unprofitably for short terms or making long term investments to the detriment of liquidity. Therefore, they have reduced their interest rates on deposits.

Furthermore, New York dealers in bankers' acceptances yesterday reduced rates one-eighth of 1 per cent, making the second cut this week and bringing yields to the lowest level in history. The new rates range from 1¼ to 1⅛ per cent, according to maturity. Bankers' acceptances are a form of credit used in financing commercial transactions, particularly foreign trade.

Trade Just Jogs Along.

Trade and industry are just jogging along this week, but better things are hoped for with the approach of spring, according to the weekly mercantile review.

"Two features present themselves in the distributive trade situation this week," Bradstreet's review says. "One is the retarding effect on retail trade of unseasonably warm weather ruling in the larger part of the interior. The other is the formal opening of spring trade through the medium of style shows, market weeks and retailers' association meetings. Over January, the chief expansion seems to have been in industrial operations, which showed moderate expansion."

"Further evidences of improvement are not lacking," Dun's review says. "The trend in wholesale lines has been helped by the greater interest displayed for spring merchandise. Road salesmen, however, do not find the response hoped for, as merchants are still in a cautious mood, seasonal requirements not only being subnormal but tardy in developing.

"Some irregularity, arising from impaired purchasing power in many sections, is obscuring to some extent the effects of the advancement that is being made slowly."

Bank clearings this week are placed at $4,153,649,000, a decline of 25.4 per cent from a year ago. Commercial failures are set at 676, compared with 608 last week and 619 a year ago.

Plan to Pay in Full All Creditors of Anderson Co.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Receivers for Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., closed St. Louis brokerage firm, announce that four companies were negotiating to take over the business. One of the four is the large New York firm of E. A. Pierce & Co., which was negotiating before the failure. The names of the other three were not disclosed. The receivers said an audit, now virtually completed, showed the company to be solvent and that it is planned to pay all creditors in full.

EARNINGS OF CITY'S ELEVATED LINES ARE LOWER IN LAST YEAR

The general business depression last year resulted in a decline in traffic and smaller earnings for the Chicago Rapid Transit company, which operates the Chicago elevated lines. Revenue passengers numbered 182,954,846, a decrease of 13,819,549 from 1929. Operating revenues were $19,624,045, a decrease of $1,482,445.

Net income for 1930 was $207,862, which was insufficient to meet dividends of $474,302 on the prior preferred stock, although no charge for retirement reserves was made included in operating expenses. Such a charge of $384,088 was made in 1929, after which net income was $1,069,479. A charge of $1,947,151 was interest paid on the $18,543,000 adjustment debenture bonds. Accrued and unpaid cumulative interest on this issue now amounts to $4,826,380.

The company made various adjustments in its surplus account last year. After these adjustments and payment of prior preferred dividends, the surplus on Dec. 31, 1930, stood at $3,574,-[illegible], a decline of $137,803.

Bulls Play Up Favorites on Curb Market

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Bulls put forward several of their favorites among the specialty issues in today's curb market. The utilities, the dominant group on this market, made indifferent progress.

Some of the low priced specialties which have been more or less dormant, suddenly sprang into action. The market as a whole was a desultory affair, however, and the day's trades aggregated only 300,000 shares.

A strong feature of the oils was Vacuum, which rose nearly 3 points to 62, and closed near the top. This issue has shown consistent strength of late, apparently reflecting optimistic expectations regarding the forthcoming court decision in the suit testing the legality of the plan to merge with Standard of New York. Such issues as Cities Service, Humble, Gulf, and Indiana closed with gains of only small fractions, Standard of Nebraska lost 2.

Among the low priced specialties, Technicolor was a buoyant feature, selling up 3 points to 12⅜. Sponsors of the move said the new "supersensitive panchromatic" film announced by Eastman Kodak should prove of great value to this company, which makes color motion pictures. Fansteel Products sold up 3¼ points to 9.

A large turnover in Canadian Marconi, which sold up ⅜ to 4¼, and closed at 4, suggested fresh pool activity. United States Foil B rose a point and Polymet Manufacturing moved up fractionally. Among higher priced issues, Mead Johnson was a strong spot, up 3½.

In the utilities, Electric Bond and Share, American Gas and Electric, Electric Power Associates A, and American and Foreign Power warrants advanced about a point each. Blue Ridge preferred was a strong spot in the investment trusts, advancing 1⅝.

Intercoast Trading, an affiliate of Transamerica corporation, came to life and sold up ⅝ in a fair turnover for quiet times. It closed at 6½, however, up only ⅛.

M'KELVIE RAPS FARMERS GRAIN DEALERS ASSOC.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Samuel R. McKelvie, grain member of the farm board, today declared the resolutions of the Farmers Grain Dealers association at Peoria, Ill., were part of a grain dealers' campaign to undermine the board. He challenged their accuracy.

The association charged subsidiaries and regional corporations created under the agricultural marketing act advocated compulsory coöperation and "principles injurious to the best interests of the farmers elevators."

It requested the farm board compel the regionals to desist from such "injurious and destructive work and cease to aid contract or pool organizations."

McKelvie said the affiliated and subsidiary coöperative organizations under the farm board "do not advocate compulsory coöperation."

"The action is purely voluntary," he declared, "and any farmer can join or stay out of a regional or coöperative organization.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 6.—Favorable dividend changes in January, which consisted of increases resumptions, extras, initials and stock, totaled 203 against 157 decreased and passed, a compilation by Standard Statistics company, says.

May Department Stores company declared a quarterly dividend on 62½c on the common. This places the stock on a $2.50 annual basis, against $2 previously paid. The usual stock dividend of 1¼ per cent quarterly was discounted.

Republic Steel Corp. Has 1930 Loss of $3,522,003

Youngstown, O., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Republic Steel corporation, formed early last year by the merger of several steel companies, had a net loss of $3,522,003 for 1930, the company announced today. The loss is equivalent to $1.74 a share on the 1,989,212 shares of common stock outstanding. The announcement said that the figures included operation of constituent and subsidiary companies for the first three months of 1930, so that it embraces a full year's operations of all units in Republic.

Newton Steel company for 1930 reported a deficit of $437,429, against a surplus of $1,947,151 for 1929.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

The Chicago Great Western Railroad estimates January net income at between $75,000 and $90,000. V. V. Boatner, president, said the first quarter this year probably will be slightly below a year ago, partly due to mild weather resulting in lower coal traffic.

Dow, Jones & Co., in a special dispatch from Los Angeles, quotes Thomas H. McInnerney, president of National Dairy Products corporation, as saying that National Dairy had decided to expand operations to the Pacific coast and is surveying several of the major Pacific coast dairy companies with an idea of possible absorption. It was reported that preliminary conversations already have been held with Golden State Co., Ltd., and Western Dairy Products Co., separate and independent organizations.

N.Y. CENTRAL RY. SUBMITS BOND FINANCING PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 6.—The New York Central Railroad company is taking steps to float an issue of $75,000,000 4½ per cent refunding and improvement mortgage bonds, it was revealed today when the company filed an application with the interstate commerce commission for permission to make such a loan. This will be the first important bond financing to be done by the New York Central in nine years or since 1922.

The last issue of a large block of bonds by the New York Central was one of $25,000,000, series C 4½s, issued under the same mortgage as the proposed issue. These were offered in July, 1922. In April of that same year the company sold $60,000,000 of the series C bonds, making $85,000,000 in all sold that year.

Subsequent to that time the company has relied on stock financing for its requirements until this year. Altogether it sold $268,859,875 par value of stock in the period beginning 1922 up to an including last year. The company now is reverting to loans for its financial needs.

Matures in 100 Years.

The loan now planned will be dated Oct. 1, 1913, and will mature Oct. 1, 2013, or one hundred years from that date. The purposes of the issue are to redeem $50,000,000 Lake Shore and Michigan Southern twenty-five year 4 per cent Bonds maturing May 1, 1931; to reimburse the treasury for $7,841,700 of Lake Shore 4 per cent bonds which matured Sept. 1, 1928, and were redeemed with treasury funds, and to reimburse the treasury for capital expenditures between Jan. 1, 1922, and Dec. 31, 1929, inclusive.

As a result of the proposed financing the treasury of the New York Central will obtain $25,000,000 of free money which it will be able to expend for any purposes it may deem desirable.

No arrangements have been made yet for the sale of the proposed bond issue, it was stated.

New Offerings Shrink.

Recent uncertainties in the bond market were reflected in the sharp decrease in the volume of new offerings this week. The total was $21,325,000, the smallest of the year, contrasted with $201,064,000 last week, and $62,473,000 in the same period of 1930. The city of Chicago will sell $27,000,000 bonds next week, and Philadelphia has announced the sale of $15,000,000 4s on Feb. 27.

Corporate stock and bond financing in January totaled $629,800,000, against $141,800,000 in December; $764,300,000 in January, 1930, and $1,218,800,000 in January, 1929, a compilation by Standard Statistics company shows. The trend toward issuance of bonds instead of stocks is still pronounced, bonds accounting for $545,100,000 of the $629,800,000 total last month, the survey shows.

BAR SILVER AT 26½C; ANOTHER ALL-TIME LOW

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Bar silver skidded to new record lows in both the New York and London markets today. The quotation here was 26½c an ounce, a decline of ⅝c. There was a halfpenny drop in London.

Buys Majority Interest in General Casualty Co.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Walter L. Todd, vice president of the General Indemnity Corporation of America, today announced the purchase of a majority interest in the General Casualty and Surety Company of Detroit, combining resources of more than three and a half million dollars. The business of the two companies is to be combined, with headquarters in Rochester, the original office of the General Casualty and Surety Company of Detroit.

The General Indemnity corporation was organized in 1914 to provide indemnity for users of check writing and signing equipment. As originator of check alteration insurance it soon included the writing of forgery bonds, covering all forms of check forgery and alteration fraud. It has established branch offices and agent representation in all important cities. The General Casualty and Surety Company of Detroit was organized under its present name in 1917.

STANDARD OIL OF N. Y. DECLARES REGULAR QUARTERLY DIVIDEND

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Standard Oil Company of New York today ordered payment of the regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share, amounting in the aggregate to more than $7,000,000.

This makes the second of the large Standard units to assure its stockholders of their regular income for the current quarter. Earlier in the week the Standard Oil Company of California ordered the regular disbursement, while the Standard companies of Indiana, Kansas and Nebraska reduced their dividends because of the low oil prices and current unsettlement in the petroleum industry.

Regular dividends for the first quarter were declared by the board of the Radio Corporation of America today.

National Family Stores directors omitted the quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent in common stock due on the common at this time. The regular quarterly payment of 50 cents in cash on the preference stock was authorized.

East Butte Copper Mining company declared a special $2.00 liquidating dividend, payable in March. Initial dividends of 17,578 cents have been declared on Buckeye Trust Shares certificates series A and of 14 cents on deposited insurance shares investment trust certificates.

Waltham Watch company declared a dividend of $2.00 on its 6 per cent preferred stock, payable in four quarterly installments of 50 cents each, reducing the annual rate from $6.00, which previously had been paid.

Wheeling Steel corporation omitted the quarterly dividend of 50 cents due on common stock.

NET OF STANDARD BRANDS IS EQUAL TO $1.22 PER SHARE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 6.—The preliminary statement of Standard Brands, Inc., including German and South American subsidiaries of Royal Baking Powder company, issued today, showed net income for the first complete year of operation ended last Dec. 31, of $16,402,253 after all charges, but before profit and loss items.

This was equal after dividends on the $7 preferred stock to $1.22 a share on 12,644,002 shares of common outstanding at the close of the year. After dividends on both the preferred and common issues the company sustained a deficit of $2,032,599.

Profit and loss surplus at the close of last year stood at $25,729,886, compared with $28,083,324 at the close of the preceding period. Current assets, including cash of $15,051,391, aggregated $46,926,748 and current liabilities were $4,693,530, compared with $51,497,728, and $5,038,003, respectively, at the close of the previous year.

Net income for the December quarter amounted to $4,544,659 or 34 cents a share on the common. The report indicated that operations for the year showed generally satisfactory increase in volume of sales.

Says Artificial Remedies Can't Cure Overproduction

BY SCRUTATOR.

Most of the world's industries are passing through a period of major readjustment.

Prophets of evil are pointing out why things will not be better. They are suggesting causes why we had the occurrence of the things that have occurred. Usually the reasoning is sophomoric and spectacular factors that have only a little bearing on the subject are given major credit for bringing about depression.

Agrarian policy in the last few years has been given more words than any other subject in the economic field. Some thousands of doctors have been called in or have volunteered to look over the patient, agriculture, and suggest remedies for the ills this industry is fallen upon. Some of them have been taken. It is idle to insist that the seat of the trouble has been reached.

No Halfway Measures.

Agriculture, like other industries, must accept its major readjustment. Halfway measures will not do. Those which have been tried have failed. We know that the great staple crops, wheat, cotton and tobacco, have been over-produced. For years farm observers of the most intelligent type have urged that more attention be paid on the farm to diversified products, and that more energy be devoted to the output of animal foods.

This advice was sound. It is still sound in some sections where new markets can be created. More dairy products would probably be a boon to the cotton districts in the south. But in the sections that have taken up the suggestion it seems that even dairying has been overdone.

Figures from Frank E. Rice, secretary of the Evaporated Milk association, whose members market 90 per cent of the canned milk of the country, show that the February price of milk to producers at condensing plants is $1.29 a hundred pounds. In February, 1930, the corresponding price was $1.66. In January, 1930, it was $1.75; in January, 1929, it was $2.21. Butter makers and cheese manufacturers are said to pay a smaller price than the condensers.

So far as the milk condensers are concerned, it is not a great loss in business that causes this drop. Sales in 1930 were about the same as in 1929. However, for the three years previous, increased sales had been made at about the rate of 9 per cent annually, largely due to an advertising and educational campaign. The cause for the drop in prices is a production out of line with the possible demand. A government report is quoted to show that at the beginning of 1931 there were 530,000 more dairy cows in the country than there were a year ago.

It may well be asked where the readjustment can be made in agriculture. Only a major operation will suffice. Land and labor must be the tools of policy rather than the prices of products. Dr. Henry G. Knight of the department of agriculture stated a few days ago that the hazards of producing on marginal and submarginal lands are making all farming a gamble.

Estimates Acreage.

His estimate is that 100 million out of a total of 500 million acres are in these classifications. They cause crop surpluses in good seasons and leave their workers subject to the necessity for relief in years of drought and crop failure.

Dr. Knight suggests that with the aid of science the 400 million acres of good land now in cultivation can be made to produce almost at will, although he warns that soil fertility should be carefully conserved.

The retirement of marginal land would mean the placing of the cultivators in other occupations. That is extremely difficult. The rest of the economic structure did absorb in the last decade a large number of farmers. Almost beyond doubt it will have to absorb many more in the near future. The prospect is not pleasing. But no artificial remedies can possibly make over-production by too many men profitable.

Inland Steel.

Kindly give me your opinion of Inland Steel company 4½ per cent bonds due Feb. 1, 1981. Thank you.—F. J. A.

Inland Steel company, second largest steel producer in the Chicago district, manufactures and sells a widely diversified line of steel products. It has been in business since 1893 and the present management has been associated with the company for many years. At Indiana Harbor, Ind., where the main plant is located, the company owns 700 acres fronting on Lake Michigan. It also owns 800 acres near Gary and a finishing mill at Chicago Heights, Ill. Other holdings include undeveloped coal lands in southern Illinois and iron ore leases in Minnesota and Michigan.

The $15,000,000 first mortgage sinking fund 4½s, series B, due Feb. 1, 1981, which were recently issued, are secured together with the series A bonds by a direct first mortgage on the company's fixed property, which on Dec. 31, 1930, was valued at $56,000,000, and are further secured by $4,000,000 of stocks and obligations of subsidiaries.

Giving effect to the application of the proceeds of this bond issue net tangible assets were $105,000,000, of which $40,000,000 represented net current assets. The company has no notes payable and has had no banking indebtedness for twenty years. The total funded debt consists of $43,000,000 of first mortgage bonds.

Earnings gradually increased from 1921 to 1929. In 1930 results were poorer as a result of business depression. Net earnings last year amounted to $8,917,717, equal to about 4½ times interest charges on the first mortgage bonds, including this issue. In the five years ended Dec. 31, 1930, earnings averaged more than five times such interest charges.

The series B bonds have been admitted to listing on the New York Stock Exchange. They are a sound investment.

Perfection Tire and Rubber.

I have stock in the Perfection Tire and Rubber company and have lost trace of the company. Do you know what the stock is worth at present and where are the headquarters of the company?—Mrs. A. McC.

Perfection Tire and Rubber company had a general office and factory at Fort Madison, Ia., and another plant at Wabash, Ind. It was incorporated in 1916 and had $15,000,000 of capital stock, par $1, outstanding. Complete information on the company was never available. Its capital setup was reorganized twice. For a time the stock was quoted on the New York Curb. The company went into receivership in November, 1922, and its plant was closed the following month. In January, 1924, the property was sold at auction for $275,000 and two years later the company's charter was repealed by the State of Delaware. The stock is apparently worthless.

WALGREEN DRUG STORES SALES CLIMB 4 PCT.

Sales of Walgreen drug stores for January of this year were $4,452,338, as against $4,282,366 for January, 1930, an increase of $169,972, or 4 per cent, R. P. Knight, controller, reported last night. The total number of stores being operated on Jan. 31 was 442.

COTTON MART SHOWS GAINS DURING WEEK

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The cotton market has shown increased steadiness during the last week, with prices reaching the highest levels touched here since the culmination of the mid-December decline. May contracts, which sold at 10.97c on Thursday, showed an advance of 117 points, or approximately $6 per bale from the low record of the season established on Dec. 15, and other months scored similar recoveries.

This was attributed to an increased trade demand, which was supposed to include considerable buying for European and oriental account, with reports circulating that hedges sold in futures here or in Liverpool against Indian cotton were being covered.

This buying was accompanied by reports of a strengthening technical position in Indian cotton in India and reiterated reports of prospects for increasing mill activity in Japan. According to private advices Japanese mills which have been curtailing 20 per cent will increase their running time 3 per cent beginning in April and houses with Japanese connections have been buyers in the local market.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 6.—Having had their little scamper, the bears went back to their retreats today and the stock market resumed its leisurely advance. The bell found values up from a fraction to 2 points or more in all departments.

The day's news was not of a nature to bear in weighty manner on speculative sentiment, although reports from Washington suggested rather definitely that several men high in administration circles were satisfied from the evidence they have in hand that the bottom of the depression has been reached and passed and that business is definitely on the mend. Also there were some rather eye filling earnings reports to dispense cheer here and there, notably in the oil and business machine groups.

Technical Strength.

However, the market continued to take its cue almost wholly from technical conditions, as it has been doing for so many weeks. So far as technical position was concerned the action of the list, especially in face of yesterday's selling onslaughts made out a rather strong case in favor of the long side of things.

Auburn Auto was again the star individual performer, rushing up 10 points or so to a new high by the manipulators, as its self-appointed sponsors, turned out once more to make hay while the sun shone. Toward the last, however, enough selling developed to sink the price back to 149⅞, a net gain of 6¾ on the day.

A runnerup to the headliner was Western Dairy Products A, which rose some 7 points, but, like the other, had to surrender a part of its new holdings before the finish. Diamond Match was buoyant, particularly in the earlier dealings, and Gold Dust preferred and Western Union each gained about 5 points. Other strong issues included Minneapolis Honeywell, Peoples Gas, McKeesport Tin Plate, Eastman Kodak, Radio preferred B, International Match preferred, and Worthington Pump, the gains among them ranging from 2 to more than 4 points.

Tobacco, Oil Shares.

Tobacco shares were in good demand. Oils were generally higher, the strength of Prairie Pipe Line being a feature of the group. The ease with which this stock moved forward on a limited turnover seemed to indicate that nearby offerings were quite small. Strength in the stock coincided with the appearance of the company's preliminary report for 1930 showing net profit equivalent to $3.61 a share, compared with a balance equal to $5.63 reported for the previous year. The closing sale reflected a net gain of more than 2 points today. Mexican Seaboard improved its position and several members of the Standard group, Ohio, and Sinclair fell in with the procession.

Rails Are Irregular.

Rails were irregular, but trading in this section was rather light. Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, and one or two others prominent in the late advance ran into selling and gave way 1 to 2 points or more. Rock Island, on the other hand, moved up 2 points, and Southern Railway advanced a point.

United States Steel, under rather heavy pressure Thursday, snapped back stoutly today, but the rest of the leaders were unable to muster any spunk at all, and the close found most of them moving—or, rather, creeping—in the wrong direction.

Omaha Railroad Cuts Fare to Meet Bus Competition

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 6.—(AP)—A reduced passenger tariff of two cents a mile will be inaugurated Feb. 9 and ending April 30 as an experiment on about 300 miles of the Omaha railroad's system, officials announced today. The old rate was 3.6 cents a mile.

Two other roads, the North Western and the Milwaukee, previously announced a similar reduction in an effort to regain short haul passenger business claimed to have been lost to bus lines.

The Omaha will make the new rate effective on lines from Pipestone to Heron Lake in Minnesota; Spooner to Ashland in Wisconsin, including the Bayfield branch, and Emerson to Norfolk in Nebraska, including the Bloomfield and Crofton branches.

U. S. RADIO STOCK MOVES BRISKLY IN CHICAGO TRADING

Motor Shares Display Moderate Strength.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Market operations in U. S. Radio shares continued at a brisk pace on the Chicago exchange yesterday. Transactions in the shares represented about 20 per cent of the day's total turnover. The issue inched upward to 26 in keeping with the general trend which was toward slightly higher levels.

The recent market history of the radio company's stock has been one of active support from its sponsors. There has been no official news from the company on current business or prospects to account for the unusual strength it has shown in a market generally marked by sluggishness. It has been unofficially reported that the firm is seeking additional capital.

Other Changes Narrow.

Other radio shares showed no significant price change. A revival of activity in Polymet Manufacturing developed with the issue moving ahead a fraction on sales of 1,200 shares.

Motor shares displayed moderate strength. Bendix Aviation was helped along with a statement reflecting current business of the company. The company's treasurer, Walter Buettner, reported that present indications are that earnings for the first two months of 1931 will cover dividend requirements. February shipments scheduled are in excess of those in January, he stated. Heavy trade in Cord corporation featured the trading among the automotives. Interest in the issue was seen as a reflection of the advance in Auburn on the New York board. The companies have been issuing statement after statement of bullish character in the last fortnight.

An even 100 shares of Monigham Manufacturing company stock turned over at 35⅝, down about a point from the last sale. According to a New York dispatch, the Bucyrus Erie company has purchased a controlling interest in the Chicago company. The latter manufactures excavating machinery and it is understood will remain under the same management.

Utilities Hold Steady.

Utility shares were steady with slight gains being recorded in one or two of the issues. On the whole, however, there appeared to be a lack of interest in the group. In its second day of trading United Gas was quoted around 10, with sales amounting to only 3,000 shares as compared with its first day turnover of 9,000 shares.

General Candy company, whose A shares are listed on the exchange, yesterday reported earnings for 1930 of $129,154, equivalent to 88 cents a share on the class A stock. In the preceding year the company reported profits of $62,883, or 43 cents a share. The gain in net was attributed to new brands introduced during the year.

GERMAN AND U. S. ISSUES RISE IN N. Y. BOND MART

New York, Feb. 6. — (AP) — Government obligations of the United States and Germany shared the spotlight in the bond market today.

Corporate investment issues again displayed a firm tone, but the bluk of activity was concentrated in a comparatively small list. Second grade bonds were uncertain in their movements.

The notable strength United States governments have displayed this week enabled them to climb ¼ of a point on the average today. Sales were well over $1,500,000, an unusually large volume for the stock exchange.

The vitality of German issues, including some municipal and industrial obligations, was attributed to reports that Germany will obtain a $32,500,000 loan from French and American bankers. In a turnover of more than $400,000, the largest of any issue except Liberty 4¼s, the German international 5½ per cent loan advanced a full point to 76¼, compared with its 1930 low of 48. The Dawes 7s now selling above par advanced ⅝, and German Central Agricultural bank 7s rose 1⅜. Berlin City Electric 6½s, Berlin Electric Elevated 6½s, and United Steel Works 6½s also were strong.

Top yesterday, $8.85; average, $7.70.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 200 cattle, 15,000 hogs, and 3,000 sheep.

A light supply of cattle sold on a slow, weak basis yesterday, but hogs and sheep both scored advances, regaining losses of the previous day.

Few cattle of good quality were on sale and the best available brought $10.00. Most offerings consisted of plain quality, fair fleshed short-fed steers and yearlings which sold at $7.25 to $8.50 for the most part.

Cows and heifers were slow, selling mostly at $7.00 down for the heifers and below $5.00 for cows. Bulls were firm, calves stronger and feeding cattle dull.

Cattle prices are closing 25 to 50c below a week ago generally. As compared with the low market early in the week, prices show gains of 25 to 50c on better grades, but the general undertone of the market is weak, reflecting dull dressed trade, low market on by-products and general depression.

Lambs Gain 15@25c.

Sheep receipts were light yesterday and prices advanced. Most of Thursday's loss was recovered, the market being 15 to 25c higher.

Best fat lambs sold to city butchers and shippers at $8.75 to 8.85, the latter price being top for the day. Most of the fat lambs went to packers at $8.25 to 8.50. Culls continued slow at $7.00 down, a few inferior "thro-outs" going as low as $5.00.

For the first five days this week, sheep receipts at 59,300 head showed a falling off of 12,385 from last week's total. Yet prices have declined 75c or more for the week. Dull and lower prices in the dressed lamb market was responsible for the bearish turn in the trade.

Hogs Up 10@15c.

In the hog market, the top price advanced to $8.10 Friday, that price being equal to the top a week ago. The average price was $7.40 or 5c below a week ago. The general market advanced 10 to 15c over Thursday's market, yet there were some heavy hogs which closed on a slow basis at prices close to steady with the previous day.

Most heavy butchers sold at $6.75 to 7.25 and most of the 210 to 250 lb averages brought $7.25 to 7.90. Hogs selling at $8.00 and 8.10 averaged around 150 to 190 lbs mostly.

Hog receipts were light, the estimate calling for 28,000 head. For the first five days this week hog supplies at 187,500 head showed a falling off of 13,562 head. The estimate for Saturday was posted at 15,000.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

General Baking Steadier.

In spite of some disappointment regarding earnings for last year, General Baking has been somewhat steadier of late. This may be due to the fact that the majority of stockholders are in favor of the plan for readjustment of capital. The committee handling this matter has advised shareholders that deposits of stocks and proxies representing a majority of stock had been made and that a special meeting of stockholders had been called for Feb. 26 to vote on approval of the plan.

Fails to Bring Liquidation.

The reduction in dividend by Standard Oil of Nebraska failed to bring out any pressure of liquidation. Action had probably been discounted.

New Sponsorship?

The market position of both the A and B stocks of Dresser Manufacturing has been improved since the issuance of the company's annual statement. In addition to this, it appears that the stocks have acquired new sponsorship.

WARNER COMPANY.

Warner company's 1930 net was equal to $2.89 a common share, against $4.25 for the period from April 6 to Dec. 31, 1929.

WHEAT MARKET FLUCTUATES IN ERRATIC MANNER

et Losses Are Shown at Finish.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat market fluctuated yesterday a most erratic manner, advancing rly to 68¾c for the July, a new gh on the present movement, and e best figure since Jan. 15 as the sult of scattered commission house d local buying disclosing a lack of essure. Selling against offers a bd reports of a few showers in the uthwest checked the advance.

There was fairly general unloading some of the early buyers on prosts of fairly general precipitation. ices were carried off 2¼c from the rly high, with the finish at net ses of ⅝@¾c on the deferred deeries. July finished at 66⅝@66¾c, d September at 65¾@65½c. Old op months were unchanged to ⅛c gher, with March, 79¼c, and May, ¼c.

Part of the early strength in wheat as regarded as short covering for a ading local professional. The indendent strength in Winnipeg also atacted attention. There was some aying of futures in the latter marit against sales at Chicago, and it lished ⅛@⅝c higher, despite a lack aggressive export demand.

Await Weather Reports.

With dry weather reported over a rge part of the wheat belt, weather velopments are generally expected traders to become the dominating fluence in shaping the trend of vals, especially in the July. There are actically no hedges going into the ter future at the present time. A ar ago the July was ⅞c over the ay, compared with a discount of ⅛c at the close on Friday.

Removal of hedges against sales of ustralian wheat had some effect in verpool, which closed ¼d higher for e day, although there was 8,123,000 shipped from the southern hemisere for the week, compared with 026,000 bu the previous week. The ade looks for another good increase be shown in the supply on ocean assage in Monday's statement in nsequence of the liberal movement. uenos Aires was ⅝c higher at the st.

A moderate export demand was reorted for Manitoba wheat, with rance taking some grain, but sales all positions were not large.

Corn Has Early Bulge.

Short covering was on in corn early, d lifted the May to 66⅝c, or 1¾c er the Thursday finish. The bulge on ran its course and toward the st there was fairly general selling some of the early buyers. The arket dropped 1⅝@2c from the arly top and closed well toward the ottom, with net gains of ⅛@⅜c. arch finished at 63½c; May, 65¼@ ⅝c; July, 66⅝@66½c, and September, 66¼c.

The country took advantage of the pturn in futures to sell 85,000 bu ash corn to arrive, and there was so 25,000 bu booked to come here om other terminals. The basis on e poorer quality grain in the samle market dropped ½@1c, as comared with the May. Eastern shipng demand remains slow.

Oats React After Bulge.

Commission houses were fair buyers oats early, but the market eased ter on reports of scattered precipitaon over parts of the belt and, in ympathy with other grains, the close as ⅛c lower. March finished at 3⅛c; May, 33⅝@33½c, and July, 3⅜@32⅝c.

Outside interest in rye continues mall and the market is influenced rgely by the action of other grains. losing trades were ¼@⅝c lower, ith March 37½c; May, 39½c, and uly, 40¼c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat traders said that should the winter and spring wheat country get good general rains, lower prices are likely. The opinion also was expressed that erratic action of prices is to be expected. The general feeling is that a weather market is at hand. Those who are operating on this theory take advantage of bulges to sell and of breaks to buy. One trader who is usually a bear expressed himself as bullish, mainly because prices are low. He said this is the season for decrease in supplies which is a factor that should not be lost sight of.

Grain men who had the report that an amendment to the farm board act prohibiting the farm board from trading on grain and cotton exchanges were much pleased.

A constructive view of the wheat and corn situation was presented by Charles Sincere & Co. in an extended review. The belief is expressed that the farm board will own practically all the visible supply of wheat in May. The drought situation is also considered. A point made in corn is that practically six months ago December corn in Chicago was within a fraction of $1.00 and prospective production on the basis of the August government report called for 2,211,000,000 bu. Present prices are nearly 35c less than in August, with a 2,081,000,000 bu crop. The narrowing and elimination of the spread between wheat and corn futures should encourage heavier consumption of corn on the farms.

The Modern Miller says no rain of consequence has fallen over the wheat belt within the last week and reports of the need for surface moisture are coming from a wider area, including the south. Ample subsoil moisture is reported west of the Missouri river, but in Missouri and east of the Mississippi river it is generally deficient. So far there have been few authentic claims of crop damage and winter killing appears to have been below normal.

Broomhall's comment on 3c lb bread in Liverpool is viewed by Bartlett-Frazier as interesting, owing to the fact that the price is in a country that has to import a greater part of its wheat supply, while bread is selling in this country at around 10c lb and upward. It suggests that hoarding up wheat in this country while successful in giving us high prices for bread in this country does not prevent the people of Europe from getting their daily bread at the lowest price on record for many years.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Reynolds Metal company preliminary figures indicate net for 1930 of approximately $1,730,000, equal to $2.25 a share, compared with $3,560,034, or $4.62 a share, in 1929. Earnings in 1929 included $1.69 a share due to nonrecurring items, leaving earnings from operations equal to $2.94 a share. C. K. Reynolds, vice president, said that because of greater efficiency in operation net profit will increase more rapidly now than the increase in volume. January business was reported in greater dollar volume than in the like month of 1930, despite lower prices for products.

COTTON OFF ON CABLES

Disappointing cables from Liverpool brought sufficient selling pressure yesterday to satisfy all trade and speculative buying and carry prices down moderately. The opening was lower and, although there was a rally from the inside figures, with the close around the best of the day, there were net losses on futures in Chicago of 1@7 points, with other markets off 4@7 points. Spots were off 5 points all around, with New York, 10.75c; New Orleans, Galveston, and Houston, 10.40c. The principal rains were in the southwest. There was buying by mill and other interests and a few people in the trade have it that the government is absorbing cotton on breaks. Liverpool closed 4@7 points net lower, with spot sales 3,000 bales. Spinners' takings by cotton mills of the world for the week were 235,000 to 245,000 bales, against 223,000 bales the previous week and 270,000 bales last year. Prices follow:

LARD PRICES ADVANCED

A gain of 7½@10c in the active futures of lard yesterday was due to a stronger and higher hog market; export clearances of 5,864,225 lbs of lard from the seaboard and to Liverpool being unchanged to 3d higher. Light offerings most of the day also were a factor. The only selling was credited to longs and a little hedging, and was well taken. Bellies were unchanged to 10c lower. Cash trade was only fair, with prices irregularly lower. Hog supplies were lighter than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

BARGAINS THAT ARE BARGAINS

These cars have all been greatly reduced—in some instances as much as half—in order to move our stock immediately. WE NEED THE ROOM, so if you are interested in buying a car don't overlook these bargains. First come, first served, for an opportunity to get cars like these does not last long.

PACKARD SEDAN. It's the last word for sparkling performance and beautiful appearance; has 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, etc. $250.

HUPMOBILE 8 SEDAN. This Hupp was oiled and greased every 500 miles by the original owner, and now it's in topnotch condition throughout; has 4 whl. brakes, shutter front, snubbers, driving light, spare tire, bumpers, etc. A real pickup at $345.

FORD TUDOR SEDAN. One of the very latest model A's that looks and runs as though it had never been driven one mile. Has very full equipment and will not remain 24 hours at our price of $345.

ESSEX COACH. 1929 model that's a real beauty. The finish, upholstery and tires appear in the original new condition; the motor was carefully checked over by expert mechanics. Has every essential extra. $350.

PIERCE-ARROW SEDAN. Model 80, 7 pass., that was owned by a wealthy family and was chauffeur driven. It's equipped with 4 whl. brakes, Houdaille shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. This Pierce is a "knockout" and will be sold quickly at $485.

BUICK SEDAN. 1928 Master 6 that was owned by a retired capitalist in conjunction with his other cars. Was used very little, and so it will give the second purchaser real car satisfaction. Has driving light, shock absorbers, 5 practically new tires and other extras. Price $550.

LINCOLN SEDAN. Here is an expensive car with a Brunn custom body. The equipment includes 4 whl. brakes, shutter front, wire wheels, side mounts, seat covers, bumpers, etc. This Lincoln is in wonderful condition throughout and it's a positive steal at $585.

CHRYSLER SEDAN. 1929 model 65 with wire wheels, and very full equipment. A thorough examination of this car and a personal demonstration will convince you that it's in brand new shape today. Marked at $595 for immediate sale.

NASH CABRIOLET. 1929 Spec. 6 that was owned by a Gold Coast society woman who has given excellent care to the motor; it carefully from bumper to bumper and you'll agree that it's 100% throughout. Has many valuable extras and new tires. $685.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT SEDAN. 1929 str. 8 that is one of the finest "used" cars we ever owned. You should never know it had been driven a mile. Luxuriously equipped; sold for over $2,000 a short time ago, now $850.

LA SALLE SEDAN. This car is easily worth hundreds of dollars more than the price we are asking for it. Equipped with side mounts, shock absorbers, driving lights, bumpers, etc.; motor is A-1; today $895.
